North Girls In Good Performances

The North Quincy girls' track team, coached by Jeff Strungis, hasn't won any meets this spring but several of the Raiderettes have turned in spectacular performances and a number of school records have been broken.

The North girls will host Newton North Friday at 3:30 and will be at Brockton next Tuesday.

"We don't have enough depth to win dual meets and if we had just five more people we'd be in much better shape," said Strungis, after the Raiderettes had bowed to Weymouth North last week to drop their record to 0-3.

Strungis has only 15 girls. Each girl is allowed to enter just two running events and one field event and North has had to default in some events. In the Weymouth meet the Raiderettes won six events and broke three school records but they were unable to compete in either relay, thereby giving up 10 points in a 79-38 loss.

Mary Crehan, a sophomore who has done extremely well with the Quincy Track Club, knocked a full 25 seconds off the school record in the mile with a 5:24.8 effort.

"Mary's a very hard worker and has never missed a day of practice," said her coach, himself a former North Quincy standout. "We were going to enter her in the two-mile but it worked out better this way because she received a real test in the mile." Mary edged Weymouth's Carolyn Cuniff, who did 5:25 in breaking her school mark.

North's Marie Voelkel broke the school mark in the discus with a toss of 95-4½ and the senior headed for Northeastern University hopes to do even better.

"I did 115 last summer with the Quincy Track Club, so I know I can do better," said the Raiderettes' captain. "I think I can do over 100 feet this spring."

Eileen McKenna, a junior, broke the school record winning the 100-meter low hurdles in 16.96. She also won the 100-yard dash in 12.72.

Also winning for North Quincy were Lisa Green in the long jump (15-10, her best effort), and sophomore Robyn O'Donnell in the two-mile (13:45.28).

Pitch, Hit, Run Saturday

The Quincy Recreation Department will co-sponsor Pitch, Hit, And Run, Major League Baseball's Official Youth Program, Saturday.

The program, co-sponsored by Burger King Restaurants is open to Boy's and Girls age 9-12 who may register at the Quincy Recreation Department and the Burger King Restaurants. All youngsters compete in three skill categories: pitching at a target, running the base path for speed and hitting for distance.

This year's local competition will be held at Adams Field off Southern Artery. The 9 and 10 year olds will begin at 9 a.m., the 11 and 12 year olds will begin at 1 p.m. The age of participant as of July 17, 1979 determines eligibility.

Persons may register on the day of the event at the field. There is no charge, and all equipment is provided. Winners in each age group will advance to district competitions. This program is developed in

End Of An Era

QYC's 'Molly' Up For Bids

An era ends at the Quincy Yacht Club next week when the club's 19-foot motor tender, known as the "Molly", will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

Only members will be permitted to bid on the craft which has been used for the past decade to ferry yachtsmen out to their boats anchored in Quincy Bay.

Deadline for sealed bids of at least $750 will be tomorrow [Friday] at the semi-annual meeting. They will be opened Thursday, May 10, at the executive board meeting.

John Rounselle, treasurer of the club, said that if no acceptable bids are received the bidding will be opened to non-members.

Rounselle pointed out that the craft to be auctioned is not the original "Molly", the 20-footer with the old stick shift that served the club in the same capacity for many years.

The "Molly" will be replaced by two outboards that members can use to take themselves out to their boats.

"It's a matter of labor cost," said Rounselle. "The steward was out about four hours a day in the tender when he could have been working in the galley."

Greater Boston All-Stars To Meet Soviets May 13

Quincy's Leo Papile, former coach of the O'Brien Club and the Quincy Chiefs and currently men's basketball chairman of the New England AAU, will coach a New England Amateur Athletic Union team made up of this past year's outstanding high school stars from Greater Boston against a junior team from the Soviet Union.

The game will be played Sunday, May 13, at 8 p.m. at Don Bosco High School, Boston.

The Boston visit will be one of eight stops the Soviet team will make in a tour of the U.S., beginning in Farmingdale, N.Y., on May 3. A year ago a Soviet team compiled a 6-2 record against U.S. high school opposition.

Back At Full Strength

Future Looks Good For Quincy Girls Track Team

By TOM SULLIVAN

Interest in girls' track is picking up considerably at Quincy High and Coach Joe Amoroso feels, with his squad back at full strength and the two Suburban League powers, Weymouth South and Brockton, out of the way, the First Ladies could do well the rest of the season.

Weymouth South and Brockton should battle it out for the league title and we had to meet them in our first two meets," Amoroso said. "We had a fine turnout of 24 girls, the largest ever, but against Brockton we had only nine girls present, the rest were on school vacation trips. You can't win that way. Against Brockton we couldn't even compete in the two-mile, the 100 and the mile relay."

Although Quincy was outclassed in both meets, Amoroso was pleased with the improvement shown by many of the girls and feels the team will do much better Friday when it goes to Brookline. The First Ladies will host Weymouth

North Tuesday at 3:30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Quincy is led by two defending league champions, junior Donna Reardon in the mile and senior Paula Church in the 440. Paula placed second against Brockton but Donna was sidelined due to illness. Paula also runs the 880 and 100.

Lois Guglielmi, a senior, is an excellent 440 runner and long jumper; junior Rita Pasqualone holds the school record in the discus [92-11 1/4] and also puts the shot; junior Anna Sandonato is expected to score well in the javelin and shot put; senior Tara Prince is a high jumper and hurdler; Lois LaTina, a junior, runs the 220 and 100 and long jumps, and junior Donatella Fabrizio competes in the high jump, 220 and 100.

Sophomore Susan Meloughlin placed second in the long jump against Brockton with a fine 15-10 1/4, and was third in the 220; senior Patti Irvine, who comes from a well-known track family but is out for the first time, runs the 880 and relay; junior Anne Hannon is a fine

'hurdler who also throws the javelin and runs the relay; Karen Stephens, a junior, is new and looks good in the dashes; and junior Kathy Kane is new and also looks good in the dashes.

Sophomore Joanne Mediche, a newcomer, runs the mile; Sophomore Chris Fitzpatrick high jumps and throws the discus and javelin; junior Laurie Clark runs the 100 and long jumps; junior Anne McDonald looks good in the 220 and relay and junior Mary Ann Spadorcia throws the javelin and discus.

"I'm trying out several relay combinations in an effort to find the best groups," Amoroso said. "The weather has been against us but the girls are really interested and I think we should do well over the second half of the season."

"Coaching track is nothing at all like basketball [Joe is the Quincy basketball coach] where the emphasis is on winning. In track athletes are looking to improve individual events, not necessarily to win them. You have to take a whole different approach."

Trophies Presented At North Booster's Club Banquet

Bob (Scotty) Whitlaw, a North Quincy graduate currently commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Council (ECAC), was the guest speaker at last week's North Quincy High hockey banquet sponsored by the Boosters Club.

Receiving trophies were Leo

Doyle, Most Valuable Player; Paul Cooney, leading scorer; Pat Ennis, unsung hero, and Paul O'Sullivan, most improved player.

Cooney and Doyle received their Suburban League all-star awards and Cooney was presented his Patriot Ledger all-scholastic trophy.

Coaches Kevin Lewis and Kevin Jago were presented plaques by the players.

Jim Campbell, Quincy goalie, received an award as North's outstanding opponent. Cooney earlier had received a similar award as Quincy's outstanding opponent.

Boosters Club President Leo Graham was the toastmaster and among the guests were Mayor Arthur Tobin and Principal and Mrs. Peter Chrisom.

All participants will receive T-shirts and refreshments will be served after the race.

Runners are urged to pre-register for the race by tomorrow (Friday). For those who are unable to pre-register, race day registration will be held starting at 10 a.m. Sunday at the corner of Coddingdon and Woodward Sts.

Penn St. Closed To Through Traffic

Penn St. in South Quincy has been closed to through traffic to and from Centre St. to permit construction on the MBTA's Quincy Adams Station.

Traffic normally using Penn St. as a through way is being detoured over Columbia St. to and from Centre St. The detour is marked by directional signs.

There is still local access to Penn St. homes, businesses and the construction site. The 900 feet between the site and Centre St. will be permanently abandoned.

Construction work now getting underway involves driving piled for the foundation of the garages and installation of utilities.

Centre St. will remain open to traffic until 1982 when the Route 3 ramps to the station are completed. At that time, a new connection from Capen's Bridge will provide access to the new Burgin Parkway extension.

Kindergarten Registration Down By 20 Pupils

Kindergarten registration for the coming September is down approximately 20 pupils from last year when 648 spring registrations were recorded.

Fred Nolag, coordinator of elementary education, said that another 100 pupils are expected to register before the opening of school, but this would still indicate a declining enrollment.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon pointed out that enrollments in kindergarten are about one-half of those in 1971 when 1,500 children were registered.

Bill Requiring Hearings On New Flight Patterns Advances

The Committee on Transportation has reported favorably on a bill that would require Massport to hold a public hearing before instituting new takeoff patterns from Logan Airport.

The bill, a redraft of legislation filed by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy), was filed in response to many complaints about Massport's arbitrary handling of pattern changes last year.

As a result of that change, made without advance warning to the community, hundreds of Quincy residents complained of noisy, low-flying aircraft most of the summer.

"The redraft bill," said Brownell, "requires the Port Authority to advertise its intent to request a flight pattern change at least 30 days before recommending the change to the FAA.

"The public notice requirement will answer many of the legitimate grievances which citizens had about the Port Authority's tactics in handling flight patterns last summer."

In addition, the redraft of the bill permits a group of 50 or more citizens to force the Port Authority to hold a public hearing on a recommended change in flight patterns.

"This provision is guaranteed to assure citizens and civic groups an opportunity to express their views on any proposed change that is made to the FAA," said Brownell.

Adams Birthplaces Turned Over To National Park Services

She cited the work of Senator Paul Harold in bringing the matter to the attention of federal authorities and his unceasing work in staying with the project until Congressional action was taken. She also noted the work of the Quincy Historical Society and William O'Connell, the society's president, in bringing about the transfer in ownership.

Harold has been interested in the Adams Birthplaces since his high school days when he conducted tours of the houses.

Thomas Boylston Adams, representing the family, spoke briefly on the preservation of the Adams Mansion under the care of Mrs. Harris. He said that she has maintained the Adams Mansion, or 'the Old House', with an integrity that has kept it the place his family well remembers. He said he knows she will extend the same care to the Birthplaces.

"There comes a time when local pride gives way to national pride," Adams said. "These houses, and the Old House rightfully belong to the whole nation, not to any part of it."

"I am glad that the people of Quincy have been willing to give up their local pride for the national pride in giving these historic buildings over to the care of the National Park Service."

Edward Moore, representing Congressman Brian Donnelly, who is in Washington, said that "it is fitting that the birthplaces of John Adams and John Quincy Adams should be maintained by the federal government."

"These two illustrious Americans, though always greatly interested in their local and state communities, their affairs and their problems, were truly public men of national stature," Moore said.

"They rightfully belong to the entire United States. Their leads as a father-son team may never again be equalled in the political life of the United States."

Mrs. Harris introduced Mary Abbott, president of the Adams Memorial Society, and her brother Dr. John Adams Abbott.

Charles Francis Adams took the opportunity to present $10 each to Robert Kilnapp, 9, and his cousin Jonathan Brooks, 8, both of 43 Independence Ave., South Quincy. Last August the boys recovered several historical artifacts which were stolen from the Birthplaces and returned them to the Quincy Historical Society.

Adams praised the boys for their honesty in bringing the items to the society. The stolen property included John Adams silk wedding vest, three sabres and three swords of the Civil War period, a musket, a powder horn and a bayonet, dating from the War of 1812 and a hat of the Napoleonic era.

Attending the ceremonies were members of the City Council, former Quincy Mayors Thomas S. Burgin and James McIntire, Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's parish; Rev. John McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's, West Quincy; Rev. Keith Munson, minister of United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq.; Representatives Michael Morrissey and Thomas Brownell.

The John Adams Birthplace is open to visitors, but the John Quincy Adams house will be closed until structural renovations can be completed.

Conservation Hearing On N.Q. Wetlands

The Quincy Conservation Commission was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) to consider a proposal by S.S.B. Realty Inc. to alter wetlands in North Quincy by relocating Sagamore Creek.

Robert Mahoney of SSB Realty, a division of the State Street Trust Co., said the permission is being sought to prepare the way for an extension of Heritage Drive to connect with South Rd. under a subdivision plan.

The Commission also was to take up a notice of intent filed by O'Connell Brothers Management Co. to alter wetland by constructing an official building at State Street South.

GETS HER WISH -- Three year old Stephanie Anne Siteman, adopted Korean daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Siteman of Quincy, is presented a "big" American flag by Congressman Brian Donnelly. Stephanie became an American citizen on Patriot's Day and when she received a small flag pin was heard to remark "I want a big flag". Her comment was seen in The Quincy Sun by Congressman Donnelly who made arrangements to obtain a flag which has flown over the Capitol in Washington. The flag was presented to the young citizen at Donnelly's Quincy Office.

Wollaston Liquor License Bill Seen Passing House

By TOM HENSHAW

A bill that would mean a liquor license for the Norfolk County's Wollaston Recreational Facility in Montclair will reach the House floor in a week or two and Rep. Robert B. Ambler [D-Weymouth] feels he has the votes to see it pass.

Ambler made the comment after the Quincy City Council refused to entertain his bid for a compromise which would have traded the bill for a citywide referendum for the controversial license application on the November ballot.

"I believe I can get a favorable vote in the House," said Ambler, who is chairman of the House Committee on Government Regulations, which has already reported favorably on the bill. "I can't speak for the Senate.

"I have 11 House members on my committee who feel very definitely that the city of Quincy is being very narrow on this issue.

"Starting with that base of 11, certainly there are enough people who I know in the House who come to me in certain situations and who I can ask for a vote where it doesn't affect them at all."

The Quincy Licensing

Commission has refused to approve the license for the facility, which claims it will operate at a deficit without one. The bill, filed by Ambler, would permit Norfolk County Commissioners to grant their own.

The City Council effectively killed Ambler's bid for a referendum Monday night when Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. objected to it, thus forcing it to be tabled. A Council source said it is unlikely it will be resurrected.

Lydon called Ambler's referendum proposal "a copout by him because he can't handle it in there."

"I feel Rep. Ambler has the clout to get it out of his own committee with a favorable report," said Lydon, "but, in my opinion, the legislature would not act favorably on an issue of this sort. It's not going to pass for the reason that it bypasses local authority."

"I don't know Quincy politics," retorted Ambler, "and I'm sure by his actions that Mr. Lydon doesn't know Massachusetts legislative politics or he wouldn't shoot from the hip like he does."

Ambler said he didn't really expect to get anywhere with the City Council.

"The Committee on Government Regulations has already given it a favorable report so I'll try to do it legislatively," he said.

"I don't believe that an appointed licensing authority should be able to hold hostage the rest of the county, particularly when the facility is deficit-ridden and Quincy is receiving most of the fruits of that open space.

"It is unrealistic and unreasonable on the part of the Council Overwhelmed By Creedon's $1.5 Bond Issue Documentation

The City Council's Finance Committee was overwhelmed by the documentation presented by School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon at a meeting called on Tuesday to consider action on a proposed $1.5 million bond issue for completion of North Quincy High School project.

"It is not possible to read, comprehend and act on all this documentation this evening," City

Councillor Joanne Condon said after looking at the material. She asked for more time to study the facts and figures.

Barry Coletti, architect for the addition to the school and renovations, gave the committee a breakdown on the way the bond issue would be expanded:

- $600,000 for an extension claim by Blount Brothers, general contractor for the project.

- $350,000 for equipment for the school.

- $150,000 "to keep the architect's office on the job until the work is finished."

- $375,000 for contingencies. Coletti also told the committee: "I feel the city is in a safe position to receive 65 percent state reimbursement. I know of no precedent for someone not getting reimbursed for increased costs."

On The Inside

- Quincy could have had a brand new NQHS for $2.5 million less than the addition and repairs to present structure. Page 18.

MDC To Pave Rhoda St. Gap

The MDC is planning to start immediately on paper work leading toward a contract to pave a 200-foot gap of MDC property on Rhoda St., Houghs Neck.

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly said he met recently with A. C. Paton, chief sewerage engineer of the MDC and acting director of the Sewerage Division, to discuss Houghs Neck problems.

He said that Paton promised him that as soon as men are available an MDC maintenance crew will remove the steps from the High Level Sewer embankment to the city boardwalk.

Kelly called it a "dangerous situation".

Paton also said the MDC plans to investigate the double barrelled culvert under the High Level Sewer to determine what can be done to alleviate a flooding problem.

Cadets Petition Shot Down

Veterans Win Preference Battle For Police Dept. Appointments

Quincy's Police Department and its war veterans clashed before the City Council Monday night.

The veterans won, hands down. The issue was a home rule petition, which had been tucked away in the Ordinance Committee for nearly 15 months, that would give Police Cadets some preference in appointment to the force.

Chief Francis X. Finn and the Quincy Police Betterment Association were for it.

The veterans, many of whom, showed up in full uniform, viewed it as an attack on veterans preference.

The Auxiliary Police, who wanted in on it themselves 15 months ago, decided they wanted out this time and appeared against it.

Finn said that when the Cadet program started some nine years ago the incoming Cadets, age 18 to 23, were told that it was a way to win permanent appointment to the Police Department. Some of them did through regular channels.

"When these people came on the department we held out that hope to them," Finn said. "They have served the department well at low pay.

"This would not preclude any veteran or auxiliary from becoming a cadet. We never told them that this was the way to get on the force. We told the Cadets."

The home rule petition would allow "not more than three or 20 per cent, whichever is the greater," of the total number of appointments to be made from the ranks of the Cadets.

They would, in effect, bypass the certified eligible Civil Service list for appointment, thus depriving some of those on the list of the opportunity.

"My son is on the eligible list," said Finn. "It might be his spot that would be taken by a Cadet. But I support the petition."

Finn said there are nine Cadets and one "student intern," a sort of over-age Cadet, on the Quincy force, most of them assigned to communications duty.

There are about 20 vacancies on the department, he said.

The big gun for the veterans was Atty. Paul A. M. Hunt, who said he was speaking as judge advocate of the Morrisette Legion Post, the Bryan VFW Post and the Caddy Marine Corps League Detachment.

"I am here on a matter of principle," he said. "This is an attack on veterans' preference."

Hunt noted that Massachusetts law giving absolute preference first to disabled veterans and then to other veterans who pass the exam is currently under frontal attack before the U.S. Supreme Court.

"If the City Council passes this order it will have struck a blow against veterans preference by the back way," said Hunt, an ex-Marine.

"I got every veterans' preference and I am a better citizen for it. Now it is the Vietnam veterans. They came back from war and are looked down upon for fighting for their country."

"When you vote for this order you are voting against veterans' preference. I would bear no animosity but, remember, this would be the one time that Quincy was recorded against veterans."

The Council waited quickly before that assault.

"This is one of the most difficult decisions I've been faced with on the City Council," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi. "There is a diversity of opinion between two groups that I have respect for, the Police Department and the veterans."

"I hope the police chief and the patrolmen's union understand that I have to support a motion for an unfavorable recommendation on this petition."

"This is one of the most difficult votes we've had," agreed Councillor Francis X. McCauley, in seconding a motion by Councillor Joanne Condon that the order ought not to pass.

It was Chief Finn himself who took the Council out of its difficulties.

"I see the votes aren't here," he said, standing up quickly. "We have lost. I still support the bill 100 per cent but I'd like to withdraw it. It's an unfair position to put the Council in."

Paul Quinn, speaking for the Quincy Police Betterment Association, concurred.

"We understand it is a tough Council issue," he said. "Take it off the table, please."

The Ordinance Committee voted unanimously that the petition ought not pass and, later on in the evening, the Council itself applied the coup de grace by placing it on file.

$1 Million Investment Planned If Carleton House License Transferred

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A North Quincy firm says it will make a total investment of $1 million at the Carleton House if it gets the inn-holder all alcoholic license.

Dante DeCesare, manager of Quincy House Corp., 29 Hancock St., told the City License Board Tuesday that half of the $1 million would go for repairs and renovations.

Quincy House Corp. seeks transfer of the license from Bridge Approach Corp., a subsidiary of Bass River Savings Bank of Cape Cod. The latter took possession of the business upon foreclosure of a mortgage held by a previous owner.

The request for the license transfer was continued for two weeks. The board said it wanted information regarding menu, hours of food service and operation of the lounge. Members said they also want to inspect the establishment.

City Councillor Joanne Condon said she was concerned with past complaints at the Carleton House. She said the area is the "Gateway to Quincy" and stressed that she wanted to be certain the Carleton House will give the city a good image.

Condon said "Quincy is a historical city and needs motels and hotels, a lounge is secondary."

Police Chief Francis X. Finn suggested that the Quincy House Corp. work with Condon on its plans for the establishment.

Mrs. Frances Lynch, representing the Quincy Citizen's Association, read a letter to the board recalling the Carleton House of years ago "as a lovely establishment" which went downhill.

She expressed the association's hope that a fresh start could be made and a desirable establishment maintained, "one that the city could be proud of."

Would Expand Ross Garage

Tobin In Washington Seeking More U. S. Funds

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin was in Washington this week on the trail of new federal development dollars for, among other things, repairs and expansion of the Ross parking garage, the Public Works garage and the Police station.

Tobin met with Cong. Brian J. Donnelly (D. Mass) Monday morning to discuss regulations governing new funding for Economic Development Administration (EDA) grants that is expected to be available sometime after next July.

Donnelly is a member of the House Subcommittee on Economic Development.

Tobin outlined these tentative plans for the EDA money, should it become available for Quincy:

- Repairs to the top floor of the Ross parking garage, which was damaged two years ago by a car that went out of control. Estimated cost: $175,000. Also, adding a fourth floor to the garage at an estimated price tag of $750,000 to $1 million.

- A new Public Works garage in the area on Sea St. behind the DPW administration building.

"This is a high priority item," said Tobin. "The present garage is inadequate in size and some parts of it are structurally unsound."

A couple of years ago, Mayor Joseph J. LaRia was unsuccessful in his bid for EDA funds for a new DPW garage.

- An addition to the Quincy Police Station and remodeling of the old building which, said the Mayor, "is pretty well chopped up inside."

Tobin said he also sees the possibility of funds from the Department of Transportation or the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation to spruce up Hancock St. from McIntyre Mall to the planned mini-park at Hancock and Granite Sts., which he calls "Della Chiesa Mall."

"When the City Hall Annex is finished in July or August," he said, "I'd like to start at the front of City Hall and repair and landscape the sidewalk all the way down to the present entrance to the Della Chiesa Parking area."

"This will tie in the whole area."

The Della Chiesa Parking lot is to be the site of a new $10 million 10-story office building, set back from the street. The mini-park will be on the site of the Baybank and Presidential Cooperative Bank buildings on the corner.

There is also the possibility of a series of pedestrian walkways around Quincy Square, funded by the Urban Initiative Program.

"We don't really capitalize on the historic landmarks in this area," said Planning Director James Lydon. "We would like to draw people from the MBTA station and spin off people from the Bargain Center."

Tobin said he will also investigate the possibility of a second Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) for a parking garage tied in with a 150-room hotel, office building and mini-civic center in the Ross Parking Area.

"I want to alert Cong. Donnelly about these areas of interest," he said, "and get some feeling on what projects we have a good shot at so we won't waste time on the others."

Furniture Store Moving Into W.T. Grant Building

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin announces that Furniture Corp. of America, an Allston firm, is moving into the old W. T. Grant building in the Ross Parkway, filling it with tenants for the first time since Grant's closed in February, 1976.

Tobin called the move "the first in a series of announcements of new business that we are bringing into Quincy."

Sometime in June, he said, there will be announcement of a new hardware store in the old Telephone Co. building on McGrath Highway and in July or August the Gilchrist building in Ross Parkway will be filled with a new tenant.

He indicated that new construction also will be announced soon on the site of the former Ashmont Discount building on Southern Artery.

"If you don't have a viable business area and you don't have taxable income," he said, "then the burden of taxpaying shifts to the homeowner."

"By concentrating on the revitalization of our business areas to create a healthy economy we are actually giving priority to the residential taxpayer."

PENCIL PUNCTURE DANGER

Pencil punctures frequently occur at schools. Recently, a Wisconsin boy lost the sight of an eye when he bent down to pick up a coin and his face struck a pencil sticking out of a companion's pocket.

Children who fall while they have a pencil in their mouth often require emergency treatment. Usually, these mouth punctures are not too serious. Far more serious, but fortunately rare, are oral injuries involving the soft palate in the region of the tonsils.

According to an AMA report of a study into 25 such cases, resulting in a blood clot in the major throat artery, 25 percent of the patients died and most of the others were left paralyzed on one side.

Parents, remind your children that pencils should not be carried in the mouth or protrude from pockets. When not in use, they should be capped with a plastic shield or carried in a box.

Plans Completed For Stenkil Lodge 50th Anniversary

By KRISTEN JOHNSON

Plans are now complete and tickets sold out for the 50th Anniversary Celebration of Stenkil Lodge, to be held Saturday evening, May 19 at the Viking Club, Braintree.

A roast sirloin of beef dinner will be catered by Joseph's of Mattapan. Scandinavian music for dancing, presented by Carl Lundin and his orchestra, will follow. Several local as well as national dignitaries have been invited.

Stenkil Lodge, along with 60 other Scandinavian lodges throughout the country, comprise the Independent Order of Vikings, a national sick-benefit and fraternal organization with headquarters in Chicago. At the present time Stenkil Lodge is one of the largest lodges in the order with close to 1000 members.

Fifty years ago, on May 17, 1929 the first meeting of the lodge at Clan MacGregor Hall, 34 Franklin St., South Quincy, was attended by only 39 people. At that time they drew up their charter and shortly thereafter chose the name Stenkil which in Swedish means a "stone-wedge" or a wedge used in splitting stone.

Over the years the membership of the new lodge grew steadily, reaching 100 by 1939. Since that time several factors have contributed to its continued expansion. The year 1944 witnessed the acceptance of women into its rolls, a proposal which had been adamantly opposed by the all-male membership up until this time. In 1946, a Junior Branch for those under 16 years of age was established. Two other local lodges, Gothic in Dorchester and Vidar in Brockton merged with Stenkil Lodge in the early 1950's.

The purchase by means of a massive bond drive of the A. B. Lewis property at 410 Quincy Avenue in Braintree, better known today as the Viking Club, provided the lodge with a place it could call "home." The first meeting of Stenkil Lodge at the Viking Club was held Oct. 5, 1953. By 1954 Stenkil could boast of some 600 members.

Although it is still basically an insurance and sick-benefit organization, Stenkil Lodge members enjoy a busy social calendar ranging from regular Saturday night dinners with authentic Scandinavian food and music to special events such as the annual Mid-summer Festival, a true Scandinavian holiday. It will take place this year June 23-24. The annual Christmas Bazaar hosted by the club's active ladies group is another social highlight. The great hall of the Viking Club is also a popular spot for wedding receptions and other rental functions.

Those who have accepted an invitation to the 50th anniversary celebration include:

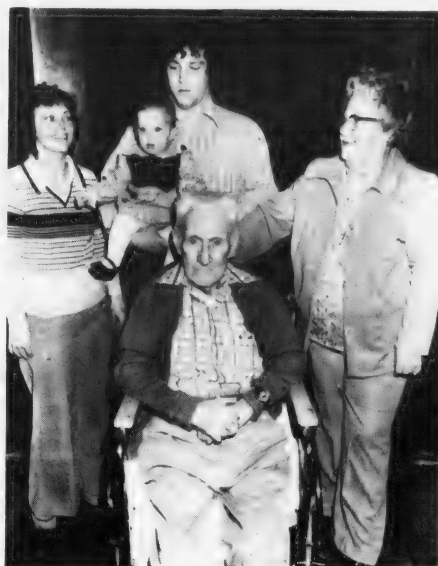

Bengt Friedman, Swedish Consulate General from New York who took over this post in 1978 and who is the official representative of the Swedish government for the Eastern Seaboard from Maine to Florida and including Puerto Rico and St.

Thomas.

Wendell N. Gustafson, Swedish Consul of Boston; Leonard Kopelman, Finnish Consul of Boston; C. Kenneth Frantz, Grand Chief, Independent Order of Vikings, Chicago; Ruth F. Berggren, Past Grand Chief, Independent Order of Vikings, Chicago; Paul F. Swanson, Past Grand Chief, Independent Order of Vikings, Moline, Ill.; Henry Stenquist Jr., Executive Council Member, Independent Order of Vikings, Woburn; Frank H. W. Jacobson, District Deputy Grand Chief of New England, Independent Order of Vikings, Watertown; Roger W. Cook, Chief, Stenkil Lodge; Edward Lindstrom, President, South Shore Viking Association; Carl R. Johnson, Chairman, Braintree Board of Selectmen; Walter F. Anderson, Gust W. Johnson, John H. Granstrom, Theodore Lindberg, charter members.

Edward R. Myrbeck Sr., Past Grand Chief of the Independent Order of Vikings and a member of Stenkil Lodge will be the emcee.

Over the past eight months a committee has been meeting every month to plan for the Golden Anniversary Celebration. Committee members are: Roger and Elaine Cook, Frank and Jean Jacobson, Roy Berggren, William Collins, Dorothea Lundin, Gertrude and Edward Myrbeck Sr., Minnie Hanson, Jean Koski, Arthur and Maggie Erikson, Carl and Evelyn Erikson, Fred and Gloria Molander and Kristen Johnson.

HERE'S HOW THE HOME THEY'RE LEAVING FOR COLLEGE CAN PAY FOR COLLEGE.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like the best education money can buy for your kids.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and what you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like taking some of the strain out of paying for college.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Reagan's Getting Up Early

Ronald Reagan hasn't said he's running for President but he obviously is.

Reagan has accepted an invitation from the South Shore Chamber of Commerce to speak at its 7:44 breakfast meeting June 14 at the Lantana in Randolph.

The Chamber is pretty certain the former California governor and one-time movie star is running. It is billing him as "the first in a series of Presidential candidates to appear before the South Shore Chamber membership."

Reagan must at least be testing the Presidential waters. What else would get him up for a 7:44 a.m. meeting?

REAGAN

POLITICIAN WATCHERS who have been watching former Mayor Joseph LaRaia now figure he will run for the City Council at-large.

The way they dope it, Joseph Brett will not run and LaRaia will have a shot at the open seat. Brett, of course, is filling the seat vacated by Paul Harold after he was elected state senator.

Observers think that LaRaia won't officially announce until the 11th hour, would it be for councillor at-large or for the Ward 1 seat occupied by Leo Kelly?

THE SPECULATION CORPS, meanwhile, is wondering whether Rosemary Wahlberg might enter the political ring as a City Council candidate.

Mrs. Wahlberg was replaced on the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners when Gov. Edward King named Mrs. Lolita Harris to succeed her.

If she should run, would it be for councillor at-large or for the Ward 1 seat occupied by Leo Kelly?

IF YOU'RE WONDERING if Frank McCauley is going to seek re-election as a City Councillor at-large, well, he is. The committee to re-elect him is holding a cocktail party fund-raiser Wednesday, June 13, 5 to 8 p.m., at The Neighborhood Club. McCauley had earlier toyed with the thought of running for mayor and is still seen as a future mayoral contender.

McCAULEY

FORMER DISTRICT ATTORNEY George Burke has been elected to the Quincy Tennis Club Board of Governors. It is his first elective post since leaving the D.A.'s office four years ago.

Burke's law practice keeps him pretty busy so he doesn't need politics. But every once in a while he seems to miss it like an old fire horse misses the smell of smoke. And he keeps running into long-time supporters who would like to see him back in the political ring. One of these days... well... who knows?

BURKE

REP. THOMAS BROWNELL isn't running for anything this year. But he's jogging. Clocks two or three miles a day to keep in shape.

He must have caught the jogging bug from his Moreland Rd., Merrymount neighbor Bob Seaman. Seaman, who operates a Boston based advertising agency, is not only a frequent jogger but a runner. He finished 17th in Sunday's five-mile Run For Your Life road race to benefit Quincy Hospital.

FORMER QUINCY resident Russell Peterson is running for selectman-assessor in Chatham where he and his wife, Svea, own and operate the Town House Inn and Lodge. Peterson, making his second bid for office, wants to keep Chatham on the elbow of Cape Cod, a fishing village. He's a former employee at Sears in Quincy and graduated from Quincy High School in 1957. He is a nephew of Austin Wickens, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

OOPS! My good friend, Kay Kyser, tells me that there are over 13,000 pipes in the pipe organ at the Christian Science Mother Church in Boston. I recently wrote it as over "3,000". Kay, who is now manager of film and broadcasting for the Christian Science Church, also sent along his regards to Win Bettinson of WJ19A and Frank Mitchell of the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

CHARLIE McINTYRE, 11-year-old son of former Mayor and Mrs. James McIntyre is the envy of his friends. Charlie has been accepted for a two-week enrollment at the Ted Williams baseball camp in Lakeville. He checks in Aug. 19. Incidentally, did you know that Pop was a catcher with the Supreme Market team as a youngster?

Profile Of A Costly Project

City Could Have Had Brand N

By TOM HENSHAW

Additions and renovations to North Quincy High School are to be ready by the end of December, 1979, at a cost of $17.6 million.

The city could have had a brand new high school on 58.8 acres of the old Squantum Naval Air Station ready for occupancy in 1977 for only $15.5 million.

The story of North Quincy High School for the past 15 years has been fraught with "ifs" and "might have beens."

It was opened in 1927 as a junior high school. An east wing was added in 1931 and it was called North Quincy High School with an enrollment of 1,497. A west wing was added in 1936.

[The 26 rooms in the west wing, incidentally, cost just under $293,000. But coffee was 22 cents a pound in Foy's Market in those days, too.]

A new gym, named for Walter [Cap] Bryan, the school's first great athlete, was built in 1962.

But two years later, a report by the Arthur D. Little Co. suggested that it might be time to scrap the whole thing and start all over.

For one thing, the site [5.3 acres] was not big enough. Thirty three classrooms were too small. Forty six more did not have adequate blackboard or teaching space. The library, science and home economics areas were badly outdated.

The obvious solution would have been a new high school. Then North could have reverted to a junior high; Atlantic Junior could have been an elementary school and ancient Central Junior and Mass Fields Schools closed.

Several sites were explored and rejected.

The Montclair marshes off West Squantum St. were considered. But the City Council turned the site down as potentially too valuable for commercial purposes.

A 58.8 acre section of the old Squantum Naval Air Station drew a lot of attention. It was estimated that a school there would cost about $15.5 million. But the Council thought it was too remote from the centers of population.

With a new school ruled out, the next best thing was an addition to the old one.

But this incurred new problems. The site was small and the State School Building Assistance Bureau had strict space and other requirements. And the SBAB held the purse strings on 65 per cent state reimbursement.

By this time it was 1974. Ten years had passed since the Little Report. The school was on a two year, not the usual 10 year, accreditation because "the present facility was not adequately housing the needs of the different students in a comprehensive high school."

The first plan put forth called for a free-standing addition behind the high school on 14 acres, two more than needed to satisfy the state. But it would have meant the taking of 25 homes on Hunt, Oliver and Prince Sts. For that reason, it was rejected.

The City Council came up with a plan of its own in December, 1974. It voted to request a $12 million bond issue to pay for the addition plus renovations to the old building. But there were also these stipulations:

The addition must not exceed 100,000 square feet; there must be a 65 per cent state reimbursement; it must not cost Quincy more than $4 million; and there must be no land-taking.

The SBAB turned that one down.

Now, a new time element entered. The State Legislature passed a law lowering the 65 per cent reimbursement to 50 per cent on June 30, 1975, and eliminating some categories of repayment. The old law would expire June 30, 1976.

Finally, just under the wire, a plan was approved to build an attached addition of 150,000 square feet. The project would cost $15 million, including renovations to the old building. Nine homes would be taken on Hunt and Oliver Sts.

But the problems of North Quincy High School were far from over.

The new plan called for students from the city's North End to attend double sessions at Quincy High School during the three years the project would be under way.

If the school remains open during construction, said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, "there will be a noise problem. It stands to reason there won't be much education going on in that building with the noise of heavy construction."

But the new mayor, Joseph J. LaRaia, did not like the idea of double sessions. Nor did he like the price tag. When the School Committee

The Meanest Mother

Editor's Note: The following anonymous article first appeared in The Quincy Sun seven years ago and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it.

Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less—not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things.

I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us—it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

The driest spot in the U.S. is in southwest Arizona, which had a 30 year normal rainfall of 4.13 inches.

NORTH QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL addition (left) plus renovation of the 50-year-old existing building (right) has zoomed in announced cost from $13.5 million to $15 million to $16.1 million to $17.6 million since original bond issue was signed in June, 1976.

overrode his objections, he refused to sign the bond. That was in May, 1976.

For more than a month the stalemate continued, with the School Committee and concerned North Quincy parents making motions to go to court and LaRaia exploring the possibility of renovating the school to meet accreditation standards for only $1 million or less.

When the Mayor finally did sign the bond on June 11, 1976, it was for the face-saving sum of $13.5 million; the size was reduced to 131,000 square feet; enrollment projections were reduced from 2,000 to 1,700 students; and double sessions at Quincy High were eliminated.

Bids for the first phase of construction [site preparation and pile driving] were opened July 27, 1976. The project, which was to be hurried along by a construction management firm, Kent Corp., would be finished and ready for occupancy by September, 1978.

But even at that late stage in the game North Quincy High School was still snake bit.

In October, 1976, it was discovered that Kent Corp. was overseeing the job under a $310,000 contract -- but another provision of the

UNION CHARGES INTERFERENCE

Local 5 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers completed its case against management of the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard before the National Labor Relations Board.

The union charged that management interfered with the Employees Representation Plan in violation of the Wagner Act and demanded an election to determine an exclusive bargaining agent for the plant.

Trial Examiner Henry W. Schmidt, who had already listened to more than a million words of testimony covering 5,000 pages of transcript, said Fore River would open its case the following day.

JUDGE BACKS CITY

Judge Maurice Murphy in Quincy District Court ruled that Public Works Commissioner Ezekiel C. Sargent acted in good faith and with proper cause when he laid off 15 city laborers.

The workers claimed that seniority lists sent to the city by Civil Service were incorrect and when that happened it was up to the commissioner to determine seniority standing.

Commends Cerasoli For Action On Mosque Vandalism

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This is the first time I have ever written a letter to the editor. As a life long resident of Quincy Point, I would like to publicly thank State Representative Robert A. Cerasoli for his actions in seeking a stop to the vandalism at the Mosque in Quincy Point.

Bob Cerasoli cares about all of the people in Quincy Point and he stood up to be counted while others sat and did nothing. Chief Finn and the police should also be commended for their quick action in this matter. I hope they will continue their effectiveness by increasing patrols to stop vandalism in all of Quincy Point.

A Letter From One Of Our Many Satisfied Customers

Frank Evans Company, Inc.
343 Newport Avenue
Wollaston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Evans:

April 27, 1979

Just a line to thank you so much for beautifying our home in a manner that makes us the envy of the entire neighborhood!

We would like to go on record by letting you know how much we appreciate the courteous manner in which the men from your Company handled the entire situation.

We were never disturbed in any way by them, their industriousness was remarked about in the community (they arrived early and worked late) and from a housewife's point of view, they could teach my husband a lesson or two - they even swept up and cleaned up all of the shavings, etc., that accompany such a project.

It was a pleasure to do business with you all - and you may feel confident that word of mouth travels very quickly.

Thank you again, and our special thanks to Pick, the foreman and Mike the helper and to yourself and your brother... a real nice group of gentlemen.

P.S. - I'm also glad I took advantage of calling, after seeing your ad in the Quincy Sun. We know we have a quality job - done by a Grade "A" Company!

Sincerely,

John T. Eklund

City Council not to put it on the ballot and let the people of Quincy say whether or not they want a deficit operation."

Ambler indicated he felt the Council's refusal to approve a referendum would help him secure votes for his bill in the House and Senate. He said he talked to Sen. Paul D. Harold [D-Quincy] about a possible referendum.

"Sen. Harold has taken the position that the bill is a violation of home rule," said Ambler, "but he did agree with me if the City Council would put it on the ballot he would have no quarrel with that. He represents Holbrook and Braintree, who also pay the deficit."

"He and I have had a very open relationship on this. I understand his position but he has to also understand ours."

"The city of Quincy may win the battle but lose the war."

"If nothing else we have brought the matter to the attention of all Norfolk County residents who live in Franklin and places like that and who will never use the facility because of the distance."

"I'm sure they will be taking the position that, in these times of money shortage and hardship on the taxpayer, we should not be paying for a recreational facility for a few that is a liability on the rest of the county."

"The Norfolk County Commission has already recommended zero funding for the facility this year. I'm sure that isn't going to take effect but the reps from the rest of the county will support legislation to take that off the county's back."

"I am doing the city of Quincy a favor in trying to make it something that will be more self-sufficient."

Lydon questioned whether the facility can be called a deficit operation "when it hasn't even run a full year."

"I have heard comments on the deficit," he said, "and I also heard comments that the personal services and expense budget are excessive and these comments come from the Norfolk County Advisory Board. That's what they are upset about."

"I think the Licensing Board has addressed the issue. These are qualified people who have been serving professionally in the city for a long time. I don't feel that this is an issue that should go to a citywide vote."

New NQHS Would Have Cost $2.5 Million Less

document apparently permitted $170,000 of the fixed costs to be billed to the city a second time as a reimbursable expense.

That was straightened out by adding a "memorandum of understanding" to the contract.

At the same time it was discovered that the city was paying some $400 a week for a clerk of the works for doing the same work that Kent Corp. was believed to be doing.

By January, 1977, as the School Department prepared to enter double sessions at North Quincy High School for a year and a half, the project was being talked about as costing $15 million, despite a full page ad taken by Mayor LaRaia in The Quincy Sun fixing the cost at $13.5 million.

Later, Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson conceded that the $13.5 million did not include the cost of steel construction, site preparation, emergency work and other items.

By August, 1977, City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, then running for mayor against LaRaia, was saying that the project would cost $16.1 million; that it was 65 days behind schedule; and double sessions at North would have to continue well beyond September, 1978.

School officials agreed that the new school would not be ready by September and Blount Brothers, the general contractor, was reported to have told them to be prepared for occupancy January, 1979.

By April, 1978, the cost of the project was confirmed at $16.1 million and it could be as much as 155 days behind schedule, depending on who you listened to. George Kukor, president of Kent Corp., insisted that the delay was "only" 78 days.

About the same time, new Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti disclosed that Kent Corp. had already been paid some 80 per cent of its $310,000 plus reimbursables contract even though the project was only about 50 per cent complete.

Payment was stopped on the contract and, in May, 1978, Kent was removed from the site and the contract went into arbitration, with Kent seeking $150,000.

A new timetable was figured out to have the addition to the school finished and the students transferred into it in February, 1979, and the whole project completed by the end of December, 1979.

But the long construction delays took a financial toll, too. Three weeks ago Mayor Tobin asked the City Council to approve a $1.5 million bond issue "to keep the general contractor and subcontractors on the job when the terms of their contract expires."

"You just can't leave an empty building there."

So the renovation and addition work that was once billed as $13.5 million is now at $17.6 million and a half year behind schedule.

Hearing Continued Bay Colony Complaints Draw Board's Ire

The Quincy Licensing Board continued for two weeks a hearing on complaints against Bay Colony Realty Association [Cumberland Farms] at 470 Adams St. and 604-614 Hancock St.

The complaints were in regard to failure to remove gas tanks from the property and to clean up the area.

Richard Longton, a representative of the realty firm, attended the meeting along with the general counsel of Cumberland Farms.

A letter was read to the board by Fire Chief Edward F. Barry in which the company agreed to remove the tanks, but action was not taken.

Lack of proper upkeep of the properties was also discussed.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath told the board of complaints he has received from residents on "the filthy conditions" of the property.

"The association is making donkeys of myself and the Licensing Board when we continue to let them get away with failing to remove the gas tanks and picking the area up."

Pictures of the property were shown to the board, and Health Inspector Dr. Samuel Solomon commented, "The properties are a health menace to the city and residents."

Dr. Solomon told the board that he intended to send an official document to the association in regard to cleaning up the area within 48 hours.

If the request is not met within that time, a call for permanent revocation of the license can be made and a hearing date set.

Atty. Neil Kirstein pointed out that litigation in regard to failure to remove the gas tank was expected to be filed by City Solicitor Robert Fleming on Wednesday.

His opinion was that it was a waste of the board's time to debate the gas tanks question since it would be litigated anyway.

The board continued for two weeks a request from South Shore Bait & Tackle, Inc., for a common victualer license and change of address from 527-529 Washington St. to 569 Washington St., as well as a Sunday opening of the Bait & Tackle.

The request, continued from last week's meeting, involves the establishment of a bait shop and grocery store, separated by a partition.

City Councillor Daniel Raymondi spoke to the board of his intention to discuss the situation with the Ward 2 Civic Association before deciding for or against it.

"I'm concerned about the sale of food and bait, and see no need for it," he said.

Rep. Robert Cerasoli said, "After reading the agenda and the papers, I openly oppose the request on the face of it."

The board suggested that Bait & Tackle owner George Terrio discuss the situation with the Ward 2 Civic Association.

In other action, the board:

- Granted a license to Mrs. Paul Carlson for a flea market to be conducted by Quincy Centre United Methodist Church June 16, on the church grounds.

- Granted a one-day auctioneer's license to Daniel W. Dunn for an auction to be held June 9, [rain date June 16] 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 64 Field St.

- Denied the request of George McGinn of McGinn's Service Station, Inc., Furnace Brook Parkway and Newport Ave., for the selling of flowers on the property. The board suggested that McGinn submit a request that he be accepted as manager of the gas station.

- Granted a license to Rev. Keith C. Munson, of United First Parish Church, for a craft fair and sale on the church grounds May 19, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

- Granted the transfer of all licenses now held by Ernesto's American & Foreign Car Service to Mrs. Donato Sodano, wife of Giuseppe Angelo Sodano, who will run the establishment.

- Sodano's company is Foreign Car Centre of Quincy, Inc., d/b/a Angelo Auto Sales & Service, 638-642 Washington St. Included are a parking license for 5 cars; Motor II license, and gasoline license.

- A license was also granted to Robert Pitts for the Pollard School's annual Field Day May 12.

- A request for a common victualer license from D'Angelo, Inc., 484 Southern Artery, was cancelled.

● St. John's Little League

By PUTNAM BORDEN

St. John's Little League is off to a good start as fine weather, for the first time in many years, enabled completion of the first week's play with no postponements.

In the majors, ages 9 to 12, inter-league games were played with the American League showing early class, winning seven of the 11 games against the Nationals.

Riley & Rielly Insurance jumped into an early lead in the American League with three easy wins, closely followed by the Quincy Sun, which easily won two games.

In the National League a three-way tie for first exists between Alpine Restaurant, Presidents Pharmacy and Braintree Paint and Wallpaper, all having 1-1 records.

Early Farm League [8 and 9] action had Sweeney Funeral Service winning two and Alfredo's Restaurant had a win and a tie.

In the major leagues:

A combined no-hitter by Mike Casey and Jim Stasio led the Quincy Sun to an 18-7 win over Braintree Paint and Wallpaper. Eric Jolley had a grand slam homer for the Sun, went three for four and drove in five runs. Stasio had to leave in the second inning with a blister and Casey came on and struck out seven as he got the win.

The Social Club defeated Beau's Place, 9-5, with Pat Calabro hitting well and getting a save in relief.

Peter Gacia Insurance edged Van Oriola Plumbing and Heating, 8-6, as Mark Callahan, notching 12 strikeouts, pitched shutout ball over the last five innings after giving up six runs in the first. Robbie Josephs,

Snap 6-Game Losing Streak

Presidents Rack Up First League Win

Quincy's baseball team has been having a frustrating season but Monday the Presidents gained their first Suburban League win, 6-5, over Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

Quincy, with a 1-6 league record and a 2-8 overall mark, hosted Newton Wednesday, Friday will be at Silver Lake for a non-league game and Monday will be at Brookline.

The Presidents snapped a six-game losing streak Monday as Ray Coscia pitched a four-hitter.

One of the bright spots for Quincy this spring has been the hitting of Billy Deitsch, who is the number three batter in the league with a .458 average.

Last Friday Quincy was bombed by Weymouth South, 12-1, as it was held to one hit by two Weymouth pitchers.

Earlier in the week the Presidents were edged by Weymouth North, 4-3, as Weymouth pitcher Dave Morris pitched five-hit ball and picked three Quincy base runners.

Ken Ames pitched good ball for Quincy, also giving up only five hits.

Quincy scored first in the opening inning on Brian Donovan's triple and a passed ball but Weymouth came back with two in its half.

The Presidents regained the lead, 3-2, in the third when Bill Trubiano reached on an error, moved up on Donovan's fielder's choice and scored on Tom Brennan's infield out. Donovan scored on Deitsch's hit.

Weymouth scored the tying and winning runs in the bottom half of the third.

Junior Baseball

Remicks, Boston Gear Winners

Chris Bunker collected two triples and a double. Tom Ryan had a triple, double and single and John McGlame hit a triple to lead Remicks to a 9-3 win over Sears in the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

Steve Higgins pitched a five-hitter for the win.

Boston Gear outslugged Houghs Neck, 9-7, with Rich Pettinelli the winning pitcher and Mike Aboud the loser. Pettinelli struck out 11, bringing his total to 21 for two games.

For Greg Pettinelli had a two-run homer and a single. Jim Milano also had two hits and Dave Maimaron, Mike LaRoque, Bill Chaisso, Scott Miller, Malcolm MacDonald and rookie Darren Koss all had hits. Ron Reichert, Rich Dunham, Billy Heffernan, Dennis Napier, Steve Grasso, Jim Adams and Larry Taglieri all played well. Houghs Neck's Bill White was the batting star of the game with a grand slam homer and a two-run homer.

Babe Ruth League Opens

The Quincy Babe Ruth League will open its season Monday, May 14, at 8 p.m. at Kincaide Park.

Local 1139 Club, last season's champs, will play the National League title winner, Morrisette Legion. The teams will be led by Mike Gormley, manager of Local 1139, and Jack Kelly, Jr., manager of Morrisette.

Houghs Neck Legion will play the second place finishers, The Elks. Last year both teams tied for the lead with Houghs Neck winning a play-off game for first place.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Here's an amazing fact...Did you know there was once a baseball player who hit a home run on his first at bat in the big leagues - then played for 20 years and never hit another homer!... Hoyt Wilhelm hit a home run his first time up in the majors in 1952, and then played in the big leagues for 20 more years and never hit another homer!

Has any big league baseball team ever been able to stay in first place EVERY DAY from opening day till the end of a season?... Oddly enough, only 2 teams in history have accomplished this. They were the 1923 Giants and the 1927 Yankees.

Ever wonder what's the longest hole-in-one anyone ever made in golf?... The record is held by a man named Robert Mitera, who on the 10th hole of the Miracle Hills Golf Course in Omaha, Neb., on Oct. 7, 1965, made a hole-in-one of 444 yards!

I bet you didn't know...that Colman's has the largest choice of sports footwear in New England. All famous brands, for all sports, for men, women, and children. The women's footwear comes in women's sizes and lasts.

North On Short End In 11-9 Slugfest

North Quincy's baseball team lost a chance to move into first place in the Suburban League Monday when it dropped an 11-9 slugfest at Waltham.

The Raiders took a 5-2 record into Wednesday's game at Weymouth South.

North will play at Newton North Friday at 3:30 and will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

North's ace, Gary Farle, started on the mound Monday but had control troubles and the Raiders fell behind, 4-0, as Leo Graham relieved him. The Raiders battled back to tie the game at 5-5 and in the top of the sixth they scored four runs for a 9-5 lead. However, Waltham, one of the top hitting teams in the league, came back with six in its half.

North apparently scored in the top of the seventh and had its fastest runner on first only to have a questionable appeal play at third base nullify the run and end the game.

"The umpiring was very questionable and the appeal play proves what I mean," Coach Charles Bunker said. "My boy tripped over the third base bag but picked himself up and scored. Waltham appealed and the umpire called him out for not touching the base."

"How can you trip over the bag and not touch it? There were a number of questionable calls during the game but that was the one which really hurt."

Bob Biagini, back behind the plate, had two hits for the Raiders as did Brian Condon. Pinch hitter Larry Baker had a two-run single and Dave Nagle had a double.

Last Friday North defeated Weymouth North, 8-5, with Condon earning the win in relief of Greg Madden. The Raiders scored four runs in the sixth inning.

Biagini, bothered by a stiff elbow, moved to right field and in the fifth made a diving catch down the line which saved two runs. He also went three for three with a home run to move his average near .500. Pat Ennis did well filling in behind the plate.

Earlier in the week the Raiders upset Brockton, 5-4, with Bob Thomas in the hero's role. He made his first pitching appearance against the best hitting team in the league and turned in an excellent performance for 5 1/3 innings, yielding only three hits and striking out nine.

Ennis scored the winning run in the last inning on a wild throw by the Brockton catcher.

"Thomas was just great," Bunker said. "He hadn't pitched a single inning before that start and he is really an unsung hero. He was a real pitcher out there today. He got down for a while but came right back."

Condon and Glen Segalla had two hits apiece to spark the North attack.

Track Club Registration For Summer Season

The Quincy Track Club will hold registration for its summer program Saturday, May 12, at Veterans Memorial Stadium from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Boys and girls 6 to 18 are urged to sign up and boys and girls under 6 are free. Anyone interested in finding out more about the club can attend club practices any Tuesday or Thursday night at 6 at the stadium or call Joe Santo at 698-2959 or Patrick Murphy at 472-4544.

The QTC opened its season on a strong note last week, setting five club records and turning in many personal best times in an intramural meet at Veterans Stadium.

Tommy Walsh and Mike Williams set two records each and Torrie McNeil set another. Walsh, 9 years old, ran 13.2 and 31.0 in the dashes and Williams, 13, set records in the dashes in his age bracket with times of 11.2 and 25.2.

McNeil, 9, ran 33.5 for a new mark in the 220. Mike Ross, 13, also ran well, doing 11.9 and 27.5 in the dashes to finish behind Williams. Williams' long jumped 17-2 and Ross 15-6 for their best jumps ever.

Jamie McArdle recorded times of 13.9, 32.6 and 1:21.2 for the 100, 220 and 440 and also long jumped 13-1½. Maureen Roche ran 12.2 and 28.8 in the 100 and 220 and did 14-4½ in the long jump.

Terry Hamilton, 12, ran 12.8 in the dash and Geraldine Murphy ran her best time ever with a 31.6 in the 220 and did 12-1½ in the long jump. Kara Crehan cleared 4-10 in the high jump and Georgia Traficante, Sheila Barrett and Linda Kennedy all finished in 2:40.6 in the 800. Traficante also cleared 4-6 in the high jump. Bernadette Murphy ran 2:53.3 in the 800. Diane Lindentelzer did 2:57.7 in the 800 and Julie Manning ran 37.3 in the 220.

In other boys' action Harry Morash ran an outdoor best time of 2:41.5 in the 800, 13 seconds better than last year, and Kevin O'Brien running his first outdoor meet after a good cross country season, did 3:00.9 in the 800.

In road race competition Morash continued to dominate his age group and in the recent Temple Beth Avodah 10-kilometer race in Newton he ran 45:28, a full minute ahead of anyone in the 13 and under group.

Michelle Millane established a new club discus record with a toss of 123-5 in a recent meet and Coach Jeff Hennessy finished the Boston Marathon in 3 hours, 31 minutes, 34 seconds.

Two QTC girls did well representing their schools in the Falmouth High invitational meet. Karen McCarthy took fourths in the long jump and 200-meter, doing her best ever, 25.6, in the 200. She runs for Abp. Williams.

Michelle Millane, a freshman at North Quincy High, won the discus with a toss of 120-7.

Barbara Righini Ward 4 Candidate

Mrs. Barbara DiBona Righini of 110 Bunker Hill Lane, West Quincy, a member of the Quincy Park and Recreation Commission, announces her candidacy for the Ward 4 City Council seat.

"As a taxpayer and a homeowner," she said in her announcement, "I certainly have always wanted a balanced budget for our city and will endeavor to work for this as we keep a cap on our tax rate."

"I have always been an outspoken advocate of the neighborhood school concept. I am a firm believer in community involvement in the decision-making policies of our city."

"I am looking to listen to both sides of an issue and can bring the feelings and decisions of my constituency before the City Council."

The current councillor from Ward 4 is James A. Sheets, who is reportedly undecided on whether to run for a fourth term on the Council or get into the race for Mayor.

Mrs. Righini, who is married to Paul F. Righini Jr. and is the mother of four children, is employed as a bookkeeper at the Dave Dinger Ford agency in Braintree.

A life-long resident of West Quincy, she is a graduate of the Willard School, South (now Sterling) Junior High School and Quincy High School.

She was a founder and currently serves as secretary of the St. Moritz-Ward 4 Civic Association and is a member of the City Council's Land Use Subcommittee.

Mrs. Righini has been actively involved in the Willard School PTO and the Parents' Advisory Council of the Sterling Junior High School.

She helped to obtain the Robert Curry Little League Field, the summer recreational program at the MDC's Shea Rink and the "kiddie park" across the street from the St. Moritz Horseshoe Court.

Police Dept. 10% Under Strength

The Quincy Police Department is 10 per cent under strength and two city councillors are alarmed about it.

"It's a serious matter," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymond. "We are nearing the summer months when we have had problems in the past."

"Pretty soon we will have more vacancies than we will have police officers at the rate we're going," said Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

Raymond and Kelly introduced a resolution Monday night calling for the Council's Public Safety Committee to study the problem.

The resolution noted that the 1978-79 police budget funded 10 vacant positions and the 1979-80 budget calls for funding of 18 openings.

The city has been unable to fill the posts because of problems with Civil Service which, said Kelly and Raymond, "results in less police visibility in the streets of Quincy."

May 15 Final Day For High School Seniors

The final day of school for all seniors in good standing in North Quincy High School, Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical School is Tuesday, May 15, announces Arthur S. Woodward, director of secondary education.

Seniors are expected to complete a full day that date. By that time all academic obligations and all other senior responsibilities should be met in preparation for high school graduations the week of June 4.

Senior report cards are to be completed and in the schools ready for distribution May 25.

State House Report

King Signs 4% Cap, Vetoes Directory Assistance Bill

By RON IACOBucci

Quincy Sun Correspondent
Governor Edward J. King signed the 4% tax cap bill into law Tuesday.

The decision followed action by the Senate late last week to extend the Governor's deadline for a decision on the tax cap legislation.

Senator Paul Harold, in favor of the extension, "as a courtesy to the Governor". But he objected to the continued indecision by King noting "The Governor's delay will make it more difficult for cities and towns to apply any tax cap to their budgets," he noted.

According to informed sources in the Governor's office, the extension was requested by King in order to give him more time to prepare a proper message for broadcast to the public. The Governor was afforded TV time to deliver that message Tuesday evening.

When it became clear the House and Senate would not pass the 4% tax cap, King launched a state-wide petition drive to bring pressure on the legislators to change their votes. King could not budge the legislature and signed the 4% tax cap voting to continue the fight for property tax reduction next year.

State House observers who were watching for a senatorial veto did not see one this week, however. King vetoed legislation that would prevent the telephone company from charging its customers for directory assistance.

According to a source in the Governor's office, King vetoed the legislation so the General Court would not preempt the roll of the Department of Public Utilities in conducting hearings on the matter.

However, according to the same source, the Governor thinks it unlikely that his veto will be sustained.

In March the House and Senate voted overwhelmingly 107-43 and 34-5 respectively for legislation that would prohibit the DPU from making a decision and the telephone company from charging for directory assistance.

Locally, Sen. Paul Harold and Reps. Thomas Brownell, Robert

Cerasoli and Michael Morrissey voted in favor of the legislation.

In other action this week, the House and Senate enacted on a voice vote legislation filed by Rep. Robert Cerasoli that establishes parental responsibility for willful acts of minors. The bill provides that parents can be sued for up to $1,000 in civil damages; it does not, however, establish parental liability for minors in criminal matters.

The House voted 98-53 to defeat the press shield law. House bill 4794 would have protected journalists from attempts to force them to disclose their sources of confidential information. Representatives Brownell and Morrissey voted in favor of the press shield law and Cerasoli voted against.

Cerasoli indicated that he would "be in favor of a modified press shield law and that his vote against was because of the constitutional problems surrounding the legislation." Rep. Morrissey supports the press shield law because he believes "in protecting the press."

Pancake House Gets Trial 1 A.M. Closing

The City Licensing Board has granted a 1 a.m. closing time for a trial period of six months to the International House of Pancakes, 111 Washington St., Quincy.

The board acted on a request from the restaurant that it be allowed to remain open after midnight. The restaurant opens at 7 a.m.

Paul Morrison, owner of the establishment, estimated that the Pancake House could make an additional $20-25,000 a year if it were allowed to remain open two additional hours.

Assessors Board Chairman John Comer favored the additional hours for the restaurant, noting "The building is assessed on what it is making, and it is not making a proper income. Abatements are being given until it reaches the value we'd like to see on the business."

Opposing sentiments were voiced by Morris Hughes, a resident of the apartment complex located next to the restaurant at 91 Washington St. He complained of noise from the establishment late at night.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn told the board that he knew of no complaints registered with the Police Dept. against the restaurant.

The Quincy Sun

Quincy, Mass.

May 7, 1979

Dear Sirs,

Having moonlighted for several years cleaning ovens, I decided to embark on it as a full time business. Not knowing how successful I'd be and wanting to be conservative in my advertising expense, I chose the Quincy Sun as my prime advertising outlet.

In a period of less than three weeks and at an expense of only fifteen dollars, I received a total of 27 phone calls in response to my classified ad. All of these phone calls resulted in a customer and the total of new customers was almost double that figure when these people either told or referred me to their friends. I have the Quincy Sun to thank for over fifty new customers.

At the very least, I was enormously surprised and more than pleased at the result of my classified ad in the Quincy Sun. One thing I like most about advertising in the Quincy Sun is that my ad does not get "lost" in the paper. I have and would recommend the Quincy Sun as an advertising outlet for anyone with something to sell or a service to offer.

Love and Hope There Were Kisses, Hugs And A Few Hidden Tears

By PETER BARNICLE

There were kisses, hugs and a few hidden tears when Al Sinnott arrived back at 415 Belmont St., Wollaston, last Saturday.

A red carpet had been rolled out from the veranda to the curbing and big signs emblazoned the front of the house with messages like "Welcome Home, Dad", and "We Love You". All over the house were other messages of endearment.

W. Alfred Sinnott, 61, hadn't been gone all that long. He had been away at Carney Hospital in Dorchester for only three weeks.

But last week doctors told him he has terminal cancer and they give him about a year to live.

Relatives, friends and neighbors were on hand with words of encouragement for the retired Delta Airlines pilot. Sinnott ended a 27-year career in the air in March, 1978. Prior to piloting 727s for Delta he had flown for Northeast Airlines. Before getting into commercial

$80 Million Facility

Reaction To West Quincy Waste Plant Hot And Cold

DGS Associates, whose proposal to put an $80 million regional waste conversion plant in West Quincy was denounced by neighbors last week, received a warm endorsement from labor Tuesday.

"This association started off on the right foot by getting the community involved," said Carmine D'Olimpio, president of the Quincy South Shore Building Trades Council.

D'Olimpio had just signed an agreement under which DGS Associates guaranteed that work on the facility planned for a 20-acre site off Ricciuti Drive would be conducted under labor standards of the community.

A show of hands at a community meeting with DGS officials last week, however, indicated that the people who live near the dump site are not that enthusiastic over the facility.

West Quincy residents at the meeting expressed concern that gases released by the conversion process might be harmful to those who live nearby, particularly children.

Others said they felt that trucks bringing in the solid wastes to fuel the facility would be a nuisance and a danger on the West Quincy streets.

Announcement Due Soon

Major Development Plans Underway For Hancock Area

By TOM HENSHAW

The controversial East-West Connector across Hancock St. in downtown Quincy may soon be moved off the back burner.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said Tuesday that he is going to make an announcement in a week to 10 days of a major development in the John Hancock Parking Area, including at least one new major retailer.

"In order to make it a go," he said, "we're going to have to complete the East-West Connector."

That controversial road, connecting the proposed Burgin Parkway Extension and McGrath Highway under Hancock St., was shunted aside last year by protests from merchants who would be affected.

"The consultant is redrawing the road," said Tobin. "We don't know exactly where it is going right now but we have more flexibility than we had a year ago."

The Connector originally was supposed to go through the Kincaide Building but a recent decision by Sears Roebuck to leave Quincy opened the possibility of a more direct route through that building.

"Once we have redefined the route," said Tobin, "we will sit down with the merchants as we promised. With the flexibility we have now, the least amount of people are going to be affected."

"In doing something of this magnitude you know you're not going to please everyone all the time but we are going to please as many as we can."

Tobin said the development will encompass the entire Hancock parking area from Revere Rd. to Cottage Ave. to Chestnut St. and will include specialty shops as well as a major retailer.

"It's a very positive picture in Quincy now," said the Mayor. "When I first took over we were seeking developers. Now we have people coming to us."

One of those who came, he said, is the potential builder of an additional office building near the State Street South complex, the second such proposal in the past year.

"They informed me that they want little publicity about it," he said, "but they are working with an international corporation that would like to put its headquarters there."

"The building would not be built on speculation."

42 Teachers Granted Tenure

Forty-two Quincy teachers who have been granted tenure by the school committee were greeted at a "Tenure Reception" at the Squantum School Tuesday with the warning that tenure "is not an unqualified assurance of job security."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the group they had successfully completed their probationary period of three years and "in our judgment you have demonstrated the personal qualities, academic competence and pedagogical skills necessary in order to be elected to lead young people in their quest for becoming self-fulfilling individuals, contributing citizens and competent workers in a democratic society."

Creedon said that tenure means that in the judgment of the school administration those who were given tenure are committed to the profession of teaching.

"It means that in the past three years you have worked to make yourself a more knowledgeable and skillful practitioner," he said.

He called on the teachers to "work together to further define, develop and implement Quincy's design for learning."

"There are very few professions other than education where the practitioner is granted tenure," Creedon noted. He said the law was written to allow educators to pursue, free from undue political influence, the highest professional competence, skill and standards.

He said that in accepting tenure members of the group have "indicated the mission of this school system, that you are familiar with and committed to its student centered design for learning."

He cautioned that declining enrollments and the need to reduce teaching staffs must be faced as a reality and that tenure cannot be taken as "a ticket to job security."

Before Bond Issue

Condon, McGrath Seek Details On NQHS Delays

The proposed $1.5 million bond issue for the completion of the North Quincy High School project faced tough sledding - before the City Council's Finance Committee Tuesday night.

"If someone makes a motion to bond the full $1.5 million and someone seconds it, I will vote 'no,'" Councillor Joanne Condon told The Quincy Sun in an interview prior to the meeting.

"On the basis of what they've given us," said Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, "if I were asked for a vote, I would have to say 'no' to the $1.5 million."

"I doubt if the bond will be passed if one or both of us vote 'no.'"

The $1.5 million bond proposal, which would bring the cost of addition and renovation to the 52-year-old North Quincy High School to $17.6 million, breaks down like this:

- $600,000 to satisfy a delay claim by Blount Brothers, the general contractor.
- $350,000 for equipment for the school.
- $150,000 to keep Colletti Brothers, the architect, on the job.
- $375,000 for contingencies.

In a statement prepared for delivery at the meeting, Mrs. Condon, the councillor from Ward 6 where the high school is located, made the following recommendations to the Finance Committee:

- "That we consider each item within the bond separately and act independently on each dollar amount with the opportunity to amend the appropriation."
- "That we consider the question of bonding vs. appropriation, the long-range costs to the taxpayers and the fiscal situation of the city."
- "That we make an effort to address why the construction of the addition and now the renovation has had so many problems causing delays in the project and increased costs based on a large number of changes in the job."

Both Condon and McGrath said the massive amount of information presented to the committee by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon Tuesday, May 8, did not adequately document Blount Brothers' delay claims.

"The thing we got from Creedon and Co. was just a list of what the claims are," said McGrath. "We have no information on how they arrived at the $600,000 figure."

"What they gave us for the delay claim is a letter dated last Dec. 6 from Blount Brothers saying that because of a seven-month delay it's going to cost us additional money," said Condon.

"But documenting of the seven-month delay we find very, very sketchily presented and very contradictory."

She said it appeared that the delay claims "in some instances, are a duplication of the change orders."

McGrath said he found it difficult to understand how Blount Brothers could be awarded the general contract on Jan. 31, 1977, and report on March 5, 1977, that it was 55 days behind schedule.

"That's only 20 work days later," he said.

Condon noted that, under the "phase contract", the general contractor was not supposed to begin work until the steel was in place and the steel erection did not begin until Feb. 17, two and a half weeks after the contract was signed.

"You don't have to know anything about steel to see that the steel wasn't up," she said. "Why was the contract signed on Jan. 31?"

A request from Knotty Pine Restaurant, Inc., for extension of a common victualer-all alcoholic license from 518-526a to 524-530 Washington St., Quincy Point, was continued for two weeks by the City Licensing Board.

The original restaurant was destroyed by a three alarm fire Feb. 13, and owners would like to relocate in the same block.

Manager Peter Saxonis, who attended the meeting Tuesday with Atty. Edward Masterson, told the board that the restaurant at the proposed location would almost duplicate the layout of that of the previous site.

In addition, parking areas for up to eight more cars than at the previous site would be available on Lebanon St.

Saxonis said that City Councillor Daniel Raymond and Rep. Robert Cerasoli had wanted more parking for the restaurant.

The new location would bring the restaurant within closer proximity to St. Joseph's Church.

A state law specifies that an establishment within 500 feet of a church, hospital or playground must have the approval of the church, hospital, etc.

The Licensing Board told Saxonis to talk with Rev. Joseph Downey, of St. Joseph's, explaining all facets of the proposed relocation of the restaurant.

The final decision will depend on the outcome of the talks with Father Downey.

'Never Too Busy To Help Handicapped'

James Burke Honored By Cerebral Palsy South Shore Area

Recently retired Congressman James A. Burke was honored at a testimonial sponsored by the Massachusetts Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore area. Tribute was paid to him for his many contributions to the cause of those afflicted by cerebral palsy and other handicapping disabilities.

At the dinner at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Senate Counsel James R. McIntyre, second vice president of the association, reminded the guests that "throughout his 20 years in Congress he [Burke] was never too busy to help the handicapped."

Arthur Ciampa, executive director, said that many times Burke had interceded with the federal government on behalf of the Cerebral Palsy Association.

He noted that the clinic at 105 Adams St., Quincy, was built through a grant under the Hill-Burton Act, obtained through Burke's intercession. The Congressman also obtained many operating funds for the day-to-day therapeutic activities at the clinic.

A highlight of the evening was the presentation of a number of gifts to the former Congressman by adults in the CP woodworking and activities program. The gifts, all handmade, included paintings, coat racks, bookcases and ceramic pieces.

They were presented by John Cicerone, Nancy Jesseau, Frank Calcagni, Stephen Jones, Laurence Milten, Gail Capacioli, Donna Marie Miles, Darrell Gleck and Stanley Dowell.

Jack Wier, who has made outstanding progress as a result of the therapeutic programs at the clinic, thanked Burke for his positive help to those afflicted with cerebral palsy.

"It is one of the happiest days of my life to receive so many gifts and accolades from the people I was fortunate enough to assist," Burke said.

Sabina Kavanagh, first vice president, was chairman of the dinner committee. Other members of the committee were Anthony Famigletti, Joseph Donahue, John Mahoney, Gerald Gherardi and James R. McIntyre.

CEREBRAL PALSY OF the South Shore honored former Congressman James A. Burke for his assistance in obtaining federal funds for the agency during his years in Congress. The event was held at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Seated, from left are Sabina Kavanagh, first vice president of the association and chairwoman of the dinner committee; Dr. Charles D. Merrill, association directors; Mrs. Burke and Congressman Burke. Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney D.D.S.

A well-nourished body includes well-nourished hair, skin and teeth, and a generally healthy look. Remember that not only should good foods and a balanced diet be chosen, but water is also important to your health. Your diet should include adequate amounts of water daily. Lack of exercise, fresh air and sunshine shows up first in dull skin and hair. The best overall beauty treatment is to be outdoors for at least a short time every day and do something to give yourself some vigorous exercise. Good oral hygiene and regular visits to your family dentist can help prevent tooth decay and keep your mouth looking attractive and healthy. At the office of DR. DANIEL P. SWEENEY, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton, we stress preventive dentistry; through regular checkups we can find small developing problems and correct them before they become serious ones. Call our office at 698-3636 for an appointment at your convenience. Most dental insurance plans, Master Charge and Visa are honored.

DENTAL TIP:
A Periodontist is a dentist trained in the specialty of treatment and prevention of gum disease.

HERE'S HOW YOUR HOME CAN PAY FOR ITS OWN IMPROVEMENTS.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like converting your basement into a room your whole family can eat, play, and relax in.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and how much you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like making your dreamhouse more than just a day dream.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Cans For Recycling

Broad Meadows Students Collect 6 Tons Of Aluminum

If 9th grade students at Broad Meadows Junior High School placed all the aluminum cans they've recycled end-to-end, the cans would encircle their school building more than 75 times.

Or the cans would stretch, end-to-end, from Quincy to Boston and back again.

Well into their third aluminum recycling season, the Broad Meadows students have turned in a total of six tons of aluminum to the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company, which pays 20 cents per pound for used aluminum. The students have helped clean up the streets, parks and beaches in Quincy, and they have earned several thousand dollars for their ninth grade end-of-year activities.

The recycling project has been operating under the guidance of science teacher Peter Swanson, who is also the faculty advisor to the Student Advisory Board.

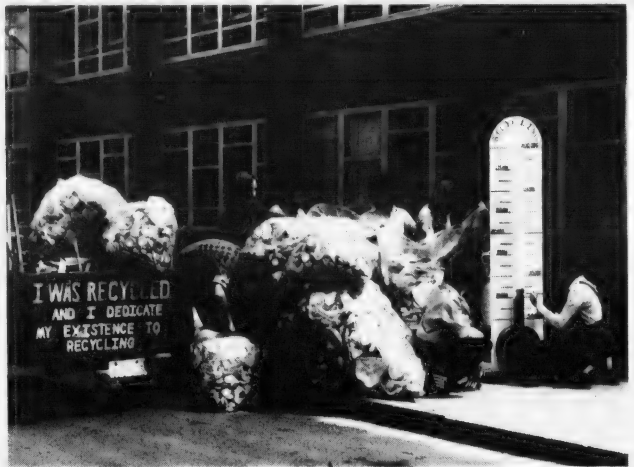

"We began recycling aluminum two years ago as part of a science lesson," Swanson said, "and litter reduction and energy savings are still a primary motivation for us. The money we earn helps pay for the ninth grade dinner-dance and away-day, and that is also a big incentive."

For the third year in a row, Broad Meadows students began bringing used aluminum to school at the end of March, and they will continue to pick up and recycle seemingly endless quantities of aluminum until the end of May. In the past six weeks alone, the students have recycled the equivalent of 33,000 aluminum beverage cans.

Most of the students are secretive about their best sources of aluminum, but few streets, parks and beaches in Quincy are left untouched every spring by the ambitious students. Besides aluminum beverage cans, the students save household aluminum foil, frozen food trays and pie plates from their kitchens and they collect used aluminum from their neighbors and relatives.

Some parents and friends contribute scraps of aluminum siding, gutters, lawn furniture

NINTH GRADERS AT Broad Meadows Junior High School have recycled the equivalent of 33,000 aluminum beverage cans in the past six weeks, bringing their two-and-a-half year total to more than six tons of aluminum. The Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Company pays the students 20 cents per pound for all-aluminum beverage cans, household foil, frozen food trays and snack containers, as well as larger aluminum items such as siding, gutters, storm door and window frames and lawn furniture tubing.

tubing and even some de-commissioned aluminum boat shells.

The ninth graders collect aluminum from other students at the beginning of every school day, and when they have saved several hundred pounds, they load it onto a small trailer. The trailer was assembled by a shop class two years ago for use in the recycling project, and is made entirely of recycled materials.

Hitched to the back of Swanson's car, the trailer transports the aluminum to the Reynolds mobile unit at its bi-weekly stops in Braintree, or to the Reynolds Aluminum Recycling Center in Newton.

This spring, Reynolds increased the amount it pays for used aluminum from 17 to 20 cents per pound, and if the past two years are any indication, the Broad Meadows recyclers will turn in more aluminum and they will also earn more money than ever before.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Rarely is a clothing designer simply a clothing designer any more. Designers are trying their hand at cosmetics, sunglasses and jewelry. They would be much more appropriately called fashion designers, for they are setting the fashion in many different areas. Among the big names in clothing design who are now bringing out lines of jewelry are Givenchy, Christian Dior, Yves St. Laurent, Anne Klein and Diane Von Furstenberg. While jewelers may carry one or more of these lines, or none, most can provide comparable designs at a wider variety of prices.

We handle jewelry in a wide range of prices at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. June is the month of the pearl, the alexandrite and the moonstone, all signifying health and longevity. Though pearls are found in all colors, the most popular are those with a creamy roseate tint. The alexandrite, found only in Ceylon and the Urals, has the remarkable property of two colors, green by day, an amethystine red by candlelight. The depth and strength of the colors make this stone exceptionally attractive as a ring for men. See our selection for Father's Day gifts.

Christian Science Lecture On Spiritual Values

A Christian Science lecturer will take a radical stand in behalf of spiritual values and their importance to life.

Patricia Angus Fleming of Wellington, New Zealand, turns repeatedly to the Bible in her lecture "Eternity Now," for reassurance that happiness need not come and go at the whim of past or future events.

The lecturer quotes the New Testament demand "Now is the accepted time" to indicate that happiness and goodness can be experienced immediately.

The lecture will be given at First Parish Unitarian Church, Milton Friday at 8 p.m. and is sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Quincy.

Mrs. Fleming, who is a member of the Board of Lectureship of The First Church.

PATRICIA FLEMING

of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts, will be introduced by Brooks Peek, Assistant Sunday School Superintendent.

Mental Health Center Opens New Facility

Wollaston II, a day treatment center, operated by the South Shore Mental Health Center (SSMHC) has opened its new facility at 1620 Hancock St., Quincy.

The center was made possible by newly available state funds designated for the treatment of emotionally disturbed in local community centers. The community-based care focuses on prevention of hospitalization.

The Wollaston II program is one of only a few psychiatric day treatment programs nationally, and the only one in this state. It does no individual therapy but concentrates exclusively on group and family therapy.

Program director Ellen Ratner said the project obtained its first support from the Wollaston Congregational Church where the center was originally located.

The new center will be open five days a week during conventional working hours. The center runs a thrift shop, participates in SSMHC's program of supervised apartment living and trains psychiatric health professionals at all levels. These programs are scheduled to expand with the new funds, and more programs, such as a client run business, are planned, Radner said.

Spring Brings Schemes

No single group is more vulnerable to consumer fraud than the elderly.

Sadly, those on fixed, limited incomes, who are most tempted by glib promises, are exactly those who can least afford to be victimized. To protect our elderly citizens from sharp con artists, shady promoters and fast-talking salesmen should be a first priority.

To help protect you from these frauds, we are offering free the booklet "Target THE ELDERLY" sponsored by the Consumer Affairs Foundation. The booklet covers such subjects as:

- Work at Home Schemes
- Charity Frauds
- Lonely Hearts Frauds
- Hearing Aid Fraud
- Health Quackery
- and other frauds and schemes

A Letter From One Of Our Many Satisfied Customers

Frank Evans Company, Inc.
343 Newport Avenue
Wollaston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Evans:

April 23, 1979
Just a line to thank you so much for beautifying our home in a manner that makes us the envy of the entire neighborhood!! We would like to go on record by letting you know how much we appreciate the courteous manner in which the men from your Company handled the entire situation.

We were never disturbed in any way by them, their industriousness was remarked about in the community (they arrived early and worked late) and from a housewife's point of view, they could teach my husband a lesson or two - they even swept up and cleaned up all of the shavings, etc., that accompany such a project.

It was a pleasure to do business with you all - and you may feel confident that word of mouth travels very quickly.

Thank you again, and our special thanks to Rick, the foreman and Mike the helper and to yourself and your brother... a real nice group of gentlemen.

P.S. - I'm also glad I took advantage of calling, after seeing your ad in the Quincy Sun. We know we have a quality job - done by a Grade "A" Company!

Sincerely,

License Board Hears Complaints On Scrap Yard

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

P.D.M., Inc., a scrap yard at 175 Intervale St., South Quincy, was ordered to appear before the Quincy Licensing Board in two weeks to show cause why their license should not be revoked.

The board brought complaints against the company for operating beyond the confines of the building, failing to fence in the area according to an agreement made at a previous hearing, and extending a building without a permit.

In addition, Old Colony Crushed Stone and Construction Co. of Quincy, a major abutter to P.D.M., also registered complaints.

Old Colony representative Raymond Kyrpa told the board of metal being piled against their fence, material being improperly stored, and other unsightly and dangerous operations which, he said, adversely affect Old Colony.

He said he has spoken to P.D.M. representatives on 10 occasions over the past two years and was assured the area would be cleaned up, but to no avail.

Area residents Selma and Edgar Bookman also spoke of P.D.M. cars being in the middle of a right of way, of improper fencing and having a sign not licensed by the board.

Fire and Police Department pictures taken at the scrap yard were shown to board members.

Dr. Samuel Solomon, City Health Commissioner said an inspector from the Health Department toured the yard May 14, and a report was made that a part of the area was being cleaned up.

Henry P. Gregoire, of P.D.M., said of visual complaints against the yard, "Scrap is part of our commodity." He said that he has repaired several times damage to the Old Colony fence. Gregoire expressed a desire to remedy complaints against the company.

A motion was made to conclude and dismiss the hearing and send a new notice for P.D.M. to appear May 29, and show cause why the license should not be revoked.

A common victualer license was granted to Stephen K. Richmond for Sub Chef, corner of Hobart St., and Newport Ave., Wollaston. Hours of operation will be 6 a.m. to 10 p.m., seven days a week.

The license was issued subject to a letter from Wendy's Restaurant, also due to locate in the area, that they had no opposition to Sub Chef. Wendy's has spoken of intentions of making a large investment in the area. Both locations are owned by Thomas Curtis, owner of Curtis Farms.

Councillor John J. Lydon spoke on behalf of Richmond, who operates Pizza Chefs on Beale St. and in Quincy Square.

Lydon cited the need of employees of Pneumatic Scale, one of the city's largest employers, for a breakfast and lunch operation in the immediate area.

He deemed Richmond, "a good businessman for the city of Quincy."

In other action, the Licensing Board:

- Granted a request for a change of manager of Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center from James Mastrantonio to John P. Brown.

- Granted a permit to the Quincy Track Club to conduct a tag day June 15-16, [rain date June 22 and 23], for fund raising purposes.

- Granted a request for a change of manager of Jenard, Inc., [Presidential Pub], 29 Temple St., Quincy, from Michael J. Slattery to his brother, Paul B. Slattery, president of the corporation.

- Continued for two weeks a request from Joseph R. Eng for a common victualer license for Dragon Hut [formerly The Cove], and Quincy Clam Bar, 303 Beach St., Wollaston.

- Granted a license for a Craft & Collectable Show and Sale to the Quincy Historical Society for June 9, [rain date June 10].

- Granted a one-day wine and malt license to St. John's Church for its annual St. Anthony's Fiesta June 9, 5-10 p.m., and June 10, 1-10 p.m.

- Granted a license to the North Quincy Youth Basketball group for a tag day May 18 and 19, [rain date May 25 and 26].

No Tuition Hike At Quincy Junior College

Dr. Edward Pierce, president, announces that for the seventh consecutive year Quincy Junior College will not raise tuition.

"We are pleased to be able to again keep the cost of Quincy Junior College as low as possible," he said. "It is important that higher education remain at an affordable level. By good management and by seeking outside funding sources, the college is able, even in light of rising costs, to offer a college education at $300 a semester for Quincy residents and $350 for non-residents," he added.

Asked why other colleges continue to raise tuition and QJC has not, Dr. Pierce responded by saying that QJC as a public municipal institution has always been cost conscious.

"Thus, while most schools are only now trying to manage their resources better, Quincy Junior College has always, throughout its existence, and with the guidance of the School Committee, practiced sound financial management and continuous re-examination of needed expenses."

Quincy Junior College is still accepting applications for full-time studies for fall 1979. Interested - call the Admissions Office 786-8777.

QHS Band Moves Visitor

Sometimes you find yourself thinking that someday we'll run out of young talented musicians.

You begin to worry that we might be sentenced to listening to nothing but ear-splitting electric guitars and jumping gyrating singers some of whom look like a good hot bath might kill them.

But if you happened to be in front of City Hall one morning last week, you'd stop worrying. You would have known for sure that there are some real talented young musicians around.

The Quincy High School "Marching Presidents" band has a lot of them. Somewhere around 90. (North Quincy's High School band has a lot of them, too.)

The occasion last week in front of City Hall was the appearance of a visiting dignitary Ehud Olmert, a member of the Israeli Knesset and a close friend of Prime Minister Begin.

He and his wife, Aliza had come to Quincy to visit the Quincy public school system as part of Project LINC's community based program.

While here, they got a chance to chat with students and were quite impressed with their knowledge of Middle East affairs.

And, the Olmerts were quite impressed and moved by the young QHS musicians.

The band played both the American and Israeli national anthems directed by Michael Cahill. The musicians had only gotten the Israeli anthem music the afternoon before had never seen it before.

At a luncheon later Olmert confided that the QHS band had played the Israeli anthem better than the renowned Marine Corps band had earlier in Washington.

And, that's quite a compliment to the young musicians and to Cahill.

Not only did the Olmerts appreciate the music but they also enjoyed a luncheon at the Three Seasons Restaurant at the Quincy Vo-Tech School prepared by the school's culinary arts department. The luncheon, appropriately, was Kosher.

And Mayor Arthur Tobin made Olmert an honorary citizen of Quincy. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon presented Olmert with a copy of "Quincy 350 Years" published in 1974 on the 350th anniversary of the founding of what is now Quincy.

Olmert seemed to get the biggest kick out of a presentation from Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall: a citation and a badge making him an honorary deputy sheriff.

POLITICAL WATCHERS are just about convinced that James Sheets will not run for mayor this year. Sheets, at last report, was still thinking it over.

But political observers think if he were going to run he would have made the announcement by now. Time is running out to mount an effective campaign and to raise the estimated $50,000 to $70,000 to finance one.

THOSE "Fagerlund" bumper stickers you see belong to John Fagerlund, son of Elmer (Mike) Fagerlund, assessor chairman under Mayor Joseph LaRaia. Young Fagerlund reportedly is running for the City Council but hasn't decided yet to go for the Ward 4 or an at-large seat.

AMONG THE 170 runners in the five-mile "Run For Your Life" road race to benefit Quincy Hospital were Senator Paul Harold and Richard J. Koch, Jr., candidate for City council at-large. Harold claims he was the first elected official to finish and young Koch claims No. 1 spot among candidates.

THREE LOCAL FIGURES got special attention at the recent Massachusetts Legislators Association annual meeting at the Parker House roof. Only a few attending were introduced including: former Congressman James Burke, Joseph Grossman, former governor's councillor and City Councillor Joseph Brett, former president of the association. Among those attending was a familiar name out of Quincy's political past: Carter Lee. He's now living in the Worcester area.

Israeli O Students K

By PETER BARNICLE

The informality encountered in the American educational system has made a deep impression on Ehud Olmert, 28-year-old member of the Israeli Knesset who, with his wife, visited Quincy during the past week.

"I had the privilege of talking with some of the Quincy high school students today and was very impressed with their knowledge of affairs in the Middle East," he said in an interview. "I found it surprising. They are very mature."

He said that he has been in the United States on political missions for his government several times before, but this time during a three week visit has had time to pursue some of his own interests.

Olmert and his wife, Aliza, were greeted in Quincy Sq. by the Quincy High School Band, recently returned from their triumph at Niagara Falls. The band played the national anthems of both countries on the steps of the United First Parish Church. Mayor Arthur Tobin, School Supt. Lawrence P. Creedon, school committee

Citywide Parents Council Oppose Closing Of 4 Schools

Editor: The Quincy Sun:

The plan currently being pursued by the School Committee to close four of Quincy's Elementary Schools: Cranch, Hunting, Great Hill and Myles Standish, whose enrollments are projected to be below 150 in 1981 is totally unacceptable to the Quincy City Wide Parents Council.

The projected savings, if any, is not worth the disruption that will be created in these neighborhoods. There is no clear commensurate advantage either to the City or to these school communities by the adoption of such a plan.

The neighborhood school is an integral part of each community. It provides the cohesive bond for neighborhood relationships and is an identification mark for that neighborhood -- some going back to the turn of the century. They are part of Quincy's Heritage.

A neighborhood school has a positive affect on property values, the loss of such will have a negative affect. These four schools have a right to their school so long as the neighborhood school system remains in Quincy.

We ask the School Department to show us the advantages: Economic, Social, and Educational by closing schools. We ask that the following questions be considered when pursuing any plan:

1. Economic - Will there be realistic economic savings to the taxpayer? How much?
2. Social - What will be done with the school after closing? Who will determine where the children will go? Will the neighborhood have an alternative community center?
3. Energy - Will fuel be available for transportation - at what cost? Will fuel oil be available - at what cost? If an alternative source of energy is used in the future e.g. coal or solar energy - can the school be converted without being rebuilt?
4. Alternative Use - Can schools be utilized for administrative and educational purposes at the same time? Can it effectively function?

Because of the declining enrollment, we recognize that schools may have to be closed in the future, but at this time we do feel that the present plan for the closing of these four schools serves no purpose.

The school committee has to make some far reaching decisions - difficult decisions. The declining enrollment affects all schools and not just four elementary schools. The entire school system must be addressed - School, Teachers, and Administrative Staff.

We ask our School Committee to weigh all the alternatives. Have the courage to be more creative and innovative - give Quincy a plan that we can be proud of and will continue to provide the quality of education for our children to which we are accustomed.

A Tribute To Mothers

An open letter to Mothers:

Attention! Mothers -- one and all! For you are being honored on this dedicated day, especially for you, and you alone. And why not? How else can one demonstrate the respect and appreciation you deserve, for all the untiring care and devotion you have bestowed on us.

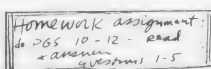

From infancy to adulthood you have nurtured us, physically, mentally and spiritually. And because you provide and thrive on a milk blend of tender love, kindness and patience; we in turn bloom into creative and radiant human flowers.

Now and then, we may fail you and not come to your expectations; but this human flaw doesn't stop you from loving us. Your only reward is that we try to live a normal, healthy and harmonious life; the best we know how.

In the language of flowers, carnations are symbolic for Mother's Day. The living are presented with red carnations and the dead are arrayed with white distinction. But in the language of the living, Motherhood should be esteemed by everyone with true flowers of Love and Attention. "now and always."

Makes Visit

Official Impressed With Quincy Knowledge Of Middle East Affairs

members John Sullivan and Mary Collins along with members of the Jewish community welcomed them to the city.

After the brief ceremonies the Mayor made the Israeli visitor an honorary citizen of Quincy.

Olmert said he and his wife were interested in innovative education in elementary and secondary schools and for this reason requested that their tour include Quincy.

"It was by my own request that we came to this area," Olmert said. "Anybody who has heard about the history of your country would naturally pick this area to visit. Three presidents were born in this county and the Constitution of the United States originated here."

Olmert, who was first elected to the Knesset in 1973 as youngest member of the parliament, said that America and Israel have been "intimately linked" throughout the years.

"It is only natural for us to be interested in your history, the political processes of the present time, and the variety of elements which go to form public opinion. It is all part of the very unique relationship which we have had with the United States.

"We might, at time, have differences," he continued, "But beyond these differences we share common sensitivities to moral issues. We feel deeply about the support we have received from the American people. This, in part, should explain why an Israeli public official would be interested in American history and all its manifestations."

He said he had visited Washington, San Francisco, New Orleans and Denver, Colo., but considered Quincy the "central point" of his present visit to the U.S.

The visit was arranged by Michael Hurley, director of Project LINC, and the Center for International Visitors in Boston, working with the U.S. State Department.

Olmert was most enthusiastic about the opportunity to talk with Quincy students and openly answered a broad range of questions about his homeland.

Both he and his wife have served in the Israeli army. He was wounded early in the 1973 struggle with Egypt and was later assigned as a correspondent with the Israeli forces which broke through to the Suez Canal.

Mrs. Olmert expressed interest in the open classroom concept and said that it is still in an experimental stage in Israel. She is also interested in the Montessori system.

Following a visit to North Quincy and Quincy High School the visitors were guests of Dr. Crendon at a luncheon in the Three Seasons Restaurant at Vocational Technical School.

Guests included Patricia Talon, vice chairwoman of the school committee, school committee member Mary Collins, Judge Lewis Whitman of Quincy District Court, Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Rabbi Jacob Mann of Beth Israel Synagogue and members of the Jewish community.

At the luncheon Sheriff Marshall presented Olmert with a citation naming him a deputy sheriff of Norfolk County.

500 Increase In School Enrollment

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard announced that nearly 1,700 first graders will be starting school in the Fall of 1953, bringing the total enrollment to more than 13,300, an increase of 500.

Dr. Gossard said some of the crowding in the Quincy schools is expected to be relieved when the new four-room wing of the Snug Harbor School is ready for occupancy, probably at Christmastime.

Until then, he said, three classes from Snug Harbor would be bused to the Hunting School and the basement library at the Wollaston School and the auditorium at the Merrymount would continue as classrooms.

BROAD MEADOWS TITLE CLOUDY

Assistant City Solicitor Douglas A. Randall stunned city officials when he gave the opinion that the city's title of 136 acres of land in Broad Meadows is in doubt.

The city was entertaining two proposals to purchase part of the city-owned land in the area.

One was an offer of $500 an acre for 55 acres by Grossman Enterprises, which was planning to move to more spacious headquarters from its current location at 130 Granite St.

The other was from Frederick Bailey and Gilbert Mason, who were offering $2,000 for 11 acres of land on which they operated a golf driving range under a lease due to expire in May, 1962.

Meanwhile, John Marshall of the State School Building Assistance Commission was in town to investigate the Broad Meadows area as the possible site for a proposed new junior high school.

COUNCIL VOTES PARKING

The City Council instructed City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. to apply for authority to borrow $275,000 outside the debt limit to acquire land for an addition to the east side parking lot.

The Council vote was 6-1 with Councillor David J. Crowley in opposition.

State House Report

King Gets Wrong Number On Telephone Directory Assistance

By RON IACOBucci
Quincy Sun Correspondent

You can still call free for directory assistance.

The Massachusetts legislature Monday voted to override Governor Edward J. King's veto of a bill banning the telephone company from charging its customers for directory assistance calls.

King vetoed the bill last week so that the DPU and not the legislature could make the decision on charging for 411 service. At the time of the veto, King did not believe he had the votes in the legislature to sustain his action.

However, last Wednesday the House narrowly upheld King's veto by a vote of 95-52. Fifty votes or one-third plus one of those voting were needed to sustain the Governor's action.

But on Monday the House reversed its earlier decision and voted 100-49 to override the Governor's veto. King lost by only two votes in the House. In an unusual move the Senate voted later that day 32-5 to override the veto.

Locally, Representatives Thomas Brownell, Robert Cerasoli and Michael Morrissey consistently voted to override the Governor's veto. On the Senate side, Senator Paul Harold, a co-sponsor of the legislation, voted for the override.

Cerasoli voted to take the decision away from the DPU because, "I feel very strongly that the 411 service should remain free of charge." "The Governor definitely had the wrong number on this measure," Morrissey said he believes that "this is a service the phone company should be providing."

"The action taken by the legislature will make certain that the phone company will always offer 411 service free of charge."

Brownell criticized the request by the phone company as a "back door approach to a rate increase. Considering that the size of print in its telephone books, many elderly and disabled consider the 411 service a necessity."

In another action, the House set new limits on State funded abortions.

The U.S. Supreme court ruling Monday that it would not interfere with the implementation of a Massachusetts law severely limiting the number of women receiving Medicaid whose abortions could be paid for by the state cleared the way for the House to vote 115-36 for limiting the use of state funds to aviation he had been a Navy pilot, flying carrier-based aircraft.

The homecoming was arranged by Sinnott's wife, Mary, and his three daughters, Jayne, 22, Kathleen, 21, and Lorraine, 19. A son, John, 24, was visiting his in-laws in New Hampshire.

"Al is resigned to what has been told to him. He has been able to accept it," Mrs. Sinnott said.

However, the family is not completely resigned and has already started making inquiries concerning the latest advances in medical research which might help a cancer patient.

Mrs. Sinnott said she has been told about a substance called "interferin" which is available in Sweden, but not in the United States.

"I don't know anything about it as yet, except that some doctors think it is very helpful in certain cases," Mrs. Sinnott said. "If we have to we will go to Sweden."

Inquiries disclosed that "interferin" is a protein substance which occurs naturally in the body. The Karol Insk Institute of Stockholm has done considerable work with it and reports a high survival rate.

According to the American Cancer Society the survival rate over a three year period has been about 70 percent, compared with a 10 to 30 percent expectancy on patients treated by surgery alone.

The Cancer Society has already provided more than $2 million for research into the effectiveness of the substance in fighting cancer.

Research projects are being carried out at Yale University School of Medicine, University of Wisconsin Center for Health Sciences, UCLA Center for Health Services, Mt. Sinai School of Medicine, N.Y., Johns Hopkins Oncology School of Medicine, Baltimore, and several other research centers.

QHS 'Marching Presidents' First Place Winner At Ontario Competition

Quincy High School "Marching Presidents" Band won first place among 15 competing high school musical units at the International Blossom Festival at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

On arrival back in Quincy the band was met by a police detail which escorted them down Hancock St. to the school where the three-foot high trophy is being displayed.

The grand parade climaxing the week's activities was televised nationally in Canada where the festival is comparable to the Cherry Blossom Festival held in Washington, D.C.

Following the parade the Quincy band members were guests with other participating musicians at a dance at Fort Niagara Arena where the winners were announced.

Michael J. Cahill, director of the band, accepted the trophy while band members and chaplains cheered and accepted the applause of more than 3,000 in attendance.

Cahill drew an additional round of cheers when he opened his blazer and displayed a shirt confidentially reading "We Are Number One Band at Niagara Falls, Canada".

In addition to a rigorous rehearsal and travel schedule the student musicians were able to enjoy extensive sightseeing on both the American and Canadian side of the famed Falls.

Competing against the Quincy band were units from Bloomfield, N.J.; Canfield, Ohio; Elkton, Md.; Grand Rapids, Mich., and other communities throughout the eastern part of the country.

This was the second time Quincy took part in the festival. In 1976 the band placed second in the competition.

Hot And Cold Reaction To West Quincy Waste Plant

City Councillor James A. Sheets called the opposition to the plant "almost total."

"I don't think the developers will pursue it any further," he said.

Charles Silva, the former Quincy boy who is the S in DGS, conceded that out of 35 people who voted at the meeting only three raised their hands in favor of the project.

"But it was only an informational meeting," he said. "The concept is too much to present and be understood in the limited amount of time we had."

Silva said his group plans to go back to the St. Moritz Association at a later date to explain the facility further and seek their support.

"The people who live near the site should understand that this will not be harmful," he said. "They are suffering more from the landfill that is there now."

The facility would accept some 550,000 tons of solid waste material a year from Quincy and surrounding towns and convert it into electric energy.

Silva said that Quincy, which now loses about $110,000 a year on the operation of a dump in the same area, would net more than $1 million annually as the host community of the facility.

Trucks bringing waste to the facility, he said, answering one objection by West Quincy residents, would not have to use secondary roads in Quincy but reach the site directly from the Southeast Expressway.

Morrissey Seeks Jet Noise Monitor In Squantum

Legislation directing Massport to construct a noise monitoring station in Squantum has been filed by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy].

"Because of the increased number of flights over the Squantum area we are asking that Massport tie this area into the noise monitoring network," Morrissey said.

He pointed out Squantum is one of the areas hardest hit by the noise from aircraft and the monitoring station would permit accurate readings.

"It's our only chance to fight Massport - with their own statistics," he said.

A hearing on the bill was held by the transportation committee on Wednesday.

Condon To Seek Ward 6 Second Term

Joanne Condon, only the second woman ever to serve on the Quincy City Council, has announced her candidacy for reelection to a second two-year term from Ward 6.

"With your help and support," she told 200 supporters in North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, "a lot has been accomplished but a great deal more remains to be done in Ward 6."

"When I campaigned two years ago, I stressed the importance of Community Development Block Grant funding to the revitalization of our ward."

"As of July 1, North Quincy will be receiving the largest share, about $550,000, of the next CDBG. Thus we can continue an even more comprehensive program of neighborhood and business revitalization."

"I also stressed the importance of community input in all development proposals affecting Ward 6."

"For the past two years, I have scheduled numerous public hearings on proposals and sent many communications to insure that residents are actively involved in all new proposals."

"I look forward to continuing service to the residents of Ward 6."

Mrs. Condon, 39, who was one of the founders of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, is employed as administrative assistant for the Quincy Community Action Organization.

A graduate of North Quincy High School, she has been active in the Sacred Heart School PTO and the Mothers Guilds of Boston College High School and Fonthonne Academy.

She lives at 70 Bototh St., Atlantic, with her husband Thomas. They have three children.

When Mrs. Condon was elected to her first term in 1977 she was the first woman on the City Council since Edna B. Austin retired in 1959.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, and City Councillor Stephen McGrath, will present art association awards to the scholarship and contest winners at 8:30 p.m.

The public is invited. Tickets will be available at the door.

On the day of the celebration, also being held at Adams Academy, the Historical Society will sell garden and house plants as part of its second annual plant sale. Proceeds will help support the society's public education program.

Earle Throws 2-Hitter

North Blanks Newton N., Quincy Finds Rough Going

The North Quincy baseball team, still hoping for at least a second place finish in the Suburban League, took a 6-3 record into Tuesday's game with Cambridge Rindge and Latin (the game was rained out Monday) and last night (Wednesday) the Raiders faced Quincy.

North will host Brookline Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field and Wednesday will play at Brockton at 3:30.

Meanwhile, Quincy continues to find rough going and was 1-7 in the league and 2-9 overall going into Tuesday's game at Brookline. Friday the Presidents will host Brockton under the lights at 7:30 at Adams Field, Monday will play at Waltham at 3:30 and Wednesday will be home to Weymouth North at 3:30. Next Thursday night Quincy will face Weymouth South under the lights at 7:30 at Adams.

North's standout pitcher, Gary Earle, pitched a two-hitter to lead the Raiders over Newton North, 5-0, last Friday. He struck out 11 in his first shut out and fourth win.

North clinched the win with three runs in the second. Bob Biagini, Dave Nagle and Dave King had two hits apiece and Earle and Larry Baker one each.

Earlier in the week North dropped a 9-7 slugfest to Weymouth South when a crucial third inning double error enabled Weymouth to score four runs.

South took a 3-0 first inning lead but North, with Baker hitting a home run, tied it up in the second. Jim Hatfield hit a two-run homer for Weymouth in the third and, with the bases loaded, a ground ball went through the second baseman and continued through the center fielder and all four runs scored. North rallied for four runs in the fourth but it was too little and too late.

Quincy was defeated by Newton North, 7-1, when Newton scored three in the first inning.

The one bright spot for the Presidents was a three-inning no-hit relief performance by Mike Crowley, who struck out four and didn't issue a walk.

Central Track Teams Defeat Point

The Central Junior High boys and girls' track teams defeated Point last week, but Larry Keough's Point boys gave Central a battle before bowing, 47-34.

For Point Chris McCray won the shot put and 100, Richard Parker on the long jump, Charlie Kerr the 45-yard low hurdles and the 880 relay team of McCray, Parker, Governor and Joe Palluccio won.

Adam McGhee was second in the 440, Palluccio was second in the 880, Bill Bell third in the 880 and Parker third in the 100.

Ralph Koelsch's Central girls rolled to a 68-13 win as Mary Kate

Kennedy won the 100 and high jump and anchored the winning relay team.

A number of school records were broken, including Jackie McLaughlin in the 440 (1:08.9); Eileen Crehan in the 880 (2:43.5); Michelle Millane in the shot put (33-5), and the two-lap relay team of Nancy McDonald, Sheila Barrett, Mary Ellen Suppy and Mary Kate Kennedy (1:33.9).

The Quincy Track Club will continue to hold registration for the summer program on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 4:30 to 8 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Registration fee is $5. The club is looking for more boys and girls under 13.

Saturday the club will compete in the Mass. Jaycees Superkids competition at Kavanagh stadium.

In road race action, 10-year old Harry Morash finished fourth in the 12 and under division of the Corinthian road race through Dover's Hale Reservation. His time for the gruelling 6.2-mile course was 44:44.

Young Morash will run next week in the six-mile St. Coletta's race in Braintree and then will prepare for the U. S. Youth Games in which he will run the 880 in the 9-11 division. He was a close second a year ago and is favored to win it this year. He is coached by Jeff Hennessy.

JOHN McLANEY, a junior from Wollaston, received the Class of 1963 soccer award at Columbia University's 58th annual Varsity "C" Club Awards. The award is presented to the varsity soccer player who, during the season, has been most valuable in terms of spirit, team play and skill. An honorable mention all-Ivy League goalie, McLaney had eight shutouts and compiled a 0.79 goals against average, helping the Lions to a 13-2-1 record, the Ivy championship and a berth in the NCAA Tournament.

North Track Team Finds Brockton Too Much

As expected, North Quincy's track team found undefeated Brockton much too strong last week and was handed a 96-49 defeat, dropping the Raiders to 3-3 in the Suburban League and 7-3 overall.

North, which faced another league power, Weymouth North, Tuesday, will finish its league season next Thursday when it meets Quincy at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders, young and undermanned, had earlier lost to another undefeated league power, Newton North.

"I knew we lacked the depth to compete with such teams as Brockton, Newton North and Weymouth South, but I'm pleased with the way our boys have performed," Tozzi said. "Against Brockton we won eight of the 17 events but Brockton had much too much depth and took every second place."

North's Dan McIntyre, who has the best time in the league in the high hurdles, 15.9, equaled that figure in winning and Jack Leone, who has the best high jump in the league, six feet, won at 5-8.

Also winning for North were Steve Mastorilli, 440; Mike Ricciuti, mile; John Barrett, two-mile; John Hernon, discus; Jim Mackiewicz, javelin, and the mile relay team of McIntyre, Mastorilli, Rich Schaezel and Rick Anderson.

McCarthy, Smith Furnace Brook Winners

Harold McCarthy and Dot Smith shot low gross of 44 in the weekly mixed Scotch foursome at the Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Matt Smith and Isabelle Morrison shot low net of 32, followed by Mario Serafini and Barbara Spinello with 33, Lou Cugini and Mel Corbin, 34, and Joe Fitzgerald and Priscilla

O'Neill and Amy Stearns and Jim Morrison, 35.

In the women's tournament, point and best ball, nine holes, Joe Hinckley had the most points, 20. Dolly Nogler and Isabelle Morrison shot best ball low net of 30 and Jenny Lutfy and Alice Pagnano had a 31.

Dolly Nogler was in charge of the tournament.

North Girls Tennis Unit Bows To Brookline

The North Quincy girls' tennis team had little luck last week against Suburban League powerhouse Brookline, dropping a 5-0 decision.

Ann McElaney, Karen Melanson and Amy Badger lost their singles matches, while Carol Watt and Cheryl Zuroms and Alysia Wheeler and Martha Gallagher were defeated in doubles.

The Raiderettes will host Newton North Friday and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday, both matches at 3:15.

Registration At 3 City Tennis Courts

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that personnel have been stationed at three locations to handle registration for residents interested in using municipal tennis courts.

Registrations will be taken for one hour time periods from 6 to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday at both Faxon Park and Vocational Technical School tennis courts. At the Fenno St. basketball and tennis courts registration will be from 6 to 10 p.m.

Further information may be obtained by calling the recreation department at 773-1380, ext. 204.

North Jogathon June 3

North Quincy High School expects more than 35 joggers to participate in the Sunday, June 3, Wheaties Sports Federation Jogathon which will start at the high school.

They have pledged to run miles in return for donations by business and community members to benefit the track team banquet fund.

The Jogathon was designed by Olympic decathlon champion Bruce Jenner and an expert panel specifically to assist schools in benefiting their own athletic programs. The WSF provides the materials and ideas, and North Quincy High provides the organization and energy.

While securing pledges of a dollar or more per mile, the joggers will be putting their school in the running for one of 84 cash awards totalling $17,500 provided by the WSF on a nationwide basis. Schools will be judged according to a formula relating miles completed to school enrollment.

More information can be had by calling North Quincy Track Coach Lou Tozzi at 786-8725.

The heavy duty replacement shock with a bigger piston for more control

Replacing worn-out shocks with heavy-duty Red Ryders gives you extra control. Because a bigger than standard piston helps Red Ryders hold your wheels in better contact with the road.

Coil springs for consistent operation — even after years of use. There are four in each Red Ryder.* Two in many other shocks.

"O" ring piston seal — it makes sure the fluid flows through the valving — instead of uselessly bypassing it.

Red Ryder's 1 1/8" piston (40% larger than the pistons used in standard replacement shocks) helps Red Ryders shed heat faster — gives you more control when the going's rough.

Gabriel's special nine stage valving (many other shocks use only six) gives Red Ryders better resistance to fade.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

REFLECTION-NOCTURNAL LIFE SAVER

Of our present annual pedestrian traffic deaths, over 54 percent occur at night — despite the fact that the numbers of pedestrians and cars are far fewer than in the daytime. Last year, almost 2,000 of these fatalities were children.

The reason is simple. Human beings, unlike some members of the animal kingdom, cannot see well at night.

Fortunately, an effective, practical and inexpensive way has been found to light up pedestrians at night. It is known as reflective tape.

It allows pedestrians to glow brightly at over 600 feet, TWICE the normal range of auto headlights. Even at 70 mph, a vehicle can be stopped with a 600 foot warning.

There is no problem in having reflective tape made a part of a person's clothing, bicycle, or even Rover's dog collar. In fact, one of the new iron-on tapes will stay in place through laundries for the lifetime of most garments. It's certainly a simple way to prevent a needless tragedy.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Did you know that a man can be the winning pitcher in a baseball game even though he never threw a pitch to a batter?...How is this possible?...This actually happened once in a minor league game. A relief pitcher came into the game with 2 out in the top of the 9th... Before throwing a pitch to the plate, he picked the runner off first base retiring the side... Then, his team scored the winning run in the last of the 9th, and so he was the winning pitcher—without ever throwing a pitch to a batter.

One of the oddest things that ever happened in a major golf tournament happened to pro golfer Tony Jacklin... He was playing in a tournament some years ago and hit a 300-yard long shot that landed right in a spectator's pocket—without any injury to the spectator!

Did you ever wonder what was the smallest crowd ever to see a major league baseball game?... The record low was set at a National League game in 1890 in Pittsburgh... Official paid attendance at that game—6.

I bet you didn't know... that Colman's has the largest, most complete choice of camping needs at lowest prices. If fresh or salt water fishing is your sport, shop Colman's for the widest choice of all fishing needs. You'll save.

R&R Takes 5th Straight, Presidents, Sweeney, Win

By PUTNAM BORDEN
Riley and Rielly Insurance continued to roll merrily in St. John's Little League as it ran its record to 5-0 with two more wins last week.

R & R overcame a 4-0 deficit and defeated Van Oriola Plumbing and Heating, 14-6. The R & R steamroller boasted four runs in the fourth and then exploded for 10 in the fifth which included a grand slam homer by Scott Flaherty. John Cacciatore wielded a heavy bat with three hits and Joe Zacheo did a fine job behind the plate. Joe Cardarelli and Bob Josephs hit well for Van Oriola.

Riley and Rielly had all it could handle when it met the Quincy Sun and in a game which saw the lead change hands four times, R & R came from behind to win, 7-6. Danny Morris pitched another fine game and was aided by some stellar defensive play by Jimmy Sturgeon, Dean Vannelli and Cacciatore had two hits apiece. The Sun received a good pitching effort from Eddie Gore. Eric Jolley blasted a long triple.

Van Oriola scored in every inning including 11-run explosions in the third and fourth to overwhelm Beau's, 33-7. Scott Morrissey, Joe Cardarelli, Josephs, David Carlson and Timmy Blakely all hit home runs and, along with David Rucker, and John McLaughlin, had two hits or more.

Presidents Pharmacy added two wins for a 3-1 record. The Druggists, behind Mike Dracchio's steady pitching and the home run bats of Dracchio, Mike Shields, Bob Kingsbury and Mike Forbes, topped the Sun, 10-6.

Beau's Place, off to a rocky start, came up with its best effort but lost to Presidents Pharmacy, 6-4. Chris Coughlin hit well for Beau's.

In Farm League action Sweeney Funeral Service won its third in a row, 3-1, over Mr. Kelly's. A fine combined pitching effort by Dennis Flaherty, Mike Collins and Jody Taylor and the timely hitting of Mark Johnson, Jay Brooks, Bill Ryan, Mike Macomber and Fabio Sala sparked the win.

Alfredo's Restaurant edged Hutchinson Oil, 1-0, with Billy Santry playing a strong game at second base and Vinnie DiGiacomo having the only hit for Hutchinson. Hutchinson came back to edge Noble Sporting Goods, 2-0, as Sam Carroll drove in both runs with a fifth inning triple.

Larkin Hurls One-Hitter

QJC Upsets Bristol In 11th Season Finale

Dave Burke completed his 11th year as Quincy Junior College's only baseball coach last week when the Jaguars pulled a big upset by topping Bristol Community College, 4-1, and finished the season with a 6-4 record.

The win over Bristol was especially satisfying for Burke, as Bristol had twice defeated the championship Mass. Bay Community College team.

Braintree's Jim Larkin, QJC's top hurler with three wins, tossed a brilliant one-hitter and struck out 10 and North Quincy's Ed McElaney went two for three and hit safely in all 10 games. Paul Marquart had a triple and single, scored twice and drove in two runs. Quincy's Matt Higgins drove in two runs with a triple and sacrifice fly.

Quincy's Chuck McLean pitched two wins and McElaney won the other as QJC bounced back from a disappointing 1978 season.

McElaney hit .382 as did Marquart but the top batter was North Quincy's Dave Moran, who was 13 for 26 for a .500 average.

Burke had an excellent catcher in Dan Furlani of Braintree, while veterans Dave Bonney of Norwell was at first base and Marquart of Abington at second. Newcomers McElaney and Moran handled the shortstop and third base jobs respectively, while Larkin also played third.

Strong Performances Not Enough For Quincy

The Quincy boys' and girls' track teams featured some top performances last week but were beaten decisively by the strong Weymouth North teams.

The Presidents, who met Waltham Tuesday, will close their dual meet season next Thursday against North Quincy at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The girls will also finish up against North Thursday.

Quincy coaches Bill Maver and Joe Goguen were pleased with the showings of several boys in a 93-52 loss as Roy Higgins won the 440, Jeff Elofson won the 880, Vin Lorenzano won the long jump, Ed Iodice took the high jump and the mile relay team also won.

Quincy took several second places, Charlie McCall in the 100, Lorenzano in the 220, Newell in the mile, John Furey in the two-mile, John Griffith in the high hurdles, John Areval in the long jump, and Dan Flannery in the triple jump.

Quincy's First Ladies were defeated, 80-44, but Coach Joe Amoroso continued to see improvement in several of the girls' performances and, with many underclassmen, his hopes continue to rise over next year's outlook.

Quincy's Susan McLoughlin won the 220 and the long jump, Lois Guglielmi won the 440, Anna Sandonato won the shot put, Rita Pasqualone won the discus and the mile relay team of Guglielmi, Donna Reardon, McLoughlin and Paula Church won.

Taking seconds for Quincy were Church, 880; Patti Irvine, two-mile; Pasqualone shot put, and Sandonato, javelin.

Koch Club Announces 6 Scholarship Award Winners

Anthony I. Delmonico, chairman of the Koch Club Scholarship Awards Committee, announced the following winners for 1979.

North Quincy High School: Ann Conley, 143 Newbury Ave., and Richard P. Schaefer, 88 Clement Terrace.

Quincy High School: Brenda L. Morrison, 16 Doyle Terrace, and John C. Murphy Jr., 186 Palmer St.

Quincy Vocational Technical School: Darlene Gardner, 171 Babcock St., and Stephen Whyte, 1 Beacon St.

The awards will be formally presented at the Koch Club 28th Annual Flag Day observance Thursday, June 14, at Veterans Memorial Stadium at 7:15 p.m.

The scholarship applications are made available each year to the Guidance Office of the three high schools for interested boys and girls to complete and submit for consideration.

The Koch Club of Quincy will again this year award a total of $500 in scholarship awards to graduates of North Quincy High School, Quincy High School and the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

A $100 scholarship will be awarded to the boy and girl graduates of North Quincy High School and a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School and a $50 scholarship will also be presented to a boy and girl graduate of Quincy Vocational Technical School.

This year's awards will total $400 in scholarship funds presented by the Koch Club since the inception of the scholarship awards in 1959.

The Koch Club Scholarship Fund began in 1959 in the North Quincy District with a $100 scholarship to a boy and a $100 scholarship to a girl graduate of North Quincy High School and, in 1964, with the addition of the Broad Meadows District of the Koch Club, the awards were expanded to include a $100 scholarship award to a boy and girl graduate of Quincy High School.

In 1968, the Koch Club added a $50 scholarship for a boy graduate of the Quincy Vocational Technical School and in 1970, a girl graduate of the Quincy Vocational Technical School was also presented a $50 scholarship.

Although the Koch Club is largely involved in athletic and recreation programs, the prime purpose of the Scholarship Awards is to impress upon the boys and girls the fact that this organization is greatly interested and concerned with the education and scholastic ability of its members.

This year's awards will total 94 boys and girls being recognized in the 21 years of presentations by the Koch Club of Quincy including 42 boy and girl graduates of North Quincy High School, 26 each; 32 boy and girl graduates of Quincy High School, 16 each and 11 boys and 9 girls of the Quincy Vocational Technical School for a total of 20.

The House action would limit the use of state money only to cases where an abortion is necessary to prevent the death of the mother. An effort to amend the measure was defeated. By a 92-59 vote the House made victims of rape and incest no longer eligible for state funded abortions.

On the amendment to allow victims of rape and incest to be eligible for state funded abortions Brownell and Morrissey voted against and Cerasoli for it.

Cerasoli said he voted in favor of the amendment because "in a recent poll of my district, 84% of those polled believed that victims of incest and rape should be eligible for state funded abortions."

Brownell was opposed to the eligibility of incest and rape victims for state funded abortions, saying that "there are sufficient methods in the case of incest or rape to prevent the pregnancy from occurring."

Explaining his vote on the measure, Brownell said, "that the state should not be in the business of financing abortions."

Morrissey voted for the measure he said because, "the Supreme courts decision is the most persuasive argument against using state funds for abortions."

Harold Cerasoli Back Faherty In Council Race

Michael E. Faherty has claimed the support of Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) and Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy) in his bid for an at-large seat on the City Council.

The two legislators expressed their confidence in Faherty's competence, public spirit and independence at a recent reception attended by more than 300 people.

In his remarks, Faherty stressed the importance of the electorate's understanding of issues vital to their lives.

He said this understanding is being withheld from the voters of Quincy by clouded issues, confusing statistical statements and political double talk.

"If elected," he said, "I will work to make the issues clear enough for people to make decisions pro or con."

Both Condon and McGrath acknowledged that they would be taking a political risk if they opposed the $1.5 million bond issue.

"It has been implied," said McGrath, "that if we don't vote for the $1.5 million bond issue, we are gutting the building. That isn't the case."

"You have to make a point that this $1.5 million is not for the construction of the building. There is $3.9 million still set aside for the renovation."

McGrath estimated that appropriating the $4.5 million instead of bonding it would cost either $2 or $6 on the tax rate, depending on whether the 65 per cent state reimbursement could be used as an estimated receipt.

"Do you want to increase the tax rate by $6 this year or do you want to space it out over 20 years paying between 10 and 15 cents a year?" he asked. "Those are the two issues."

"An appropriation might cause people to sit up and take notice that the gray train is over and we have to be more responsible when we pick out equipment and when we settle a delay claim for $600,000."

Condon said she also wants answers to the questions: "Why are we in the position we're in today?" "And what are we going to do to see that we don't stay in this position?"

"We can't continue to appropriate additional money and not address the problems that we have encountered all along on this project and buried under the rug," she said.

May 7, 1979

Dear Sirs,

Having moonlighted for several years cleaning ovens, I decided to embark on it as a full time business. Not knowing how successful I'd be and wanting to be conservative in my advertising expense, I chose the Quincy Sun as my prime advertising outlet.

In a period of less than three weeks and at an expense of only fifteen dollars, I received a total of 27 phone calls in response to my classified ad. All of these phone calls resulted in a customer and the total of new customers was almost double that figure when these people either told or referred me to their friends. I have the Quincy Sun to thank for over fifty new customers.

At the very least, I was enormously surprised and more than pleased at the result of my classified ad in the Quincy Sun. One thing I like most about advertising in the Quincy Sun is that my ad does not get "lost" in the paper. I have and would recommend the Quincy Sun as an advertising outlet for anyone with something to sell or a service to offer.

Sheets, LaHive To Meet

Truck Traffic On South Quincy Streets Danger to Youngsters

City Councilor James A. Sheets and Police Capt. Paul LaHive are scheduled to huddle soon to decide which streets in congested South Quincy should be kept free of commercial traffic.

Recently traffic was rerouted from busy Penn St. to Columbia

St., while work was in progress at the Quincy Adams MBTA Station, raising a storm of protest from residents.

The City Council's Public Safety Committee heard those protests Monday night.

Sheets noted that Grosso Playground is right in the middle of Columbia St. and the area's youngsters have established a pattern of behavior that is endangered by increased truck traffic.

Mrs. Helen Balducci of 57 Columbia St., told the committee that she was often awakened at 6 a.m. by the sound of speeding trucks on the street.

"There is not a playground sign on the street," she said. "You should see it when the kids are out of school."

"The kids don't look for the cars," said Mrs. Jane Balducci of 89 Taber St. "They have the run of the street. If we can't get the trucks off the street we should close the playground."

and during the period made 169 inspections.

A total of 85 gas fitting permits were granted for work to cost an estimated $33,460 and fees of $346 were collected. During the month 136 inspections were made.

Gas, Plumbing Permits Total 172 In April

The Quincy inspector of plumbing and gas fitting reports that during April 172 permits were issued for work to cost an estimated $110,326.

Eighty-seven permits were approved for plumbing work to cost an estimated $76,866. The department collected $480 in fees

12 To 16 'Prime' Candidates For Planning Director Post

The Planning Board has narrowed 60 applications for the post of Planning Director down to 12 to 15 prime candidates who will be interviewed after July 1, according to Chairman Rev. Bedros Baharian.

James Lydon has been filling the $26,790 job as acting director since Walter J. Hannon resigned in April.

"There is no reason to hurry in naming a permanent director," said Rev. Baharian. "We feel that Jim Lydon is a competent acting director. We are not suffering."

Baharian said the original 60 applications for the post were parceled out to members of the Planning Board in blocks of 15 and each was to pick four to be further interviewed.

The applications were reviewed and the interview procedure set up at an executive session of the Planning Board Tuesday.

The Planning Board is acting as a screening committee for Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who is charged with making the actual appointment.

Davidson Named To Planning Board

Geoffrey A. Davidson, who served as planning director in the administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon, was sworn in Tuesday as a member of the Planning Board.

Davidson, who is currently chief administrative assistant to Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt, succeeds Stephen C. Ricciardi, who resigned last month.

"His background and expertise in planning will be a welcome addition to our Planning Board," said Mayor Tobin.

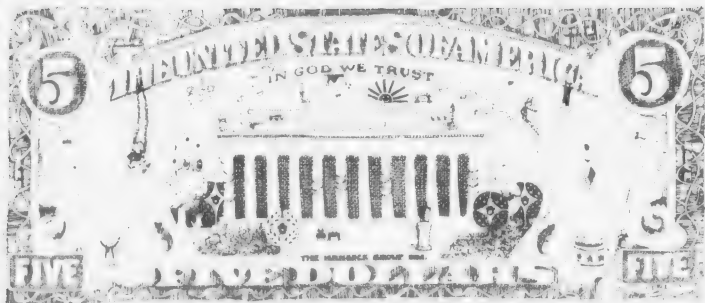

Davidson served as planning director from January, 1969, to December, 1975. Prior to that he was federal aid coordinator in the Planning Department and once was a consultant to the city.

He lives at 63 Lenox St., Wollaston, with his wife, Gloria, and daughter, Gillian.

Tobin said he hopes that Ricciardi, who left the post to avoid conflict of interest over an Adams Shore development in which he is involved, will accept another job in the city administration.

Adams Birthplaces Vir Closed For Safety Measures

The Adams Birthplaces in South Quincy, which were taken over by the National Park Service May 1, have been partially closed to visitors for safety reasons.

"It's not that they are unsafe," said Wilhelm Harris, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Sites. "It's just that we won't know if they're safe or not until they are fully examined."

"The Park Service people have examined the basement of the John Quincy Adams House and they feel that a limited number of people may go in but only on the first floor. The second floor is unsound.

"They have not had time to make an analysis of the John Adams Birthplace and for that reason nobody is allowed to go in."

Mrs. Harris said she has been assured that John Adams' old law office on the first floor of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace will be reinforced to permit visitors by September.

It was in that office in September, 1779, that the Massachusetts Constitution was drafted and the state is planning an observance of its 200th anniversary next September.

Until the houses can be thoroughly examined and the floors shored up where needed, the Park Service is giving visitors what it calls an "outdoor interpretation" of the Adams family and its 18th Century lifestyle.

Most of the furnishings of the two houses, the oldest of which was built about 1681, have been removed by the owners, the Quincy Historical Society, and will be displayed at the Society's museum in

VISITORS RESTRICTED -- Tourists are not allowed in most sections of the Adams Birthplaces until the new owner, the National Park Service, can determine whether or not they are structurally safe. Council Cuts $429,115

The City Council's Finance Committee, having slashed $429,115 from Mayor Tobin's $99.1 million budget, was scheduled to take up the School and Hospital sections of the budget last night [Wednesday].

The School Department's turn was to come at 4:45 p.m. and no cuts were expected since the schools are protected from the Council's axe by fiscal autonomy, although on occasion the Council tries.

The Hospital budget was due up at 5 p.m. last night with another cutting session on tap for 5 p.m. tonight [Thursday].

After the Hospital, several small departments remain to be examined but no date has been set.

Job Lottery Applications Available

Applications for Quincy's summer job lottery are available starting today (Thursday) at the Personnel Office in the JFK Health Center, 1120 Hancock St. The applications must be completed and returned to the Personnel Office no later than Friday, June 15, and the lottery drawing is tentative slated for Friday, June 22.

The jobs will start Monday, July 9, and last for five weeks with high school and college students, 16 years of age and older, on the eligible list.

Massive Turnover Coming

Eligibility List Tie-up Hurts Police Strength

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy Police Department is faced with what Chief Francis X. Finn calls "a massive turnover" in personnel in the next five years.

And the situation is worsening by degrees with each new day's delay in release of a Civil Service eligibility list.

The Chief pointed out his dilemma during an unsuccessful plea to the City Council recently for permission to have some Police Cadets appointed to the force without taking a Civil Service exam.

And underscored it during an interview with The Quincy Sun.

"In the next five years," says Police Chief Francis X. Finn, "the turnover in the Quincy Police Department is going to be massive."

The Chief's forecast was part of his unsuccessful plea to the City Council for permission to have some Police Cadets appointed to the force without taking a Civil Service exam.

One of Finn's problems is that there hasn't been a substantial number of patrolmen named to the force in six years, mostly because eligible lists have been tied up in litigation.

The 188-member Quincy Police Department is currently as much as 20 men under strength and in the next five years at least 18 of its 47 superior officers are due for retirement.

Holiday Early News-Deadline

The Quincy Sun will be closed Monday, Memorial Day.

Because of the holiday, news releases ordinarily turned in to The Sun office on Monday should be submitted instead by Saturday, May 26.

News releases received later than this risk being too late for next week's issue of The Sun.

"That's a good percentage of the brass," said Finn, who himself has 34 years on the force and reaches eligible retirement age of 55 in two years. Quincy policemen may take pensions at 55 with 32 years service.

In the next five years, according to Finn's figures, that status will also be reached by three out of five captains, seven of 16 lieutenants, eight of 26 sergeants, and about 21 patrolmen.

Most of them are men who joined the force between 1945 and 1952 in the years following World War II when returning veterans were finding new niches in civilian life.

"These men are in their 50s now, some in their late 50s," said Finn. "They will be required to get out at 65 but a lot of them won't stay until they reach 65."

"Police work is a young man's job today."

There are a lot of young men--and young women too--out there ready, willing and able to join the department but the problem is getting them by the Civil Service roadblock.

"The basic problem with Civil Service," said Chief Finn, involves minority hiring but that isn't the problem here in Quincy. We just can't get an eligibility list.

"Some groups have appealed the Civil Service examinations as being inherently unfair to black and Puerto Ricans and Spanish and the like. That's holding up the list."

"The Civil Service people don't know what kind of an examination to give these people that's fair to all."

"The State Civil Service conducted a study awhile ago and 25 Mile Per Hour Speed Limit For South St.

The State Department of Public Works and the Registrar of Motor Vehicles have certified that a 25 mile an hour speed on South St. between Elm and Scammell Sts. is consistent with the public interest.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, who asked for a study of a reduced speed limit in the area in October, 1978, said the new speed limit should be in force in the very near future.

Raymond said he hopes proper police enforcement of the new speed limit will help to solve the concern that residents have for the children in the area.

Finn Asks Denial

License Board Turns Down Carlton House Transfer

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy Licensing Board has denied a request for transfer of an inholder-all alcoholic license for the Carlton House to a North Quincy firm which had proposed plans for $500,000 in renovations to the establishment.

Turned down was Dante DeCesare, of Quincy House Corp., lounge manager of the establishment, who was present at the meeting with Atty. Harry Ankeles.

Voting against the transfer were board members Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon, and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

City Clerk John Gillis and Fire Chief Edward Barry were not present at the meeting.

Chief Finn entertained a motion to deny the request "based on a police investigation of the manner in which these people operate establishments in North Reading and the town of Peabody and based on business practices which I don't feel this community is ready to accept, and the fact that the community rejects the application because of lack of comprehensive planning in respect to operation, insufficient parking, and lack of a satisfactory manager for the hotel."

A motion to deny the request based on Finn's statement was made by McDonald and seconded by Dr. Solomon.

Earlier in the meeting, Atty. Ankeles had presented the board with plot plans of the establishment. He spoke of preliminary plans to renovate and reconstruct the property.

Ankeles also told of the Corp. actively seeking a hotel manager and other personnel by placing ads in several newspapers. The ads were mainly responded to by Quincy people.

The hearing recessed for 15 minutes so that the board could discuss the matter with City Solicitor Robert Fleming.

The hearing reconvened with City Councillor Joanne Condon voicing opposition to the transfer.

"There are still too many unanswered questions on the overall operation of the lounge and the hotel concerning seating in the lounge, correction of inadequate parking, and failure to name a hotel manager."

She quoted the corporation as saying, "There are no hard and fast plans."

Condon had also told the board of her concerns with the establishment at last week's meeting.

Letters of opposition to the request were sent to the board from the Atlantic Association, with whom Quincy House Corp. had met on Sunday, and the North Quincy Business Association.

In response to denial of the request, Atty. Ankeles told the board that the decision would be appealed.

The request of George Terrio for a common victualer license for South Shore Bait & Tackle, Washington St., was withdrawn without prejudice by Terrio's attorney, David Elliott.

The request, which has been before the board for several weeks, involved establishment of a bait shop and grocery store, separated by a partition.

Concern with the proposal had been voiced by City Councillor Daniel Raymond and Rep. Robert Cerasoli.

Terrio's request for Sunday opening of the bait shop was continued until June 5.

A continued hearing on complaints against Bay Colony Realty [Cumberland Farms], 470 Adams St., and 604-614 Hancock St., was dismissed because the firm had not been properly informed to appear before the board.

A letter will be sent to Bay Colony requesting their appearance June 5, thus giving them proper notification.

In other action, the board:

- Granted a common victualer license to William J. Peterson, of North Weymouth, for Billy Budds Two, 192 Davis St. [formerly Waldo's], providing the establishment meets the requirements of the joint inspection team. The restaurant will be open 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. from May to Sept. 31.

- Granted a Motor II license, with a limit of 2 cars, to Robert D. Crosby, of Baintree, for Body Craft, Inc., 495 Hancock St.

- Granted a two day beer and wine permit and a permit for a field day to be held by St. Joseph's Guild, June 15-16, on the school grounds. Food will be served.

- Granted a request from LeDisco, 79 Parkway, for a change of manager from James P. Kearney to Carl H. Miranda, as well as change of officers, directors and stockholders.

John Hunter, owner of J & J Realty Trust, Charlestown, recently purchased the establishment's stock, and will be president, director and clerk.

Operation of LeDisco will be the same, except that the establishment will open at 1 p.m. on Sundays rather than at noon.

- Granted a request for a one-day all alcoholic license to the Committee to Re-Elect Quincy School Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy, for June 1, 8 p.m. to midnight, at North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

- Granted a request for a flea market to be held by Quincy Point Congregational Church June 9, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. [no rain date], in the church parking lot. Food will be sold.

CETA Opportunities For Women In Construction

Women are learning non-traditional skills through a CETA-funded Women in Construction (WIC) preapprenticeship project.

The 18-week project, which trains women to qualify for construction tradesperson apprenticeships, is sponsored by Jobs, Inc., Mass. State Building and Construction Trades Council, AFL-CIO.

The 1978 pilot program lasted 32 weeks. The 1979 program consists of two 18-week cycles, one that began this month and another beginning in October.

Women study the four crafts of carpentry, electricity, plumbing and sheet metal work in the first five weeks of the course. Each woman then chooses a specific craft for 13 weeks of in-depth training.

Five to six hours a day are devoted to hands-on and classroom work. The women train physically for the other one-and-a-half hours.

The four Massachusetts program sites—Brighton, Plymouth-Carver, Lowell and Northampton—have been chosen by the U.S. Department of Labor as a national demonstration project.

Linda Walden, Brighton's on-site administrator, said the program will ease women's entry into this previously all-male occupation. Participating women will develop marketable skills and qualify for trade union membership.

Quincy CETA, which interviews applicants for the Brighton program, will pay participants hourly wages and transportation expenses.

Women unemployed, low-income heads of household or public assistance recipients can qualify. High school diplomas are not required. For information, contact Patsy Bickford, Quincy CETA, 1073 Hancock St., Quincy, 773-3983.

ON BARBITUATE ABUSE

Barbiturates are used medically as tranquilizers or sedatives to induce sleep or reduce daytime tension and anxiety. They should be considered highly dangerous when taken without medical advice and prescription. In higher doses, the effects resemble alcoholic drunkenness; confusion, slurred speech and staggering. The body's tolerance level for these drugs increases rapidly, so that constantly increasing doses are necessary to maintain their effect.

Users may become confused about how many pills they have taken and die of an accidental overdose. In fact, barbiturates are a leading cause of accidental poison deaths and also one of the main methods people choose to commit suicide. When taken with alcohol, their effects are greatly increased. In such a situation, a normal dose could become a lethal dose. It's something to think about.

Toland Seeks Citizens Task Force To Study Schools

By PETER BARNICLE

Preliminary plans for formation of a citizens task force to study reorganization of the Quincy School system were scheduled to be presented to this week's meeting of the school committee by Vice Chairwoman Patricia Toland.

Prior to the meeting Mrs. Toland said she would ask for appointment of a sub-committee to recruit members of the task force.

Last week the committee rejected a recommendation of School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon calling for the closing of the city's four smallest elementary schools. Creedon had proposed closing the Great Hill School this June, and the Myles Standish after renovations have been completed at North Quincy High School. He also suggested that the Cranch and Hunting School parents should be made aware that those two schools were also being considered for shut-down.

"I think we should have a very representative community group," Mrs. Toland said. "It ought to cut across the entire spectrum of the population of the city."

She said the group would be asked to investigate the whole picture "and hopefully come up with a reorganization plan" which would take cognizance of enrollment figures and the number of buildings involved.

"I don't think we can let this matter lay dormant," she said.

"because next year the enrollment will be even smaller and the buildings will have fewer students."

"It will be up to the committee to continue to look at the enrollment and continue to consider some kind of reorganization. We do need citizen involvement so they can understand the figures and what the projections really mean," she said.

Mrs. Toland said she will ask the sub-committee to recruit from the City Wide Parents Advisory Council, Quincy Taxpayers Association, Quincy Citizens Association, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

"Perhaps even the Quincy Historical Society. We want anyone who would like to have input. Any citizen, particularly those interested in the future of the school system," she said.

The rejection of the superintendent's recommendations last week came after months of discussion and the holding of public hearings at the four schools directly involved in the proposed shut-down.

About 50 parents attended the meeting at which members of the committee set forth reasons for their vote.

Mrs. Toland and Committeewoman Mary Collins supported the superintendent's recommendation, saying that while they understood the concern of parents it was not realistic to keep half empty schools open.

Mayor Arthur Tobin, chairman of the committee, Frank Anselmo, Joan Picard, Christopher Kennedy and John Sullivan, voiced objections to the proposed closings.

All five said they favored retention of the neighborhood school concept. It was pointed out the closings would save very little on the tax rate.

Dr. Creedon previously estimated that closing the four schools would mean a savings of about one dollar on the tax rate.

Mrs. Toland said that the idea of an all inclusive citizens group to study reorganization of the school system appeared to have the approval of most of those who attended the meeting. Members of the school committee also expressed favor for the idea.

HERE'S HOW THE HOME THEY'RE LEAVING FOR COLLEGE CAN PAY FOR COLLEGE.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like the best education money can buy for your kids.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and what you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like taking some of the strain out of paying for college.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Quarry St. Hill Zoned Open Space

By HELEN JOHNSON

The City Council Monday night passed a zoning ordinance shifting 10 acres of land atop the Quarry St. hill from Planned Unit Development to Open Space.

Councillor James A. Sheets called it "part of the overall program of change occurring on the western side of Quarry St."

"The Elks have been given an option to buy a portion of the northern section on Quarry St. which they need for their new home," said Sheets.

"This is the first step in our efforts to secure federal funding to begin improvements on the central section.

"We have to get our federal applications in within the next 30 days."

The unanimous vote of the City Council to re-zone the land makes a Quincy Public Gardens move closer to becoming a reality.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin plans to sign the resolution in a ceremony with the Subcommittee on Quarry Street Land Use Tuesday, May 29 in City Hall. The signing will complete the first step of a phased-in approach to the project and ends a six-year battle to designate the area open space.

The work of the committee is expected to move toward the clean up and land preparation phase. A late June date is planned for a community clean-up day and a formal announcement of the committee's design for public use.

The committee has sought the help of Lt. Governor Thomas P. O'Neill to plan for long-range funding and for the development of applications with the Commonwealth's Land and Water Conservation Fund.

Also discussed and approved was a neighborhood questionnaire. Residents most affected by the project, in Ward 4, Precincts 2 and 3, will be asked to participate in a telephone survey shortly after the holiday. Questions to be asked include:

- Are you aware that several acres on Quarry St. have been designated open space?
- Do you feel there is a community need for a passive recreational area in this neighborhood which might include exercise trails, gardens, historic look-out or band pavillion?
- Would you or members of your family use this area?
- Do you have any suggestions for the use of city-owned land on Quarry Street?
- What do you not want this land used for?

Once the survey is complete the committee will analyze the results and develop specifics for passive recreational land use. Chairman Ron Iacobucci said, "The survey is a necessary polling to get neighborhood reaction and support for passive land use."

Vietnam Veterans Week

Memorial Services For 27 Quincy Men Who Gave Lives

Quincy will single out its veterans of the Vietnam War for special honors next week.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has proclaimed the week of May 28 through June 3 Vietnam Veterans Week and Wednesday, May 30, has been chosen to memorialize the dead and cite the living for their services in the most recent of America's wars.

"The Vietnam veteran is different from all other veterans," said John P. Comer, chairman of the Board of Assessors and former state commander of the American Legion, who headed the committee that put next week's program together.

"The men who served in Vietnam came back from what was felt to be an unpopular war. They never did get the true homage that was due them.

"Forget the politics of Vietnam, it was still a war. They did their job. We want to let them know they performed an honorable service at a time when we needed them."

The special day, May 30, will start at 6 p.m. with memorial services in front of City Hall for the 27 young men from Quincy who were killed in Vietnam and the 17 veterans of that conflict who have died since that time.

Then the School Department will supply buses to transport the veterans and their families to the Lincoln-Hancock School for a 7 p.m. buffet dinner after which five Vietnam veterans from Quincy will be singled out for special awards.

The special citations for community achievement were drawn up by the federal government and signed by President Carter and Mayor Tobin for the presentation.

Comer said one of them will go to Navy Capt. Richard A. Stratton of North Quincy, who was a prisoner of war in North Vietnam, and the other four will be awarded to selected veterans from the four branches of the service.

"We are compiling a list of names of those we feel are deserving of the awards," said Comer, "and a selection will be made shortly by the Quincy Veterans Council and the Department of Veterans Services."

Comer said it is not known how many Vietnam veterans live in Quincy.

"We have the names of those who applied for assistance," he said.

"Some of the others, we are finding out, even though they need assistance and deserve it, have never gone to veterans services because they're disgusted with what has happened.

The publicity surrounding the recent movie 'The Deer Hunter' has brought the Vietnam veteran out to where he feels better about being a Vietnam veteran.

"The last few weeks all over the country we have been hearing this from our national [Legion] organization. We hope this week nationally will show them we really care."

Members of the committee who planned the Vietnam ceremonies included:

Mayor Tobin, honorary chairman; Francis L. Sullivan, director of Veterans Services, and Comer, chairmen; Irving Isaacson, commander of the QVC; City Clerk John Gillis; School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon; and Patricia Toland, vice chairwoman of the School Committee, vice chairmen.

Josiah Quincy Home Open For Season

The country mansion of Col. Josiah Quincy, which was the center of Quincy's social and political life during the American Revolution, has opened for the season at 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston.

From now through Oct. 31, modern visitors can walk in the footsteps of Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and Marquis de Lafayette, and Daniel Webster, all of whom were guests at the Georgian-style home.

Col. Josiah himself, under directive from George Washington, spied on the British fleet in Boston Harbor from the top floor and the pane of glass on which he marked the departure of British ships is still on display.

The house, which is owned by the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, also contains a magnificent collection of 18th and 19th Century furniture. The house itself was built in 1770.

The mansion is open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays, with the overseers, Sally and David Bohl, ready to show visitors around and answer their questions.

Admission is $1 for an adult, 50 cents for a child and free to members of the Society. Group rates are also available.

the old Adams Academy building.

"I don't think the Park Service people will determine what furniture is going in there until their examination is completed," said Mrs. Harris. "There is no Adams furniture available. They may have some reproduced."

She said a Park Service architect is surveying the houses to determine what they looked like when John and Abigail Adams lived there before and during the Revolution.

"I imagine they will have it scantily furnished until they go over the records to determine what was in there," she said. "We have more than 600 reels of microfilm which will tell us everything there is to know about John and Abigail."

Mrs. Harris said the National Park Service has mentioned a figure of $250,000 per house as the cost of rehabilitation.

"It depends on how flush the country is," she said. "They could go faster if they were sure of how much they'll have in the new budget which comes out in October."

"The Park Service is really trying to do a good job at the Houses, but you're going to have to be patient. When they took over the Old House [the Adams Mansion] in 1946 it was 1965 before it was fully rehabilitated."

By TOM HENSHAW

they developed a new examination but now this is being appealed as being unfair.

"There is no shortage of those who want to be police officers. It's the inability of the Civil Service and the courts to come up with a standard examination that's satisfactory to everybody."

Finn said it has been six years since Quincy was able to put a large group of men on the police force.

"We've only been able to put on a few in drabs and drabs since then," he said.

The Chief said Civil Service has been telling him since last January that an eligible list is imminent.

"We received a communication from the Massachusetts Police Training Council wanting to know how many people we would be appointing and what school they're going to be sent to," he said.

"It would appear they have information I don't have and they're gearing up for a lot of appointments around the state and are looking for places to send these people to school."

Under state law, police recruits have to have 12 weeks of training before they can be put on the street.

"We wouldn't be starting a class anytime we appoint one man," said Finn. "We have to wait until we have enough men to make the class worthwhile."

The problem of police turnover, said the Chief, is compounded by the pace and stress of modern life.

"It's very hard out on the streets today," he said. "I have seen more and more officers take an earlier pension. Most of them used to stay on after they reached the maximum because they enjoyed the work."

"There's a lot of violence out there today. There's a lot of problems we didn't encounter with the young people in the old days. That's very, very hard on the older men."

"The pressure is on them from the public to enforce laws that really aren't laws at all. They maybe or the books but when you go to court with them the court is very unhappy."

"They haven't got any answers to the serious problems often times let alone the petty ones. There is a lot of frustration that comes out of a situation like that--being asked to do what basically can't be done."

The students were selected by their school principals for the recognition.

Joseph P. Shea, program chairman and emcee, cited Bosworth and The Quincy Sun for the newspaper's coverage of youth activities, giving them deserving recognition for their scholastic, athletic and community achievements.

Bosworth congratulated the students for being selected for the awards and commended the Elks for recognizing the achievements of the students, and for many other charitable, civil projects.

"You know," he told the students, "if we believed some television stations, some newspapers, and some people, you weren't supposed to be here tonight. If we believed them, you would be out hanging around some street corner tonight or throwing rocks through some school window. It's nice to see how wrong some people can be. It's heartening to know there are so many youngsters today with a real purpose in life."

Exalted Ruler Leo P. Nunnari officially welcomed the students and guests. The presentations were made by officers of the lodge.

Avilda Schulze Honored At Hospital Reception

Mrs. Avilda Schulze, retiring director of the Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing, will be guest of honor at a party given by the past and present faculty of the school Friday at 8 p.m. at Walsh's Restaurant.

Janet Dufresne, director of guidance and recreation at the hospital said, "The party is being held because the faculty enjoyed working for her so much. She has been a very understanding boss".

A luncheon and tea were held in Mrs. Schulze's honor last week at the hospital. Members of the Board of Managers, faculty of the School of Nursing, and Administration members were on hand to extend best wishes.

She was presented a Waterford crystal decanter by the Board of Managers, and City Councillor Joanne Condon presented her a plaque from the City Council.

Mr. Frank Evans
211 Newport Avenue
Quincy, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Evans,

I would like to take this time to tell you what a wonderful job your company did in insulating my house two years ago. The fuel savings has been tremendous.

Before the house was insulated I was using about 1,500 gallons of oil per year for heat and hot water. In the last two years because of the insulation my oil consumption has been cut to about 1,000 gallons per year. This is a savings of one third. At today's prices I feel that I am saving $300.00 per year and that in 5 years the initial investment will pay for itself.

Your workmen are to be commended for their thoroughness, thoughtfulness and respect. Having to work around three children and a dog is no easy task.

Thank you again and if you ever wish to use me as a reference feel free to do so.

Sincerely,

Gillette Was Razor Sharp

If anyone was half-doing, Rep. Robert Gillette (R-Pembroke) must have come on like an alarm clock.

It was the 7:44 a.m. South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Legislative Breakfast at the Lantana. And when it came Gillette's turn to say a few words, well, he was razor sharp:

"A lot of people have asked me about the relationship between the new governor and the legislature. It fits my definition of sexual compatibility: two headaches.

"My major concern in the legislature is to prorogue as soon as possible before we do any more damage than we already have.

"Perhaps the best service we could provide our constituency would be not pass any bills this year and give ourselves a chance to regroup what we've done in the past few years."

Anyone second the motion?

FORMER Mayor James McIntyre will have a reunion with an old colleague-war buddy this Memorial Day. He's Major General Bernard (Mickey) Trainor, USMC who will be the keynote speaker at the Quincy Veterans Council Memorial Day exercises May 28.

Trainor is now the Deputy Commander General for Education at the Marine Corps Education Center in Quantico, Va.

McIntyre and Trainor were classmates at Holy Cross and served together in Korea. McIntyre is holding a "welcome back to Massachusetts" reception for Trainor at his home May 27.

CLOSE SOURCES say Kathy O'Donnell is giving serious consideration to running against Daniel Raymondi for the Ward 2 City Council seat. They think it's a "virtual certainty". O'Donnell is a Democratic state committee woman and works for Gov. King handling press relations in the Department of Public Utilities.

QUINN

Quinn, "dean" of the City Council, is completing his 11th consecutive term—a council longevity record.

SPEAKING OF fund-raisers, Rep. Robert Cerasoli has one coming up June 16 at the Bryan VFW post. And, if everyone who has promised to show up actually does, it will be one of the most star studded in years.

Cerasoli says he has promises from: Gov. Edward King, Congressman Brian Donnelly, Treasurer Robert Crane, State Secretary Michael Connolly, Speaker Thomas McGee, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt and Rep. George Keverian (D-Everett) who will be the speaker for the night. Tickets $6.

CHRISTOPHER KENNEDY, seeking a second term on the School Committee, gets his campaign off at a reception dance Friday, June 1, 8 p.m. at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall, Howard and Janet Crowley, 139 Highland Ave. are ticket co-chairmen. Tickets are $5 per.

KENNEDY

THERE AREN'T MANY (if there are any) who can top Gus Westrin's record for activity in fraternal circles. Gus has decided to retire as treasurer of the Quincy Kiwanis Club after 48 years service in that post. And has a 50 years perfect attendance mark as a member.

He got a standing ovation from fellow members when he announced his plans to retire from office—but not as a member.

SHERIFF Clifford Marshall's pretty wife, Louise, appeared in the recent variety show staged by St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point. She was a member of the front-line chorus and looked so young among the 14-year-old girls in the cast, someone thought she must be her daughter. (She doesn't have a daughter.)

MILESTONE: The City Council's Finance Committee interrupted its pruning of the 1979-80 city budget the other night to help Councillor Joanne Condon observe her birthday with a cake. And, on cue, Abe Itkin, long-time council watcher and candidate for mayor, sang "Happy Birthday". P.S. It was her (don't tell anyone) 39th birthday.

Tribute To Civic Leader

Ground Broken For Faxon

Memorial Addition To Chamber

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce broke ground Wednesday for a 500 squarefoot addition to its Board of Directors' room at its headquarters, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

The new room will be dedicated and known as the Robert M. Faxon Conference Center, in memory of the late civic leader and former Chamber director who died June 10, 1978.

Chamber president Thomas E. Curtis, said,

"Bob Faxon was a quiet and effective civic leader in Quincy and the South Shore for many years. His contributions were legion, and it was Bob Faxon who sold the Chamber's present site to us some 15 years ago at a cost that reflected his generosity and not the true worth of the property.

Today the South Shore Chamber has grown to be the largest Accredited suburban Chamber of Commerce in the nation, and thanks to Bob Faxon, our headquarters reflect that unique status."

The new addition will be designed and constructed to complement the building's Colonial style. Special moldings and window sashes, as well as interior furnishings, will be in accordance with the aesthetics of the present building.

Frank E. Remick of Remick's of Quincy specialty store who chaired the committee that made the recommendation for the building addition, said:

"We wanted to do something in Bob Faxon's memory that would be utilitarian and serve many people. This Conference Center will be a part of a building that Bob had a great fondness for, and will be made available for numerous other civic and social groups that he was so very supportive of. We are quite anxious to see our efforts on his behalf result in something useful and helpful to many groups and individuals."

Ronald F. Zoolack, the Chamber's executive vice-president, said the cost of the addition will be approximately $45,000, and the funds will come from contributions to the Chamber. To date some $30,000 has been raised from local businesses, and the balance will be reached via a final effort by committee members and Chamber officers.

Zoolack noted that all contributions to the Chamber are tax-deductible. Anyone interested can receive more details by calling the Chamber.

Construction time for the project is estimated at 60 to 90 days, with a formal dedication in late summer or early fall.

Members of the committee for the Faxon Conference Center in addition to Remick and Zoolack are Thomas S. Burgin, Joseph B. Grossman, George Reardon, William E. Kelley, Forrest I. Neal, Jr., Harold H. Slate, Jack Conway, Charles Pearce and John W. Blake.

Chamber Opposes 'Taxbraker' Proposal

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A "new" assault on the taxpayer has been launched by the public employees and their unions. In an unashamed manner they blatantly push for more taxes, more public jobs and more governmental spending via the so-called "Taxbraker" proposal, House Bill 2476. They continue to try to preserve their excess pay scales, (i.e. the MBTA) and as unnecessary public-sector jobs protected by civil service employment and for the ultimate benefit of public employees, unions, and no one else. While the public, at large, says cut spending, the "Taxbraker" forces call for the opposite.

The non-binding Tax Limitation Referendum on last year's ballot passed by a 4-1 margin, far greater than even classification. The Conway-Carlson Bill called for spending cuts and tax cuts. The Legislature and Governor are passing and signing spending limits. This is what the November vote was all about.

What does "Taxbraker" really provide? Public jobs at the expense of everyone. The proponents say only large corporations will pay. This is simply untrue. All businesses and consumers will pay. The person who makes a will will pay. What corporation ever had a will made out for it? A person who cannot prepare his own tax return and seeks assistance will pay, people who have pictures developed will pay, people who use stockbrokers to invest their retirement income or savings will pay, and people who borrow for automobile and personal loans from commercial banks will pay.

These and many more people will pay, as well as all businesses. Additional registration will need to be handled by more public employees, and more public employees mean more government spending. You can easily imagine the Department of Revenue claiming they cannot enforce these laws without more personnel. Where do we get the money to pay them? From the taxpayer.

Paraphrasing the proponents: The 1966 sales tax didn't work. The 1972 lottery didn't work. The 1978 local court takeover didn't work.

The 1979 Taxbraker won't work either.

It simply is more taxes fueling more public spending. More taxes are not the answer. Two hundred years of history is adequate proof. Cutting and capping spending is the only sure way of holding the line and reducing the taxes we all pay.

The South Shore Chamber, with more than 1100 members, opposes H.2476 and any similarly ill-conceived proposal that will hurt, rather than help, the taxpayer.

Try To Get Massport By Phone

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

An article in the May 3 issue advised Quincy residents to keep the telephone pressure on Massport about airplane noise.

On Wednesday last week - a very warm day - the planes started around 7 a.m. and kept going until 11 p.m. I tried to reach Massport several times - especially around 9 to 10 p.m.

but the phone must have been off the hook because there was no response.

Some days I have to leave the house - although I had not planned it that way - and go into Boston, which is bedlam enough, but not quite as noisome as the planes that roar over North Quincy so frequently of late.

The warm weather is here and the noise is horrendous. What do we do when we can't even reach Massport by phone, and when you do and tell them your complaint there is no answer to the problem.

Where do we go from here? There must be a quieter place to live?

Commends Quincy Elks For Youth Day Recognition

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Last Tuesday evening it was my privilege to attend the very excellent National Youth Day Celebration sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

On that occasion, Joseph P. Shea and other members of the Youth Activities Committee presented certificates to many of the finest young men and women in our city.

The young people were recognized and honored for their academic, technical, athletic and creative achievements as well as for their leadership and citizenship, and their outstanding service to our community. It was an evening that all those present will long remember.

On behalf of the Quincy Public Schools, I would like to express my appreciation to the Quincy Lodge of Elks for their longstanding interest in and commitment to youth.

Parents Liable Up To $1,000

New State Law On Vandalism Began As Letter To Quincy Sun

It began as a letter in The Quincy Sun last Nov. 30.

And today it is state law. Parents can now be assessed up to $1,000 liability for injury and damage done by the willful acts of their minor children.

The fact that parents could not be held responsible before so outraged Lewis W. Trout of Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., that he sat down and dashed off letters to The Sun and to Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy], his classmate at Quincy High School, Class of '65.

"While reading a recent issue of The Quincy Sun," he wrote, "I was surprised to learn that the Quincy School Committee was lamenting the fact that children who vandalize property and the parents of those children cannot be held accountable.

"I urge you [Cerasoli] to introduce the legislation at the state level making parental responsibility law throughout the Commonwealth."

Trout enclosed a clipping from the Los Angeles Times that told of parental responsibility laws in DuQuoin and Deerfield, Ill., one of which succeeded in cutting vandalism by two-thirds in three years.

Cerasoli did introduce such legislation and the bill — obviously an idea whose time had come — arrived on Gov.

ANTI-VANDALISM BILL that make parents responsible for up to $1,000 for damage done by their children is signed into law by Gov. Edward J. King as its sponsor, Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli [D-Quincy], looks on. Bill began as a letter to the editor in The Quincy Sun last November.

Edward J. King's desk Tuesday, May 15, for his signature.

"My original bill set the liability limit at $5,000," said Cerasoli, "but I'll settle for $1,000. I'm going to try to raise it next year. The costs of vandalism are going up like everything else."

Last Saturday, Cerasoli received a phone call from his old classmate, Trout wanted to express his thanks to Cerasoli and The Sun for their help in the fight against vandalism.

Cap, Gown Ban Triggers Protests

A storm of protest greeted a School Committee decision to override the wishes of seniors at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and ban the wearing of caps and gowns at their graduation. The Committee called it part of a trend toward simplicity.

An investigation was begun to find the source of rumors that the School Committee was pressured into the ruling by local clothing merchants who felt caps and gowns hurt their business.

School Committeeman John P. Flavin told his colleagues that a cap and gown cost graduates only $1.50 while the traditional blue coat and white flannel pants or skirt, which were rarely worn again, cost a minimum of $14.

"Don't let people lull you to sleep by saying, 'It can't happen here.' They don't know what they're talking about," J. Wells Farley, chairman of the Massachusetts Public Safety Committee told a patriotic mass meeting of the Quincy Defense Council.

But apparently a lot of people were lulled to sleep when the QDC issued a call for 500 volunteers to begin training immediately as auxiliary policemen and fire fighters only 17 men between the ages of 18 and 50 stepped forward.

Consumer Corner

Q. My new car appears to have some serious defects that could lead to an accident. I would like to know if there has been a recall ordered for this model. If not, what can I do to bring about a recall? I know this problem affects other people who are driving this model car.

A. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is the federal agency that is responsible for ordering recalls of cars and tires. For any information concerning such recalls, or for providing information that could lead to further recalls, contact the NHTSA office in Cambridge at 494-2000, or call toll-free to the main NHTSA office in Washington, at 1-800-424-9393.

Q. I saw an ad for a sale on steaks at my local supermarket. I made sure to get to the store within an hour after it opened that day, but when I got to the meat counter, there were no steaks available at the sale price. The man behind the counter tried to sell me another cut of meat at a higher price. Isn't this an illegal "bait and switch"? What can be done about it?

A. It is an unfair or deceptive trade practice for any store to advertise a product as being available at a sale price and not have that product readily available in the quantities stated in the ad, or if no quantities are stated, in sufficient quantities to meet a reasonably anticipated demand. In this situation, you should ask to speak to the store manager and point out to him that "bait and switch" is illegal. You should be given a "rain check" to allow you to purchase the item at the advertised price. If the manager refuses to do this, you may file a complaint with the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's office (727-8400).

[This column is prepared by Dan Landau, Staff Attorney for the Massachusetts Consumers' Council to provide advice and information on how to deal with some of the many problems facing consumers today. If you have any questions or would like further information, contact the Council, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston 02202 (727-2605).]

Sheets Proposes Amendment

Council Moves On Zoning Change Agreement For NFPA Building

The City Council Monday night took the first steps to change a zoning agreement under which the National Fire Protection Association is building a new headquarters in West Quincy.

The amendment, proposed by Councilor James A. Sheets, would limit access to the property from Willard St. to a single road and require the NFPA to erect a fence at the end of Woodcliff Rd.

Hearing date on the amendment was set for 8:30 p.m. on Monday, June 11.

The Council decided to go ahead despite a warning by City solicitor Robert Fleming that there may be a constitutional question involved.

"What authority does the City Council have to unilaterally amend a Planned Unit Development agreement without the consent of the original applicant?" asked Councilor Daniel G. Raymond.

"There could be a constitutional question of depriving someone of a property right previously granted," said Fleming.

A spokesman for the NFPA said he had not yet studied Sheets' proposed amendments but he indicated the NFPA would not have much of a problem with them.

"The road on the plan is the only one we intend to use after the building is built," he said. "We have no objection to putting up a fence at the end of Woodcliff Rd."

"We've said it before and we'll say it again: We intend to be good neighbors in West Quincy."

Sheets told the Council that trucks are now using Woodcliff Rd. to bring materials to the site where construction of sewer and water mains is now going on.

"There is concern on Woodcliff Rd. and also on Ames St.," he said. "because every morning we have three trucks going up a very narrow and very small public way where there are children."

"In order for people to feel comfortable that what appears to be a roadway will not be used as such, it is necessary to have that section of the PUD order clarified."

The Sheets amendment would read "that the access road from Willard St. as shown on the previously approved plan will be the one and only vehicular access to the development."

"There have been questions raised on Woodcliff Rd. and Ames St.," said Sheets. "as to whether or not vehicles would be using the access that has been cut through from Woodcliff Rd., which is being used for sewerage and water."

The second amendment directs "that a fence be located on NFPA property at the end of Woodcliff Rd. to insure that no vehicular access will be allowed from Woodcliff Rd."

"Not only are we prohibiting it," said Sheets, "we don't want any kind of gate or chain; we want a chain link fence."

Beat Gas Crisis With A 'Do It Yourself' Tour

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has come up with a way for local tourists to beat the gas crisis.

It's called a "Do-It-Yourself Tour Guide", a compendium of more than 200 historical and recreational spots on the South Shore - 22 in Quincy alone - that can be mighty enticing when the price of gasoline reaches $1 a gallon.

"This is the year to plan a vacation at home," said Chamber President Thomas Curtis. "With the range of summer festivals as well, everything is in our backyard."

The Tourguide, produced by the Chamber and the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council, is available free at the Chamber and at tourist information centers. Copies are available for community groups on request.

Curtis pointed out that many of the sites on the South Shore are accessible by MBTA and Plymouth and Brockton bus, and that commuter boats between Boston and Hingham.

Tuesday, May 29 - Sliced peaches, Italian style Pizza w/cheese topping, potato chips, beverage.

Wednesday, May 30 - Chicken fillet w/gravy, buttered corn, cranberry sauce, dinner roll, chocolate covered peanut butter bar, beverage.

Thursday, May 31 - Make your own meat ball submarine sandwich, mixed vegetables, fruit jello, beverage.

Friday, June 1 - Pear pieces, grilled American cheese sandwich, potato chips, whoopee pie, beverage.

Hull and Nantasket can carry bicycles for further travel.

Curtis said the Chamber is working with the King Administration for access to the islands of Boston Harbor.

"It is ironic," he said, "that two of the Boston Harbor Islands are only a few hundred feet from the towns of Weymouth, Hingham and Hull but South Shore residents without boats must travel to Boston to reach these recreation areas."

"Now that the gas crunch is upon us, we hope that Gov. King will make the islands and the rest of the Boston Harbor area more available by ferry."

The Chamber, said Curtis, feels that vacationing locally will not only help the energy situation but will also be a boon to the local economy.

"We have restaurants, the Music Circus, Paragon Park, Starland, and historical sites, tennis clubs, marinas, fishing," he said. "It's all here. Why waste yours and the nation's energy to go elsewhere?"

on drama. Mrs. McDermott stresses that plays are written to be acted and viewed, not just read.

This is the second play students at Quincy Junior have seen in conjunction with their class. The first was Shadow Box. For Dracula, however, students in other classes as well as other faculty members participated.

Among the courses offered by the English Department this summer include Introduction to Literature, American Literature, Effective Speaking, English Composition, and Creative Writing. Academic adventure awaits students at Quincy Junior.

Conservation Commission To Conduct Nature Walk At Black's Creek

The fourth conducted walk sponsored by the Quincy Conservation Commission will be held Sunday, June 10 at 11 a.m. with a stroll to the Quincy Salt Marsh Trail in the Black's Creek area at the end of Fenno St., Wollaston.

The walk, led by commission members, will start from conservation headquarters at 100 Southern Artery. Those joining the walk are asked to bring a box lunch. The walk will last about an hour and a half and consist of three miles of easy walking.

The walks are part of a program to introduce residents to the many open spaces in Quincy and acquaint them with the role and responsibility of the conservation commission.

Further information may be obtained by calling 773-1380, ext. 360 or 267.

Swings Being Installed At 35 Playgrounds

Park Department employees are installing swings at 35 playgrounds throughout the city.

The swings were renovated and painted during the winter.

Swings will not be installed at school playgrounds until the closing of school. Earlier installation at these sites proved distracting for younger children during the school hours.

The Park Department employees are renovating and painting playground equipment at the Collins Rest-A-While Area in Merrymount Park on Southern Artery and picnic tables will also be located at the site for residents to enjoy as a family. Collins Rest-A-While, the most popular playground area in the city, is open to the public and is not reserved for private picnics or outings.

The recently installed lighting installation at the adjacent two ballfields will provide illumination for the playground area during the warm summer evenings.

Home Rule Petitions

McCauley, Tobin Again Differ On Tax Rate Explanations

The continuing disagreement between Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and City Councillor Francis X. McCauley surfaced in the State House in Boston this week.

McCauley appeared before the Legislative Committee on Local Affairs to testify in favor of two of his own home rule petitions involving the Board of Assessors.

Tobin called one of the petitions "ridiculous."

It would require the Board of Assessors, the City Auditor and the City Treasurer to appear before the City Council each year to explain the figures they used in setting the tax rate.

McCauley told the Committee he was disappointed when John Comer, chairman of the Board of Assessors, appeared to testify against the petition and also recorded Tobin in opposition.

"The Mayor promised to approve the petition if his office was not included," said McCauley. "The City Council accepted the compromise and unanimously approved the petition."

Tobin said he approved the petition as a home rule measure and sent it along to Legislature simply as a matter of courtesy to the Council members, who knew he was opposed to it.

"The chairman of the Ordinance Committee and several councillors asked me if I would sign it as a courtesy and send it in town," he said.

"I said I would but that I would not be a party to it and that if I were questioned I was going to speak out on it and show how ridiculous it is."

Tobin said Comer appeared before the Committee in his capacity as an assessor and when a member of the committee asked him how the Mayor felt about it Comer told him the Mayor was opposed.

"He was explaining that he derives his authority from Chapter 59 of the General Laws of the state," said Tobin, "and you cannot pass an ordinance that interferes or supercedes the General Laws."

"The General Laws govern all 351 cities and towns in the state and the Legislature is not going to separate one community from the other 350 and say the City Council has authority over the assessors."

Theoretically, the assessors, who are appointed by the Mayor, are answerable only to the state in order to free their assessing practices from the pressures of local politics.

Tobin noted that the City Auditor is appointed by the City Council and, along with the Treasurer as a department head, can be summoned before the Council at any time.

"Mr. McCauley testified that at no time did the Mayor or any department head refuse to come before the City Council," said Tobin.

The Mayor was originally included in McCauley's petition but the City Council deleted him in the face of constitutional questions about separation of powers.

Sen. Paul D. Harold [D-Quincy] also testified in favor of McCauley's petition.

A second petition would require the assessors to notify residential property owners within 30 days of any increase in valuation of existing property or any valuation placed on new property.

Another Problem: Water Conservation

By TOM HENSHAW

"The conservation of water is a top priority in Massachusetts," says Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy), a member of a special legislative committee that is studying the water supply.

"The state does have a water problem," Morrissey told the annual legislative breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, "and the commission right now is trying to call attention to it."

"We are trying to set up an office of water conservation to provide technical assistance to the communities for leak protection as well as bond authorization for rehabilitation of water mains."

"We are also working on a program to set up water conservation in the public schools, a program which has been very successful in other parts of the country."

Morrissey was one of a dozen legislators from the South Shore who spoke at the breakfast. Sen. Paul D. Harold (D-Quincy) and Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy) were unable to attend.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy), a member of the Committee on Taxation, said his committee has reported out legislation that would increase tax exemptions.

The measures, he said, would increase interest exemptions on savings banks and boost the exemption to $200 for an individual, up to $400 for a married couple and from $600 to $900 on dependents.

"The committee feels that these are inflationary things that should be done," he said.

Other South Shore legislators had these items to report or observations to make:

Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr. (R-Holbrook) - "The role of the lobbyist is much more important now than it was when the House membership was larger. There is a much greater need to have information generated by interest groups such as the South Shore Chamber."

Rep. Elizabeth N. Metaver (D-Braintree) - "One wonderful way in which we could help not only the gas shortage and the cost of energy but relieve the problems of the Southeast Expressway is to stagger the working hours in Boston so more people could use mass transit. Please try to work for that end."

Rep. M. Joseph Manning (D-Milton) - "Hopefully, the governor's $5,483 billion budget will be on the floor of the House by June 1. What the bottom line will be I can't tell you but I think it will be within the 4 per cent cap because hopefully $1.6 billion will be returned to the cities and towns."

Rep. Joseph J. Semensi (D-Randolph) - "I know I'm getting more and more successful because my hate letters are building up. I have more people hate me now than I used to have so I think that's a measure of success."

Sen. Allan R. McKinnon (D-Weymouth) - "They held a hearing on open competitive auto insurance rates yesterday. I know in a group like this that sounds good. But several years ago we tried open competition and it was disastrous. We've had a system of fixed rates the last two years and they've remained relatively stable."

Sen. Robert E. McCarthy (D-East Bridgewater) - "The 4 per cent tax limitation, with the ability to override it by a 2/3 vote at the local level, represents a significant step forward. Local communities can still make determinations as to what their priorities and means are, particularly in southeastern Massachusetts which has a growing population and different needs than other parts of the state."

Rep. Philip W. Johnston (D-Marshfield) - "We have had a succession of governors over the past several years who have come down here when they were running for office and committed themselves to providing an adequate mass transportation system. To date we have not seen many results. I hope in the next year or two we're going to get some."

Rep. William J. Flynn Jr. (D-Hanover) - "The No. 1 issue on the federal level is the energy crunch. The government has the responsibility to apprise the people as to what is going on. They should put it in the same category as the shots to the moon. This country will be in great difficulties unless the federal government approaches the problem on that basis."

Earle Sparks North To 8th, Quincy's Woes Continue

Southpaw Gary Earle, one of the top pitchers in the Suburban League, continued to keep the North Quincy baseball team near the top of the league Monday when he led the Raiders to a 2-1 win over Brookline.

North improved its record to 8-3 and Earle improved his to 6-0.

Meanwhile, Quincy's woes continued as the Presidents (3-12) bowed to Waltham's league leaders, 10-4.

North yesterday (Wednesday) played Brockton (9-3) in a battle for second place. Friday the Raiders play at Weymouth North at 3:30 and next Tuesday will be home to Waltham at 3:30 at Adams Field. Next Thursday night at 7:30 at Adams Field North will face Weymouth South.

Quincy hosted Weymouth North Wednesday, will be home to Weymouth South tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 at Adams and Tuesday will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30.

North Quincy trailed, 1-0, going into the bottom of the seventh Monday and when the first two batters went out, it looked like curtains.

However, the third baseman opened the flood gates when he bobbled a routine grounder and that was all the Raiders needed.

Pinch hitter Glen Segalla walked and Larry Baker hit a strong double to the fence driving in both runners with the winning runs.

Earle gave up only an unearned run and he has not given up an earned run in 26 innings. He has struck out 47.

"I don't know where we'd be without Gary," Coach Charlie Bunker admitted. "He has been phenomenal and there isn't a batter pitcher in the league."

The lone bright spot for Quincy was sophomore Gary Donato, who was brought up from the junior varsity in time for last week's North Quincy game. He was two for four with two runs batted in and in four games is 7 for 12 with three RBIs. A versatile player, he was playing shortstop for the jayvees but Coach Bud Mosher has him playing in the outfield.

Earle pitched a two-hitter against Quincy last week to make his record 5-0 as the Raiders won, 3-0, to win the city championship. Earle struck out six, raising his league-leading total to 40 in 41 innings.

North scored all its runs in the third when Pat Ennis beat out an infield hit and scored on Bob Biagini's double to left. Dave King hit a booming triple and Earle drove in the final run with a single.

Ray Coscia was the losing pitcher despite a strong performance. He yielded only six hits, struck out four and went the distance.

Quincy bounced back to top Brookline, 6-4, for its third win as it came from behind and Fran Donovan hit a two-run single in the ninth for the win.

The Presidents had trailed from the start but pitcher Andy Carrera slammed the door on the Brookline attack as he gave up just three hits in five relief innings and collected two doubles and single himself.

Donato had three hits and reached on an error in four trips to the place. He is one of the more highly rated prospects Quincy has had in some time.

John Kavanaugh's defensive play was another key to the win as he made some spectacular stops and throws to cut down Brookline runners.

Quincy, after taking a 3-1 lead, was defeated by Brockton, 6-3, under the lights at Adams Field.

The Presidents tied the score at 1-1 on back to back hits by Tom Brennan and Carrera and took a 3-1 lead in the third with Mike Scurti delivering a two-run single. However, Steve Fobes took over on the Brockton mound and shut the door and his mates came back with two runs in the fifth to tie the score and added three in the sixth to win it.

Quincy Girls Defeat North For Title

It was an up and down week for the Quincy girls' softball team.

The First Ladies staged one of the year's top comebacks to edge North Quincy 12-11 for the second time and win the city championship.

They followed up with one of their biggest scoring outputs to bury Brookline, 35-13, but then were walloped last Friday by Suburban League powerhouse Brockton 11-4. Quincy's record stands at 6-5.

The First Ladies play at Weymouth South today (Thursday) and next Tuesday will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:15 at Faxon Field.

The North Quincy girls, with a 2-7 mark, will host Weymouth

North Friday at 3:15 at the Atlantic Junior High field and Tuesday will play at Waltham at the same time.

It appeared Cheryl Manoli's North girls were well on their way to their third win and a split of the Quincy games as they rolled to a 10-3 lead after three innings.

However, Barbara Webster's Quincy girls roared back with six runs in the fourth. North added a run in the top of the sixth but Quincy came back with three in the seventh for the win.

In the seventh Maureen Maher walked and Denise Leonard and Debbie Ohlson singled to fill the bases. Laura Miller, the league's leading hitter who had four singles and four RBIs, tied the game with a two-run single and two walks forced in the winning run.

Debbie Russo was the winning pitcher, making her record 3-2.

Liz Derbes paced Quincy to its runaway win over Brookline as she went six for seven and Maher added five hits.

Miller added to her league-leading average with three for four and Russo was again the winner, improving her mark to 4-2.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

One of the least-known, and yet one of the most amazing records in big league baseball history is the one for a player handling the most chances in a row without making an error... The record is held by Stuffy McInnis who was once an American League first baseman... In 1921 and 1922, McInnis handled 1,700 consecutive chances without making an error!... Just imagine handling 1,700 throws, popups and grounders in a row without making an error... No one has ever come close to that record.

Oddly enough, the man who started one of the biggest sports ideas ever conceived, is hardly remembered today... Few people recognize the name of Carl Stotz of Williamsport, Pa. - yet he is the man who thought of, and founded Little League baseball... Stotz started Little League baseball in 1939.

Here's quite a baseball oddity... There was once a pitcher who pitched only one complete big league game in his life - but that one game was, amazingly enough, a no-hitter!... His name was Bobo Holloman... Despite pitching a no-hitter in the American League in 1953, Holloman was never able to pitch another complete game in the majors before that or after that!

I bet you didn't know...that Colman's has the most complete line of baseball and softball needs in New England at lowest prices anywhere. Save at Colman's on famous name brands. Complete team outfitting at Colman's savings.

Broad Meadows Ends Sterling's Win Streak, 7-5

The Broad Meadows girls' softball team ended Sterling's winning streak at 14 games with a 7-5 win last week.

Christine Guest's BM girls came from behind as Gina Casarano and Donna Murphy pitched well. Kathy Flynn hit a grand slam homer and a double and Murphy and Mary Kamb also had doubles.

Nancy MacDonald led Dave Meehan's Sterling girls with three hits and Tricia Ruf had a home run.

Serafini, Tehan Furnace Brook Winners

Joyce Serafini and Tom Tehan shot low gross of 40, the lowest this year, in last week's Scotch foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club.

Edna Phelps and Jim Morrison, Pat Tehan and Joe Berranco and Amy Stearns and Mario Serafini tied for low net of 33, followed by another three-way tie between Marie Corayher and Cully Johnson, Priscilla O'Neill and Jerry Petronelli and Mel Corbin and Ed O'Neill, all with 35s.

In a battle of the unbeaten Quincy Junior Baseball League division leaders, Foley Chrysler-Plymouth blanked Keohane's, 4-0, to improve its American League record to 5-0, while Keohane's fell to 4-1 in the National League.

Billy Phillips pitched a three-hit shutout to defeat Keohane's top hurler, Kevin Burt, who gave up seven hits and collected two of his team's three hits. It was Phillips' third straight win and he has struck out 23. Jackie Bolster, Mat Elofson and Kyle Robertson had doubles and Paul Miller, Mike Murphy, Roy Peterson and Pete Furtado singles. Foley's turned in its third double play of the year from Miller to Furtado to Bolster.

Gabriel® RED RYDERS®

The heavy duty replacement shock with a bigger piston for more control

Replacing worn-out shocks with heavy-duty Red Ryders gives you extra control. Because a bigger than standard piston helps Red Ryders hold your wheels in better contact with the road.

Coil springs for consistent operation—even after years of use. There are four in each Red Ryder. Two in many other shocks.

"O" ring piston seal—it makes sure the fluid flows through the valving—instead of uselessly bypassing it.

Red Ryder's 1 1/8" piston (40% larger than the pistons used in standard replacement shocks) helps Red Ryders shed heat faster—gives you more control when the going's rough.

Gabriel's special nine stage valving (many other shocks use only six) gives Red Ryders better resistance to fade.

The Quincy Sun
1372 Hancock St.
Quincy, Mass.

May 7, 1979

Dear Sirs,

Having moonlighted for several years cleaning ovens, I decided to embark on it as a full time business. Not knowing how successful I'd be and wanting to be conservative in my advertising expense, I chose the Quincy Sun as my prime advertising outlet.

In a period of less than three weeks and at an expense of only fifteen dollars, I received a total of 27 phone calls in response to my classified ad. All of these phone calls resulted in a customer and the total of new customers was almost double that figure when these people either told or referred me to their friends. I have the Quincy Sun to thank for over fifty new customers.

At the very least, I was enormously surprised and more than pleased at the result of my classified ad in the Quincy Sun. One thing I like most about advertising in the Quincy Sun is that my ad does not get "lost" in the paper. I have and would recommend the Quincy Sun as an advertising outlet for anyone with something to sell or a service to offer.

4,000 Plants To Beautify Flower Beds

The Forestry Department is conducting its yearly spring planting of 4000 annuals in flower beds throughout the city.

The 4000 plants include 1800 red salvia, 1100 blue ageratum and 1100 white petunias with the tri-color combination providing passive beauty in every ward in the city.

The plants selected have been used for a number of years because of the hardy stock during the hot summer months.

Forestry Department personnel are doing the planting following the rototilling, liming and fertilizing of the beds several weeks ago.

The quotation for the plantings was from Milton Greenhouse with 25 cents for each salvia plant and 20 cents for petunias and ageratum.

The total cost is $890.

The Quincy Cooperative

Statement to Shareholders By President John R. Herbert At The Annual Meeting May 23, 1979

(The By-laws of The Quincy Co-operative Bank provide that "The Directors shall cause to be submitted to the Shareholders, at each Annual Meeting, a general statement of the business of the preceding year and a report of the financial condition of the Corporation." This report is submitted to Shareholders in compliance with that By-law provision.)

In the Spring 90 years ago in Quincy, a meeting was held to which "the Public, both Ladies and Gentlemen, are cordially invited."

The object of the meeting was to hear Lieutenant Governor J.Q.A. Brackett and a Mr. D. Eldredge of Boston talk about co-operative banking. Out of the meeting came a vote to organize the Quincy Co-operative Bank, named for Josiah Quincy, Jr., who founded the co-operative banking movement in Massachusetts.

The Bank began with 630 Shareholders and a Capital of $690. The first year the Capital increased to $11,400, which was considered a remarkable growth for a new enterprise of this kind.

So here we are today celebrating our 90th Birthday. The $11,400 of assets has grown to more than $123,000,000 and our 630 Shareholders have increased to 36,582. Our services have increased but our initial goal providing funds for home ownership and the assuring a safe haven for deposits remain steadfast.

Now, on to our Annual Report to Shareholders: Normally this annual report is pretty much a self centered message, telling you how your Bank made out in the year past. However, we feel this 1979 Annual Meeting message must recognize the general state of the business - inflation generally, but primarily food and energy prices affected Banking operations in the fiscal year just closed.

The signs that our customers are being hurt by the grim, onward thrust of unchecked inflation were manifest in several ways.

First of all, we showed an asset growth of almost $2,000,000 during the past year, which was somewhat less the average for previous years. Customers just didn't have the usual amount of money for savings.

Another interesting sign was the fact that, while we added 1,000 new NOW accounts in the past year, the average balance in these accounts dropped from $795.00 last year to $760.00 this year.

In all candor, no one in the banking or the business fields knows what the future holds for the economy. There are those who predict a recession ahead; there are others who see a recession as a by-product of a drive by President Carter to slow down inflation. But as long as the cost of food, home heating oil and gasoline continue to move upward, the average person will have less and less for savings. Middle class citizens are already shrinking their standard of living to try to keep up with the vicious spiraling of costs.

In the banking business, other uncertainties face us. The government is working on various ideas to regulate or change savings certificates now that the 26-week savings certificates have been attacked as unfair to smaller savers. The $10,000 minimum deposit for 26-week certificates is seen in some quarters as favoring larger investors. Federal and State regulations, which for years have set interest rate ceilings for thrift institutions such as ours, may be eroded and emasculated by new regulations.

Interest rates on mortgages continued upward but unlike many banks in our servicing area, we were able to continue to provide the basic service for which co-operative banking was established: to provide a means by which people can buy a home. There could be some cold comfort to the home buyer in the present high interest rates because of the net effect of the interest payments on many a person's income tax.

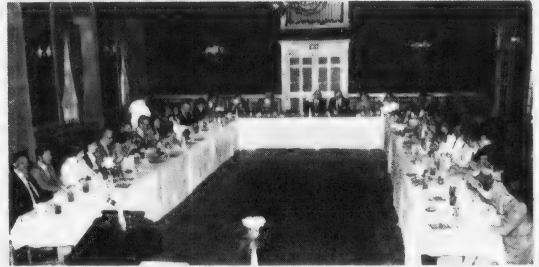

It's not the happiest time in the life of thrift institutions. The changes and uncertainties have come rapidly. It was only in November of 1977 that John A. Hardin, in retiring as President of the U.S. League of Savings Association, told his membership:

"Well, I have done about all I can for you, I have led you into the Land of Milk and Honey." The words rolled out from John as only a southern native can deliver a speech.

MOST POPULAR WORKSHOP at the third annual "Woman to Woman Day" at Lincoln-Hancock Community School was "What We Haven't Got A Lot Of...Money". It was conducted by, from left, Jeremiah Foley, Quincy Co-operative Bank branch manager; Richard Darr, Quincy Motor Co.; Steve Norton, Remick's; and Fred Bergfors, Quincy Oil Co. The day was sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College. The Quincy Co-operative Bank hosted a social hour following the workshops.

Our Pride and Joy: general scene of the third annual presentation luncheon for The Quincy Co-operative Bank. Josiah Quincy awards to outstanding high school students in the areas where we have banking facilities. Included in the presentations is the $1,500 scholarship given annually by the bank to a Quincy Junior College student to help with the winner's higher education program. Scene above is the main ballroom of The Neighborhood Club of Quincy where the awards luncheon was held May 2, 1979.

Yet only 17 months later we find that the milk has turned sour.

The drastic change in such a short time does demonstrate the uncertain state of banking today.

One aspect of the discussions of banking that bothers us is how our primary role so often gets a secondary billing. We feel that our basic job is to safeguard the funds entrusted to us by our depositors and to insure that the stated interest rate is paid.

In the face of increasingly confusing reports about the "Thrift Industry," as we are called, we feel proud of these operating figures for The Quincy Co-operative Bank for the year ending April 30, 1979:

1. Our net profit for year ended 4/30/79 was $587,710.92; Net profit for year ended 4/30/78 was $333,418.03 or we had an increase of $254,292.89. This year's profit was an increase of 76.2% over last year's profit.
2. Our assets as of April 30, 1979 were $123,019,583, or an increase of almost $2,000,000 over the previous year.
3. Share Capital, our money on deposit, grew by $1,676,000 over the year and it now stands at $106,740,795. It was a year ago we went over the $100,000,000 mark for Share Capital and it is a source of satisfaction that the figure continues to grow.
4. Our shareholders continued to benefit from our liberal interest payments, the maximum the law allows - and we paid out $6,433,677 in dividends the past year, an increase of more than $400,000.
5. Of the eight major co-operative banks in the State, The Quincy Co-operative Bank not only has the highest actual reserve dollar total, but we have the highest percentage of reserves to assets. We have reserves of $11,612,583 or 9.4% of our assets.
6. We have kept our bank liquid and our high reserve ratio has been one reason for the high profitability this year. We are required by law to have a liquidity of approximately 7 percent and double this is considered good. Ours was 29.7% at the close of our business year April 30, 1979.
7. Our new account business grew handsomely in the year past. We opened 10,085 new accounts, an increase of 1,835 over the preceding year. Our three year activity in new accounts is an impressive tribute to the Bank and its personnel.
8. Also in the new business category, we opened more than 1,000 new NOW accounts for a total of 6,261. As we pointed out earlier the average balance per NOW account was $760 or $35 per account less than last year.
9. For the first time in the history of our bank, our transactions for the past year exceeded a half billion dollars. The exact figure is $519,940,000, which included our bank's business in savings deposits, savings withdrawals, mortgage payments, checks cashed, register checks sold, loans granted, investment purchases, and investment maturities and sales. The increase in transactions over the previous year was 20 per cent.
10. We have not borrowed money. We could increase our asset size by such a move and we could possibly do some "debt leveraging" but we prefer to operate with what we have.

Some of you may wonder why we did not offer 26-week certificates until the first of this year. Actually, 26-week certificates represent another failure by our government to control and regulate the present unpredictable national economy.

Designed to create a large new source of mortgage funds, the 26-week certificates failed, in the Northeast anyway, to do any such thing. Banks that went into the certificates last June found that to meet the high interest rate, it would be risky to put this 26-week money into 30 year mortgages. Instead many banks put the new funds into 26-week notes that paid a slightly higher rate than the certificates.

In most cases, the spread between the interest due and the interest paid was less than we normally need to meet operating expenses.

We feel our judgement on the 26-week certificates was correct: We waited for a more stable interest rate before committing our bank to this form of investment. At the beginning of the 26-week certificates in June of 1978, the rate was 7.801% but it rapidly went up to 10.478% by December. Now it is running around 9.60% subject to weekly fluctuation. Part of the lower rate, of course, can be attributed to the government's recent action to remove the 1/4 of one percent premium first offered; and the elimination of interest compounding.

When we started to offer the 26-week certificates we were selling about $2,000,000 a month in this category but now, with the recent government changes, the figure is down to about $1,000,000 monthly. The bloom, so to speak, is off the roses.

So much for the general operating review.

Once again we can report a year of internal progress for the Bank.

Bank Progress Report

Our branches continue to show healthy growth. In fact, Southern Artery grew to the point that we moved it from a three day operation to five days.

Our computer program has advanced with the acquisition this month of IBM System 34, a more sophisticated installation which greatly enhances the Electronic Data Processing (EDP) capabilities of your Bank.

We were impressed by an employee generated Co-operative Training Program by which various employees, told other employees about their work. This covered all phases of the Bank's business including savings and mortgage operations. Credit for this imaginative and useful effort goes to Assistant Vice President Carl R. Abramson, William J. Connolly, Pat Jones, Jean Kelleher and O. Donald Gohl.

We were not impressed, on the other hand by the fact that two of our branches, Hanover and Braintree, were held up during the year. Nothing of this kind has ever happened before in the long history of our Bank. We must commend our staffers for handling these two nasty incidents with such finesse. Our rules are very simple: the safety of our customers and personnel are of prime importance. We must take special note of the traumatic experience of O. Donald Gohl, our Supervisor of Branches, who was at both Hanover and Braintree when the holdups occurred. He handled both situations masterfully. And we are changing the physical layouts of our branches to hopefully discourage further holdups.

Our Board voted this past year to provide dental insurance and long term disability insurance at no cost to our employees. These two steps represent once again the recognition by our Board of the fine work by our employees. Under the guidance of Assistant Vice President Carl R. Abramson, our Employee Manual, a first for our Bank, was completed.

Early this year, Miss Marjorie Caswell, a Vice President of the Bank, voluntarily retired after 46 years of service. She had been with the Bank for longer than any other employee. All of us join in wishing her well in retirement. However, we have told her that if she gets bored, we would be happy to see her again even on a part time basis.

Our employees continued their demonstration of concern for their community by various blood donations when Red Cross appeals have been made.

Our people at the Bank have shown an active interest in their communities.

One of the busiest people this past year in community work was Senior Vice President Ronald A. McKee who served as Ice Coordinator for the Quincy Kiwanis Club's 60th Annual Hockey Tournament — one of the most successful on the Eastern Seaboard with more than 1000 youngsters — from Canada to Long Island Sound participating. In addition, Mr. McKee serves as Treasurer for the Pembroke Boys Baseball League and he coached his team and won the Police Athletic Basketball Program this year. And speaking of Service Clubs, Administrative Vice President Frank Mitchell served as Program Chairman this year for the Quincy Rotary Club.

One observation that pleases us is the compilation completed December 31, 1978 showing that women comprise 77.4 percent of our work force. The Officers, Branch Managers and Supervisors Group shows that 55.9 percent are women and 44.1 percent are men.

Source of compliments to the Bank is our community involvement. We renewed our regular contributions — scholarships and gifts to worthwhile community agencies this past year — and we added a few special, one time contributions. For instance, when our horrendous winter cold depleted the City's emergency oil supply fund for needy families, we gave a substantial amount. A private charity, the Louisa C. Smith Fund, is available to the Mayor of Quincy to help with fuel problems of needy citizens but it ran out of money last winter.

We made one time contributions to such diverse causes as the restoration of the Old Oaken Bucket House in Scituate; the Marshfield campaign for a new ambulance; the Cardinal Cushing School Fund to repair damages after one of the buildings had a fire; and the Black Pond Nature Preserve to help save the Quaking Bog in Norwell.

Once again your President pays tribute to our great staff and our great directors. We have a well coordinated team working to give our shareholders the best bank on the South Shore. Our directors constitute the hardest working group of bank directors anywhere around. The statute says the responsibility for the management of the Bank belongs to the directors; but the overall operation can be delegated to the President. As President, I have been helped immeasurably by the various active committees headed by directors: the Finance and Security Committees as required by law; the Executive Committee as provided by the By-laws; and the three ad hoc committees on internal financial management, business development, and site selection.

It's an exciting, challenging period in banking and our Board has risen to meet any challenge before us. With this kind of support, any President's role in bank operations is helped immeasurably.

And, we do have to observe on this 90th Birthday of our bank that "Josiah would have liked that!"

Three big reasons why we bet you can't use X-Press 24 just once.

Now you can get 24-hour cash with your BayBanks Card, BayBanks Master Charge Card, and BayBanks Visa Card.

X-Press 24 is that regardless of what day or what time of day, instant cash is always ready and waiting. Just think:

No more rushing to get to the bank before it closes.

No more "Who can we get to cash a check?" late at night or on Sundays.

No more "We can't leave until the bank opens in the morning" when you're going on a trip.

No more gearing your life around your bank's hours.

Sure, BayBanks X-Press 24 can become a bit habit forming.

But wouldn't it be nice, for a change, to have a habit that's actually good for you?

24 hour cash at any X-Press 24.

Soon, there will be more than 50 X-Press 24 machines and the network is still growing. In fact, we have the largest network of 24-hour banking machines in Massachusetts. This means you can use X-Press 24 close to where you live, where you work—just about anywhere you go in eastern Massachusetts.

Free ice cream.

Here's an offer you're going to lick: We'll give you a coupon for a free ice cream cone when you come in for a demonstration or just try X-Press 24.

But we bet you can't use it just once.

Or in just one place. Find the BayBanks X-Press 24 nearest you.

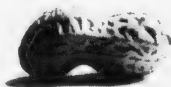

BayBanks X-Press 24™ is an automated teller that lets you get cash whenever you want—every day, 24 hours a day. And now, not only can you use your BayBanks Card in X-Press 24, but you can use your BayBanks Master Charge Card and BayBanks Visa Card as well.

Your BayBanks Card allows you to withdraw up to $350 per day from your Something Better checking, NOW or savings account. Plus you can check your balances.

And with your BayBanks Visa or BayBanks Master Charge Card, you can get a cash advance up to $150 a day, per card—up to your credit limit.

If you think that this is the type of service that you might grow very fond of—we think you're right.

Which leads us to...

The Peanut Theory

Nobody can eat just one peanut. Same theory seems to apply to BayBanks X-Press 24; no one seems to be able to use it just once. Perhaps it's because X-Press 24 is so easy to use. You just:

1. Insert your card in the slot.
2. Enter your secret password on the keyboard
3. Follow the instructions which appear on the video screen. That's all there is to it. But of course the real beauty of

JOHN R. HERBERT

Quincy With A Great Second Chance

Progress is fine, says John R. Herbert, president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank, but not at the expense of the city's "quality of life."

"Let's not get so involved in planning highways and public garages and new stores that we lose our city as an ideal place in which to work and live," he told the Quincy Historical Society.

Herbert, a longtime observer of the Quincy scene as editor of the Patriot Ledger and later the Boston Herald Traveler, was the main speaker at the historical society's annual meeting.

He noted that Quincy has made mistakes in the past, notably the failure to build a downtown East-West Connector, but it has been presented with a new chance to correct them.

"Not only do we have planning," he said, "but we have millions of dollars being spent for highway and public transportation work that can dramatically affect our future for the next 50 to 100 years."

"Let us not, this time, make a mess of the great opportunity before us."

Herbert predicted that new and better access to downtown Quincy that is promised by the Southeast Expressway ramps and the Burgin Parkway Extension will help revitalize the Square.

"Adequate access can very well make downtown Quincy more attractive than South Shore Plaza at Braintree, which will have its traffic problems," he said.

"As the cost of gasoline goes up and heating costs begin to outstrip the cost of tax bills on single homes, the so-called Baharian Plan to ring Quincy Square with apartments makes sense.

"Walking to work or taking the T may well become a significant part of our way of life in the future."

"Quincy Square can be developed into a giant service center with banks, lawyers, investment houses, offices, doctors and dentists and all sorts of professional services from Dimmock St. to School

QHA Hiring Goals Criticized Affirmative Action Plan Hits New Snag

By TOM HENSHAW

The long, tortuous road to an affirmative action plan for the Quincy Housing Authority took another detour this week.

Joseph Vera, the director of Fair Housing for HUD in Boston, said he is sending back a plan that was submitted to him last week because "I have some problems with it."

The plan, which Vera said was due April 6, was sent in by the Housing Authority despite the fact that the Harborview Residents Association, the tenants' group, had not given its comments on it.

QHA Chairman Carmine D'Olimpio accused the HRC of dragging its feet in reviewing; the plan. HUD requires tenant input before the Authority takes action on such plans.

The Authority has hired a consulting firm, DSI of Wilmington, run by David Scott, to help devise a plan that has been requested by HUD since last fall.

D'Olimpio said at the last QHA meeting that the HRC has broken several appointments with Scott.

But HRC President James St. Angelo told the Authority that the appointments were not broken but the HRC's attorney failed to notify the Committee of the meetings.

"Whatever it is," said D'Olimpio, "we're damned if we don't and damned if we do."

He said QHA Administrator Clement O'Brien is trying to set up a meeting among Scott, Vera, Edward Martin, head of HUD in Boston; the HRC, the Authority and representatives of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, and Sons. Edward M. Kennedy and Paul Tsongas, to solve the problem.

Meanwhile, Vera said one of his basic problems with the plan submitted to him on May 21 is that its goals for minority and female hiring are not high enough.

"They are using to set goals the participation of minorities and females in the present work force in the labor market area," he told The Sun.

"Most all of us agree that because of the failure to take affirmative action in the past and because of past discrimination the work force in the Greater Boston labor market is deficient in minorities and females at all levels."

"So you don't set as a goal an underutilization, that already exists. You set as a goal those who are available to work and train, not those who already participate. That's a basic flaw."

Vera said he didn't think that the tenants' organization was to blame for the delay in getting the affirmative action plan off the ground.

"It's Mr. O'Brien and the QHA commissioners who signed the agreement to come up with a 25-30 New Stores In Hancock Area Development 'Concept'

Mayor Tobin has disclosed a "concept" for the development of the John Hancock Parking Area that includes conversion of a section of Hancock St. into a mall.

The overall development would take five years in the planning and construction and would include one or two "major anchor tenants" plus 25 to 30 specialty shops.

"I think we have narrowed down the direction we'd like to go in the Hancock Parking lot," said the Mayor.

"I am very enthused about one concept that has been put forward. I'm hoping the City Council and the business community and the people of Quincy share the same enthusiasm."

Tobin said he has been talking to two developers about plans for the Hancock lot and "I'm more impressed with one of them than the other."

"Either of them can make the undertaking," he said, "but one of them seems to have more

Lifting Oil Price Controls Will Increase Inflation Says Donnelly

Lifting price controls on oil will only contribute to inflation while yielding minimal domestic production increases, says Cong. Brian J. Donnelly.

Donnelly made the statement in explaining his vote with the majority in a Democratic House caucus against President Carter's plan to phase out crude oil price controls.

The Congressman, who has been a consistent opponent of decontrol, said he felt the President's decision neglects the New England states and would inflict higher prices on the area's consumers.

"The American people have had it," he said. "Over the past few years they have made sacrifices, they have tried to modify their energy consumption habits and they have paid higher prices for energy. "Now, with reports of huge oil company profits and gasoline shortages predicted for the next few months, Americans are slapped with decontrol."

He said studies show that decontrol would cost the average family an additional $135 in 1982, the first year of decontrol, and if the OPEC countries raise their prices 10 per cent it would mean $175.

"The country needs a long term energy policy and phased-in decontrol of crude oil prices will be necessary sometime down the road," he said.

He called Carter's energy policy "a haphazard approach . . . a regressive economic attack on people who are dependent on petroleum products for their energy needs."

Marine Major General's Keynote Theme:

'Too Many Forget What Memorial Day Is All About'

"For them, uncommon valor was a common virtue," Major General Bernard E. Trainor, USMC, told a gathering at Memorial Day exercises held Monday at Mount Wollaston Cemetery to honor the nation's war dead.

"Too many Americans forget what Memorial Day is all about," he said in paying tribute to those who "did their duty" despite disputes over American war policy.

He said the people of this country must retain the "will and capability" to defend their rights and to fight for them.

Trainor, deputy commanding general for education at the Marine Corps Education Center, Quantico, Va., said that the moral fibre of the nation "is still in danger". He mentioned recent happenings in Iran and Rhodesia as examples the "force and brutality are still in vogue as the final arbiters in society."

"We are not honoring heroes today," he said. "We are honoring saints who overcame their fears, hungers and yearning to live, to defend their country."

The ceremonies at Mount Wollaston followed a parade which proceeded from the Ross Parkway at School St., along Hancock St. to Washington and Coddington Sts., to the cemetery.

The thin crowd which braved the rain watched as the 215th Army Band and musical units from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and the Renegade Drum and Bugle Corps as they stepped along.

At Quincy Sq. the parade paused while Mayor Arthur Tobin, General Trainor and other officials placed wreaths on the tombs of John Adams and John Quincy Adams in the crypt of the Church of the Presidents.

Irving Isaacson, commander of the Quincy Veterans Council and chief marshal of the parade, and honored guests reviewed the parade from a stand outside police headquarters across from the cemetery.

Koch Club Plans 28th Flag Day Parade, Ceremonies

The Koch Club will sponsor its 28th annual Flag Day parade and observance Thursday, June 14 starting at 6:15 p.m.

Richard J. Koch, executive director said:

Although sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy, the Flag Day observance belongs to everyone and all groups and organizations in Quincy and the South shore are welcome to join in commemorating this holiday.

Bands and drum and bugle corps are requested to volunteer their services to lead the 4,000 marching feet of the boys and girls participating. The effort is totally a volunteer project without financial assistance.

The Quincy High School band, the North Quincy High School band, the Renegades and Drifters, Holbrook High Schools, Sir Thomas Moore Squires, Braintree Braves and St. Ann's, Neponset have all assisted in providing music for the past 27 years.

This year's parade and observance will be dedicated to the Bi-Centennial of the Massachusetts Constitution.

The theme will be "Freedom Under Our Massachusetts Constitution" drafted in 1779 by John Adams in what is now Quincy. The document is the oldest constitution in the country and was the model for the United States Constitution.

The 1600 boys and girls of the baseball and softball leagues of the Koch Club will parade, each carrying a flag in the line of march, to keep as a gift following the observance.

Other youth groups are invited to join the event with a representative contingent of marchers from their organization with banners and uniforms of their units. Joining with the Koch Club in past years has been St. Ann's Baseball Leagues, St. John's Baseball Leagues and other recreation organization units.

All military, veteran, civic and community organizations are welcome as well as Boy Scouts, Cub Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and fraternal organizations. Each is welcome to attend with a color guard or marching unit. A number of Girl Scout, Camp Fire Girls and Boy Scout units have participated in past years.

Assembly time for the parade will be at 6 p.m. sharp at the Vocational Technical School parking area on Coddington St. Parade starting time is 6:15 p.m. The parade route will be Coddington St., right onto Washington St., right onto Hancock St., right onto Southern Artery and right into Veterans Memorial Stadium.

At 7:15 p.m. in the stadium following the parade, the flag raising ceremony will take place. A brief program will follow the presentation of Koch Club scholarship awards, the Quincy City Club essay and poster contest awards and the school sponsored Mass. Constitution Bi-Centennial Contest presentations.

Koch may be contacted for any further information.

HERE'S HOW YOUR HOME CAN PAY FOR ITS OWN IMPROVEMENTS.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like converting your basement into a room your whole family can eat, play, and relax in.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and how much you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like making your dreamhouse more than just a day dream.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

TIN CAN SAFETY

Tiny slivers of metal that shred off the lid when a can is opened might be dangerous - although exhaustive tests have, as yet, failed to prove the tiny shreds are harmful. However, the FDA is still worried about this and offers the following safety rules for opening canned foods.

Use a can-opener with a rotating blade which produces fewer tiny slivers than the stationary blade. Be sure the blade is sharp. If it isn't - get a new one.

You've probably noticed that there are now tin-plated steel lids on the "open this end" of otherwise aluminum cans of frozen orange juice. The aluminum cans were shredding too many and too large fragments for the FDA's peace of mind. Besides, the aluminum lids were not held by the magnets in can-openers and the housewives had to fish the lids out of the "soup".

Council Budget Cuts Near Half-Million Mark

The City Council's Finance Committee has cut $440,468 out of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's $99.1 million budget and there appears to be little likelihood of further major cuts.

The Committee was scheduled to meet last night [Wednesday] at 5 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chamber to tackle the requests of six minor departments plus debt service and temporary loans.

The departments were Veterans Services, Health, Library, Water, Retirement and Parking Meters.

The Committee met last Wednesday and Thursday nights on the Hospital Budget, which Chairman John J. Lydon described as so confusing it was sent back to be done over.

"It was not put together properly," he said. "The columns of figures did not add up."

Lydon said there was also a matter of nearly a million dollars that the Committee placed on hold but he added it probably will be reinstated after study.

The Chairman said he was concerned that those who had put the budget together had not yet come up with projected salary increases that would be added later in a supplemental budget.

The budget presented by Tobin is only 2.8 per cent over that of last year, well within the 4 per cent cap passed by the State Legislature.

"If we pass a 2.8 per cent budget," said Lydon, "and the supplemental brings it to 4.3 per cent then it would take a 2/3 vote of the Council to pass it."

School Committee Approves 3 Retirement Requests

The Quincy school committee has approved the retirement of three teachers, to become effective at the end of the academic year.

The three are Sylvia A. Edgar, Lincoln-Hancock School; Roy Merritt and Katherine Townsend, both of North Quincy High. The board also approved the retirement of Marguerite V. Chandler, a clerk typist.

The committee accepted the resignation of Caroline E. Haworth, a psychologist, and granted a year's leave of absence to Anna Fernicola of North Quincy High.

Jewels
& Gems

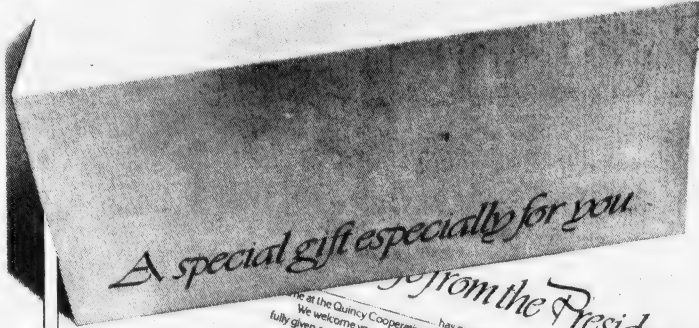

by Stan Manin

About ten years ago, Aldo Cipullo designed a pair of love bracelets for Cartier's, the famous French jewelry house. The two eighteen carat gold bracelets came with a screw driver. The idea is to have the two lovers screw the bracelets onto each other's wrists. Theoretically, the bracelets cannot be removed without the screwdriver. If you had purchased this charming piece of jewelry when it first came out, it would have been a bargain. Its current selling price, $580, is about twice its original cost.

Unusual pieces of jewelry are available in our fine collection at CROON & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. Our selection of gems is genuine. Diamonds are available loose or mounted. Come in and choose your own personal diamond and its setting. Repairs on jewelry and watches, diamond setting and remodeling are handled on our premises. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Koch Club Honors Honorary Member, President Kennedy At Memorial Mass

The late President John F. Kennedy was among deceased members, friends and benefactors of the Koch Club of Quincy scheduled to be honored at a memorial Mass to be celebrated last night [Wednesday] at 7 p.m. in Our Lady's Chapel at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Kennedy, whose 62nd birthday was marked on Tuesday, May 29, was made an honorary member of the club in 1958 while still in the U.S. Senate.

Seventy-five deceased persons of all ages who participated in the Koch Club activities during the past 31 years were remembered at the Mass. Among the group were 10 charter members of the club, founded in 1948, with 30 participants in a recreational softball program at Cavanagh Stadium, North Quincy, and social and charitable programs at the old North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

Edward J. Keohane was chairman of the memorial program.

Overtime Workers Put Cemeteries Into Good Shape

again.

"We asked for volunteers from the different departments to work overtime trimming hedges, mowing grass and doing all the little things that make a cemetery look nice."

"We owe a special thanks to the men who volunteered to work from early in the morning until well past quitting time, right through the rain, to get them ready."

Tobin said some people came up to him during Memorial Day exercises in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery and told him that the cemetery looked beautiful.

"I know we did the right thing," he said.

He said the extra time had to be put in because the city cares for seven cemeteries and the Cemetery Department does not have the manpower to do the job.

Spring Brings Schemes

No single group is more vulnerable to consumer fraud than the elderly.

Sadly, those on fixed, limited incomes, who are most tempted by glib promises, are exactly those who can least afford to be victimized. To protect our elderly citizens from sharp con artists, shady promoters and fast-talking salesmen should be a first priority.

To help protect you from these frauds, we are offering free the booklet "Target THE ELDERLY" sponsored by the Consumer Affairs Foundation. The booklet covers such subjects as:

- Work at Home Schemes
- Charity Frauds
- Lonely Hearts Frauds
- Hearing Aid Fraud
- Health Quackery
- and other frauds and schemes

The 1979 awards winners were chosen by the foundation's administrative council made up of principals, guidance counselors and other executives of participating schools.

The Quincy award winners are:

He's Trying To Give Away $25,000

Atty. George G. Burke has $25,000 he is trying to give away. And, it may be difficult to do.

Burke is executor of the estate of Mrs. Christina Sacchetti of Quincy who died June 21, 1974.

Mrs. Sacchetti loved animals—especially her pet dog, "Missy".

She willed $5,000 to "Missy" to assure the dog would be well cared for and further stipulated that more of her estate be used for "Missy's" care if needed.

Mrs. Sacchetti also instructed Burke as executor that once it was determined that "Missy" was no longer in need that the remaining money be given away.

But, with this provision: "... if Missy doesn't need it, all the rest and residue and remainder of my estate be given to a society that shelters and cares for homeless animals and does not destroy animals."

"Missy", who had been well cared for since her mistress's death, no longer has the need. She died last April 6.

There is $25,000 left and Burke is now trying to carry out her wishes.

"She was a very fine woman," he says. "She was very fond of animals. She wanted to do something for them."

If you think you qualify—or know someone who might—you can write (don't call) Burke in care of his office: 339 Hancock St., North Quincy.

ONE OF THE Quincy Police Department's most popular members—Sgt. Dan Mahoney—retires today after 35 years service.

MAHONEY

Dan, head mechanic for the department, is 65 and has eight grandchildren but hardly looks it. (He must have fibbed about his age to get on the police department in 1944.)

The family gave him a private retirement dinner at the Barnside in Hanover. Dan's wife, Virginia, is a secretary at Snug Harbor School. Their daughter, Elizabeth, is married to City Recreation Director Charles Alongi. The other children are Dan Jr., lineman with the Braintree Electric Light Co., Michael, a plumber apprentice, Gail Walbridge, a nurse, and Joan Clark, a Pittsburgh teacher.

Dan, his wife and other members of the family are planning a trip to Ireland.

THIS WILL BE a busy graduation week for Councillor Frank McCauley and family. On Saturday, Frank will attend his 20th anniversary reunion and graduation ceremonies at Bentley College where his son, Michael, will receive an Associate of Science degree in accounting. On Monday, son Robert will receive his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Economics from Bates College, Lewiston, Me. On Tuesday, his daughter, Melissa, will graduate from Quincy High School.

ONE OF John Wayne's biggest fans is City Clerk John Gillis. And for years now people have seen a strong resemblance between him and Wayne.

The other day, John Capavella, Mayor Arthur Tobin's aide got Gillis to don a cowboy hat and snapped his picture (at right).

Tobin saw the picture and wrote a letter of introduction: "This letter will introduce to you my selection as a John Wayne look-alike and next mayor of Quincy—John (Amarillo Slim) Gillis."

Next mayor of Quincy? Hmmm!

SPEAKING OF TOBIN he celebrated his 49th birthday the other day with cake and ice cream from the office gang. Remember when he was a crew cut youngster just breaking into politics?

Quincy: A City With A

St. "And the stores will follow." Herbert pointed out that the city of Boston's greatest era of downtown development did not begin until some of its oldest stores—Gilchrist's, Stearns, Raymonds, etc.—departed.

Boston's shopping habits changed perhaps but the fact is that stores followed the business development," he said.

"So too, we can, on a smaller scale, see the Stop and Shop Office Building for Hancock and Granite Sts. as a critical force to redevelop downtown Quincy."

But even the best of new buildings have no meaning if the quality of the city's life is allowed to deteriorate, Herbert said.

"We can physically develop a fine community and have the whole effort nullified if people do not feel safe and secure either in their homes or outdoors," he said.

He suggested that if the historical society wanted to put together a significant display of the 1970s it would show pictures of littered beaches and parks, vandalism, smashed up autos and looted homes.

"There are those who predict that if the present situation continues," he said, "the decent citizens will be living in guarded enclaves and the lawless elements in the community will be free to roam the streets."

"I am not exaggerating. These problems exist now in most major cities. And the situation here is getting worse despite the fine work of our police. The fact is that good police work can be nullified by the courts."

By all means, he said, "let us drive ahead to make the most of the great chance we now have to redevelop our city but let us not forget the eternal problem that the challenge of 'quality of life' presents to us."

Here is a partial text of Herbert's remarks to the Historical Society:

"The need for the average citizen to make his or her point of view known to our political leaders is never greater. More and more we are seeing small pressure groups exerting a tremendous power on political leadership."

"If you don't like something you form an 'ad hoc' committee or a 'citizens coalition' and protest at State House and City Council hearings and elsewhere and these are the groups that get great display from the television and radio stations and the newspapers."

"But who, at a State House hearing, for instance, ever asks these groups how many people they represent? I have never seen an exploration of membership and leadership of ad hoc committees when speakers protest a piece of legislation. Nevertheless, these groups are there, where it counts, and the average citizen rarely if ever shows up."

"We should look constructively at our city's future from the point of view of its physical development."

"But equally important is to insure that the quality of life in our community will be good and secure and strong not only for today but for the long range future."

"There has been more attention paid by the media to Quincy's physical future in the past months than in the previous 25 years. These newspaper, radio and television reports can be divided into three groups, medically speaking:

- "In some cases, not many, the reports appear to be a post mortem examination of a once healthy community, now apparently dead.

- "In other cases the reports would indicate the patient is seriously ill but there is a chance of recovery.

- "And finally, once in a while, news stories would indicate that the patient is alive and well but needs a good physical checkup."

"Personally, I incline to the third viewpoint—that our city is indeed in good health but it needs a lot of tender loving care for a complete recovery from some of its present problems."

"The Sears Store, for some reason, seems to be the catalyst that has created all the publicity about Quincy. Anyone who seemed shocked by the news that Sears would quit our city in the months ahead has not seen the obvious for several years."

"The Sears operation pattern all over the United States has been to quit downtown."

"If you wondered how long Sears would stay here, all you had to do was to check the number of bays in the automotive department at Sears when the Hanover Mall Store was opened several years ago. Sears has two bays in Quincy—Hanover has a dozen or more. There was no physical way to expand the automotive service department of Sears in Quincy. Small item, perhaps, but significant to Sears."

"All the time the prophets of doom have been wringing their hands about Sears, they miss completely the real story of Quincy's great second chance to become an important and viable commercial and business center for this area."

"I say second chance because our city nearly ruined itself the first time around when, after World War I, we were boasting that Quincy was 'the fastest growing city in Massachusetts.' We said it with pride. It's a boast that no mayor in his right mind would ever want to make about any city in Massachusetts today."

"Quincy went on with its 1920 boom without benefit of city planning or zoning laws or ecological considerations. It is truly a wonder that we escaped total ruin. Yet we survived and most of what we have as evidence of that hectic period of the twenties is pretty good."

"Today, however, it is different."

"Not only do we have planning but we have millions of dollars being spent for highway and public transportation work that can dramatically affect our future for the next 50 to 100 years. Let us not, this time, make a mess of the great opportunity before us."

"I would like to point out that we have a notoriously bad record with regard to some projects that over the years would have had a beneficial effect on our city."

"Take, for instance, the years ago project called the Cottage Ave.-Foster St. widening. The idea was an early attempt at a cross-town highway to link Washington and Hancock Sts."

"There was no problem in widening Foster St. but Cottage Ave., which would have been an extension of Foster St., posed a special problem. There was a bank building in the way and there was something sacred about disturbing a bank structure. So Cottage Ave. was never widened."

"Shortly after, both sides of Cottage Ave. were built up and the widening could not be carried out anytime in the future. Today the bank building is vacant. It is for sale by the present non-bank owner."

"Having failed in this project the city tried again in later years with McGrath Highway. Now we were more ambitious because we would run a broad artery from Southern Artery to Hancock St. But again we blew it."

"We cut the road off just short of Hancock St. Having developed the broad artery thus far we diverted it into Mechanic

Tobin Signs Quarry Hill Rezoning Ordinance

Mayor Tobin Tuesday signed an ordinance rezoning approximately 10 acres of land atop Quarry St. hill from Planned Unit Development to open space.

City Councillors Daniel Raymond, James Sheets and Frank McCauley, members of the council's subcommittee on Quarr St., Land Use, Ron Iacobucci, chairman of the citizens Land Use Committee, and several members of the committee, were on hand for the signing.

The zoning change was approved unanimously last week by the council and is considered an important step in the six year battle to maintain the open space in the area on the west side of Quarry St.

Iacobucci said, following the signing, that his committee will make a survey of residents in the area for ideas on development of the open space as a park with exercise trails, gardens, historic lookout or band pavilion.

He said that now the ordinance has been signed his group will consider the possibilities for specific plans.

Because large windows increase the possibility of heat loss in winter and heat gain in summer, some experts suggest future homes be built with slitlike windows similar to those in medieval castles.

A Great Second Chance and Elm Sts. and created a fine bottleneck.

Now we are at it again. This time it is a proposal for a road from Granite St. to McGrath Highway, going under Hancock St. Again, the opponents are asking the city to do a halfway job, shutting off the new highway before it ever gets to Hancock St. If this is to be the case, why build it at all?

"The problems with these widenings and new highways do point to a single basic issue:

"How do you treat the victims of a widening or a new road so that they can accept the proposals?"

"It seems to me that this is the most critical part of any negotiations and planning. It is not all in the designs but in the programs to help those who stand to lose by having their places of business or homes wiped out."

There has to be a happy medium between necessary construction, destructive progress and dictatorial powers.

"Viewing the plans for downtown Quincy would indicate the need for adequate access from all directions."

"We have to hope that our city will be able to work out its present access problem because adequate access can very well make downtown Quincy more attractive than South Shore Plaza at Braintree, which will have its traffic problems."

There are those who think stores—the attracting of major merchandisers to Quincy Center—will resolve all of our ills. This is not necessarily the case.

Quincy Square can be developed into a giant service center with banks, lawyers, investment houses, offices, doctors and dentists and all sorts of professional services gathered in the area from Dimmock St. to School St. And the stores will follow.

To croakers who felt Quincy Square's doom was sealed by the Sears announcement, it should be pointed out that Boston's greatest era of extensive downtown building has come with the steady departure of its major stores.

Most of us can remember the famous old Boston stores: Gibbets, Stearns, Raymonds, Slater's, Conrads, Houghton and Dutton, Chandlers, S. S. Price and on.

Yet while they departed, downtown Boston got new skyscrapers: Prudential, John Hancock, First National Bank, Commercial Union, Merchants Bank, State Street Bank, Travelers Insurance, Shawmut Bank, Stone and Webster, Federal Reserve Bank, Keystone and so on. All of these are major building projects.

"Boston's shopping habits changed perhaps but the fact is that stores followed the business development. Uptown Boston got Saks Fifth Avenue and Lord and Taylor and both Filenes and Jordans did major rebuilding."

So too, we can, on a smaller scale, see the Stop and Shop Office Building for Hancock and Granite Sts., as a critical force to redevelop downtown Quincy.

"As the cost of gasoline goes up and heating costs begin to outstrip the cost of tax bills on single homes, the so called Baharian Plan to ring Quincy Square with apartments makes sense. Walking to work—or taking the T may well become a significant part of our way of life in the future."

"One of the most helpful factors in our present planning is the recognition of the worth and the need of our city's suburban shopping areas. Plans are well underway to improve both Wollaston and Norfolk Downs and this is all to the good."

"Now let us look briefly at the quality of life in our City."

"Let us suppose that we have successfully redeveloped several vital areas of our City. Will we have a habitable community or will conditions get so bad in our city that people will not be able to enjoy life here?"

"Will they fear to walk the streets which may be filled with purse snatchers, robbers and rapists? Will they be afraid to leave their homes for fear of burglars? And will they sit in solitary fear in their homes, behind triple locked doors awaiting the dread noise of breaking glass as intruders mount an attack?"

"I am not exaggerating. These problems exist now in most major cities."

"And the situation here is getting worse despite the fine work of our police. The fact is that good police work can be nullified by the courts."

"If the Historical Society wanted to put together a significant display of this era, a display to be put away for 50 years and then shown to let people see how we live now. I would suggest the following:

• "A series of pictures of our beaches and parks and highways on a Sunday morning in the summer. The pictures would show the mountains of beer cans, broken bottles, empty cartons that held the beer bottles and paper bags emptied of their potato chips and other food items."

• "A display of pictures showing vandalism, especially to our schools where bills for $10,000 to $30,000 to repair vandalism are not unusual."

• "A series of pictures of smashed up automobiles, some of which would be cars in which teenagers died when speeding cars hit trees or stone walls."

• "Several varied pictures of broken fences, smashed windows, and interior scenes of homes looted when drawers and storage boxes are scattered over floors."

"I would remind all of you who worked so hard to get Freedom Park of the senseless destruction recently committed in that Quincy Center beauty spot."

"What really bothers me is that we can physically develop a fine community and have the whole effort nullified if people do not feel safe and secure either in their homes or outdoors."

"Just recently Mayor Tobin recognized the quality of life problems that exist in our city when he ordered a crackdown on 'offenses against public peace.'"

"He listed 'public loitering, public drinking and possession, distribution of illegal drugs, interference with the rights of senior citizens to sit on benches in McIntyre Mall, urination in public places in the MBTA station and graffiti on the walls there, grabbing handbags, littering the city's ballfields and parks with beer cans, offensive language, intimidating small children. I am disturbed about all this—I want it cleaned up and I want it done immediately.'"

"Judge Kramer of our district court met with the mayor on the issue and the mayor reported that the judge would act swiftly when evidence warrants the action. Mayor Tobin added that 'the police need support down the line when they take necessary action.'"

"There are those who predict that if the present situation continues, the decent citizens will be living in guarded enclaves and the lawless elements in the community will be free to roam the streets. The decent citizens will become the prisoners and the people who should be prisoners will be able to move about unmolested."

"Finally, whether we are

Old Colony Line Near The End

Many schemes were afoot to provide mass transportation to the South Shore as the New Haven Railroad's Old Colony Division approached the financial point of no return.

The Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce recommended a formula for assessing $750,000 in public service payments on 37 communities in order to keep passenger trains running.

All cities and towns served by the branch would pay $375,000 on a population basis and the 22 with direct rail connections would ante up an additional $375,000 on the basis of patronage.

Quincy's share would come to $204,000, equal to $1.21 on the tax rate.

The Greater Boston Economic Study Committee also recommended a temporary area subsidy to keep the Old Colony running until it could be replaced by the Metropolitan Transit Authority to Hingham.

BROAD MEADOWS PLANT SOUGHT

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced plans to open negotiations with the federal government for return of 11.6 acres of land in Broad Meadows that was sold 15 years ago for $1 as a spoilage area.

The land was appraised for $2,500.

The Quincy Electric Co. had offered the city $75,000 for about 100 acres of Broad Meadows, including the federally owned land, as a site for a generating plant costing $30 to $55 million.

WILLIAMS WINS

Dick Mayo pitched a two-hitter as the Archbishop Williams High School baseball team eliminated Gloucester in the opening round of the state tournament at Fraser Field in Lynn.

The Williams lineup included: Healy 3b, Swan cf, Chiros rf, Marchegiano c, J. Lynch 2b, DiMatteo lf, D. Lynch lb, Ketchen ss, Mayo p.

BACK HOES COSTLY TO CITY

Mayor Della Chiesa said the City Council's refusal to buy two back hoes for $13,000 would eventually cost the city more than $60,000 in rentals of the digging machines at $64 a day.

PRATT HURLS UPSET

Mary Pratt tossed a four-hitter as Chiminello's Raiderettes of Quincy scored a stunning 5-1 upset of the powerful Raybestos Brakettes of Stratford, Conn., in the second game of a softball doubleheader.

The Brakettes won the opener 12-0.

Pastor Helps Knotty Pine Get License Extension

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Knotty Pine Restaurant, Inc., has been granted extension of a common victualer-alcoholic license from 518-526a to 524-530 Washington St., Quincy Point, thanks in part to a vote of confidence from Rev. Joseph Downey, pastor of St. Joseph's Church.

The City License Board granted the request Tuesday subject to approval by the Fire, Health and Building Departments.

Knotty Pine manager Peter Saxonis, present at the meeting with Atty. Edward Masterson, had been told by the License Board to discuss all facets of the relocation with Fr. Downey since the move would bring the restaurant within closer proximity to the church.

A state law specifies that an establishment within 500 feet of a church, hospital or playground must have the approval of the church, hospital, etc.

Fr. Downey sent a letter to the Board in which he stated he had no objection to the restaurant's relocating, as long as Knotty Pine lives up to the fine reputation it has had in the past.

Voting in favor of the request were City Clerk John Gillis, Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon, and Building Inspector Allan McDonald. Fire Chief Edward Barry was not present at the meeting.

The original restaurant was destroyed by a three-alarm fire Feb. 13. The new establishment, in the same block, will almost duplicate the layout of the previous site. The area will be black-topped for parking.

A common victualer license was granted Joseph R. Eng, of Dragon Hut (formerly Quincy Clam Bar), 303 Beach St., following a tour of the establishment May 25, by the joint inspection team.

The license is subject to approval by the building inspector with respect to the sign.

In other action, the License Board:

- Continued until June 5, complaints against P.D.M., Inc., 175 Intervale St., a South Quincy scrap yard.

- Granted a request for change of manager of the Hollow Restaurant, Inc., 516 Adams St., from the late Grace Lucason to her daughter, Donna Cloney.

- Granted a one-day liquor permit to the Blue Granite District of the Boy Scouts of America for an adult scout dinner June 9, 6 p.m. to midnight, at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall.

- Granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Quincy Junior Baseball League for a dance June 2, 8-midnight, at St. Ann's School Hall. No food will be served.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Wollaston Yacht Club for a dinner dance June 2, 6:30 p.m. to midnight at the Squantum Yacht Club.

- The license fee was waived by the board as a token of support for the yacht club which suffered extensive damage during the blizzard of 1978 and other storms.

- Continued until June 12, a hearing on complaints against Bay Colony Realty (Cumberland Farms), 470 Adams St., and 604-614 Hancock St., at the request of

Atty. Neil Kirstein. Bay Colony had been scheduled to appear before the board June 5. No hearings will be scheduled for the License Board through July and August.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney D.D.S.

Good dental care is just as important as good medical care, therefore, choose your dentist wisely. We suggest that your interests are best served by choosing one who is a strong advocate of preventive dentistry. You should also be familiar with the dental specialties. Orthodontics are concerned with aligning teeth of both children and adults. Periodontics involve the treatment of gums. Prosthodontics include basic denture works. Endodontists specialize in canal treatment while a pedodontist specializes in children's dental problems. Others include oral surgery, oral pathology and public health dentistry.

Good oral hygiene and preventive dentistry are stressed at the office of Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square. Nothing is more economical than regular dental checkups; small developing problems can be corrected before they become painful and serious. Dr. Sweeney offers general dental care for all members of the family. Call his office at 698-3636 for an appointment. Master Charge, Visa, and dental insurance plans are honored.

DENTAL TIP:

Preventive dentistry starts with regular visits to your family dentist. He will recommend a specialist when required.

Stephen Minichiello Finalist In Ecology Program

A North Quincy youngster has been selected as a finalist in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's annual Elementary Education Ecology Poem and Poster Program.

Stephen Minichiello, a fifth grade student at the Sacred Heart School has been selected as a finalist in the environmental education program which is carried on throughout New England.

Seventy Massachusetts students were selected as finalists, the second highest award in the program. They will receive certificates for their effort.

In addition, 30 students from Massachusetts were selected for highest honors and will receive plaques for their effort.

Said Keough: "To be selected a plaque winner or a finalist is quite a distinction. More than 3,000 teachers representing some 100,000 elementary students participated this year. In all, our judges reviewed some 7,000 entries. Only 100 were selected plaque winners and 200 finalists."

"Thus, these students can be quite proud of what they have accomplished," Mr. Keough concluded.

Special Christian Service Mass At St. John's Saturday

St. John's parish, Quincy Center, will celebrate a special Christian Service Mass Saturday at 7 p.m., followed by a social in the parish hall.

Purpose of this Mass is to make people aware of the Christ-an service program being carried on in the parish. At present the parish gives food, clothing, fuel, furniture to disadvantaged families.

Other projects include scholarships, camp vacations for impoverished children, visits with the elderly in nursing homes, blood drives, and sponsorship of monthly lunches for people from Medfield and various nursing homes. There is also an apartment rental service operated without charge.

These Christian service activities are carried on by the St. Vincent de Paul Society, Christian service commission of the parish council, Hi-Ho luncheon group and the sodality.

"As a result of performing these activities the parishioners are fulfilling the mandate of Christ to feed the hungry, give drink to the thirsty, clothe the naked, and comfort the sick," said Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's.

"Our work has just begun," he said. "We need others to help with an outreach program to assist in finding other unfortunates," he said.

"It is said that Church authorities should begin to worry if bingo games draw more participants than weekend Mass. If the bishop confirms and the church is half filled. If hate mail is signed and there are no unfounded rumors traveling the grapevine.

"We are most fortunate here at St. John's," he continued, "because of our active priests, sisters and parishioners who take an active part and interest in their parish and members, that these worries do not occur.

"We are a viable parish and want to continue to assure this viability, looking always for an opportunity to serve our neighbor."

Centre Methodist Flea Market

The finance committee of Quincy Centre United Methodist Church will sponsor a flea market to benefit the church's general fund June 16, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., in the church parking lot.

Antonio) to be held June 9-10. From left, are Janet LeTourneau Ray Papile, Marie Papile, Fr. Graham, Rose Kenney, Tina Canavan and Nancy Cirillo. The celebration will open with Humberto Cardinal Medeiros, as the principal celebrant of a concelebrated Mass. Music, games, refreshments and other items will be available at the festival.

Cub Scout Pack 21, Den 5 Visits The Quincy Sun

Members of Cub Scout Pack 21, Den 5, St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, visited The Quincy Sun recently to see first hand how a newspaper is produced.

Making the tour were Neil Timberlake, Jimmy Kyler, Jerry Bowen, Chris Barry, John Moreschi, and John Donlan. The cubs were accompanied by Brian Timberlake, Den Father.

The cubs were shown how news stories are written, set in type and placed on a page, including the story of their visit.

They saw an IBM computer typesetter, a Compugraphic photo typesetter, and a new Varityper phototypesetter that sets news stories, headlines, advertisements, and has a video screen for editing. It is one of the newest typesetters in newspaper production today.

They also saw how a stat camera reduces, enlarges and screens original photographs so they can be used in The Sun.

They were also shown how pages of The Sun are put together for printing.

The cubs were presented with copies of the current issue of The Sun at the end of their tour.

Over 400 Expected To Attend

State Development Secretary To Speak At Economic Conference Here June 20

Byron Matthews, state secretary of Communities and Development, will be a speaker at Quincy's second Economic Development Conference Wednesday, June 20, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

"And if the scheduling permits, we'd like to get Gov. King to drop by and say, 'Hello,'" said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

More than 400 invitations have been sent out, more than double the 175 people who attended the last such conference in May, 1978, which is credited with generating a $10 million office building for Quincy Center.

"Secretary Matthews has been extremely helpful to Quincy in the short time he has been in office," said Tobin, noting that Matthews' office approves the coveted CARD designations that help developers with financing.

"As former Mayor of Newburyport, he has been through this before and he feels that Quincy is on the right track. It has a lot of vitality and things are moving and he's looking forward to coming out."

Tobin said Matthews made it quite clear to him that the Quincy development programs are the kind that Gov. King is very much interested in.

"This administration," Tobin said, "Has not been attacking the King Administration, you'll notice."

"In my personal conversations with Secretary Matthews he has let me know that he appreciates it. He has gone out of his way to help the city of Quincy."

Tobin said he has also lined up a half dozen others to speak to the assorted developers, construction men and real estate people who have been invited to the conference.

The last conference resulted in selling a developer on building a $10 million office building to house the headquarters of Stop and Shop on the site of the Della Chiesa Parking Area.

"Now that we have a track record," said Tobin, "we can say, 'One year ago we asked you people to come and talk to us and this is what we've done; this is what we've accomplished.'"

Card Proposes Direct Property Tax Relief From State

Two Republican legislators have proposed a property tax relief plan under which taxpayers and rent payers would receive local aid money directly from the state, bypassing local government.

Said Reps. Andrew H. Card Jr. (R-Holbrook) and Andrew S. Natsios (R-Holliston):

"Our plan would take local aid, that is usually swallowed up by municipalities, and turn it into 'taxpayer's aid' by giving real relief to those who pay property taxes including tenants."

The plan would work like this:

- Every single-family homeowner would receive from the state a coupon worth $100 which would be used to help pay their property taxes.

- Every other residential unit in the state would receive a coupon worth $50, which would be used to pay part of one month's rent.

- Landlords would then use the coupons to pay part of their property taxes and the city and town treasurer would redeem them with the state for local aid dollars.

"Under our plan, by May 1, every homeowner will realize a $100 savings on their property tax bill and every renter will receive a $50 reduction in one month's rent," said Card and Natsios.

"All totaled, $160 million of real local aid will be going to our residents untouched by political hands."

Harold Opposes Pilgrim II

Sen. Paul D. Harold [D-Quincy], has urged the Atomic Licensing and Safety Board to deny Boston Edison's request to construct Pilgrim II, an additional nuclear power plant in Plymouth.

Harold, who spoke for the 53 Bipartisan members of the Energy Development Caucus of the State Legislature, cited the projected costs to consumers as his primary objection to the proposed construction.

"Nuclear construction costs are increasing so rapidly that rate cost estimates are impossible to make," he said. "Since 1964 the cost of constructing a nuclear power plant has increased over 1000 percent.

"In order to generate economical power, nuclear plants must operate at 70 to 80 per cent of their capacity. Pilgrim I has only operated at 42 per cent capacity, the 7th worst in the nation.

"The climate in the Massachusetts Legislature is such that Boston Edison will not be allowed to levy a 'construction work in progress' charge against their ratepayers."

"Before constructing a power plant, the licensee should document the need for additional power. Boston Edison has an excess generating capacity of 23.4 per cent over recommended levels established by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, which costs Edison customers $17 million annually."

Harold chided the energy companies on their inability to resolve the problem of radioactive waste.

"We have created a radio active waste monster without a cage; according to most estimates we now have enough waste to pave a four lane highway, one foot deep with nuclear waste from the Pilgrim I Station to the proposed nuclear power plant at Diablo Canyon, Calif.," he said.

Harold is a member of the Legislature's Joint Energy Committee.

Rain Plays Havoc With North Tourney Hopes

Last week's rain raised havoc with the North Quincy baseball team's hopes of making the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

North had to win three of its last five games to qualify for the tournament, unless it finished second in the Suburban League, and faced a busy week this week due to the heavy rains.

The Raiders, who faced league-leading Waltham Tuesday and Weymouth North yesterday [Wednesday], will host Weymouth South tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 under the lights at Adams Field and will meet Milton's Bay State League leaders Saturday night at 7:20 at Adams in one of the season's most attractive games.

North's Gary Earle [6-0 going into this week's games], is expected to face the Bay State League's top pitcher, Greg Burdette [7-1]. Milton was 13-2 going into this week's games.

Last week before the rains came North edged Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 3-1, to make its record 9-3, good at the time for a second place tie in the league.

Leo Graham, who has recovered from arm problems, pitched a four-hitter and also drove in a run with a single. Dave King, who has been red hot at bat in recent games, also doubled home a run.

Quincy, suffering through a frustrating season, defeated Weymouth North, 4-2, last week, to improve its record to 4-13, 3-10 in the league.

Steve Buckley gained his first pitching win as the Presidents scored single runs in the first, second, third and fifth innings. Mike Scuti went two for four and drove in two runs. Buckley, a senior rightie, allowed only five hits as the game was called after five innings because of the rain.

Quincy will play at Newton North today [Thursday] after making up a game against Weymouth South Wednesday.

Sports

• Babe Ruth

O'Connor Hurls No-Hitter For Houghs Neck

Houghs Neck exploded for a 13-0 win over Granite City Electric in the Quincy Babe Ruth League as Tom O'Connor pitched a no-hitter.

He struck out the last three batters and at one point struck out eight of nine. He also had two doubles and drove in three runs. Dwayne Wilcoxon went four for six with two RBIs. Scott Matthews was two for four with two RBIs. Ross Connerty and Dale Adams were two for five and Marty McLoughlin two for four. Matthews played well behind the plate.

Houghs Neck earlier walloped Morrisette, 16-2, with Dan Dunn pitching a six-hitter. O'Connor had two hits and three RBIs. Wilcoxon, McLoughlin and Connerty each drove in two runs. Kevin Whalen and Joe Gonsales hit triples for Morrisette.

The Elks defeated Houghs Neck, 9-6, with four runs in the last inning. Tom Heffernan was the winning pitcher and O'Connor the loser. Heffernan allowed only four hits and struck out five. Steve Peecevic paced the Elks with a long triple and two doubles. Dean Zoia had two key hits and Don Noll, Ed Overby, Dave and Danny Ceurvals and Heffernan had a hit apiece. John Bille made some outstanding plays at second and Chip Bunker at first. For HN, Steve Sacchetti had two hits and Matthews shone behind the plate.

Rugby Club Finishes Spring Season Undefeated

The Quincy Rugby Club finished its spring season undefeated with a 14-6 win over the Charles River Rugby Club of Boston last Saturday in Quincy.

Center Lou Trubiano scored all three Quincy tries and Colin Riley added a 2-point conversion kick to account for the Quincy scoring. It was Trubiano's first game after being out of the lineup for three weeks with a leg injury.

In recording its eighth win against no losses, the Quincy club jumped out to an early 10-0 lead on two Trubiano tries, the second coming after a long run by forward Chris Riley. Charles River came back with a try of their own just before the half to cut the lead to 10-6. A fine play and assist by Quincy Captain John Kennedy set up Trubiano's third try midway through the second half to give Quincy a comfortable lead to protect on route to their third undefeated season in their six year history.

The club plays two seasons - one each in the spring and the fall - each year. Over the past two years, or four seasons, Quincy has compiled an extraordinary record of 22 wins, 4 losses and 2 ties.

Named as co-Most Valuable Players in last Saturday's game were forwards Brian Morrissey, Nate Hale and Dick Wilson for their outstanding play against the much larger Charles River forwards.

Knickers Bow To Bridgewater

The North Quincy Kickers dropped a 4-1 decision to Bridgewater Sunday in the South Shore Soccer League.

North Quincy broke on top in the first minute with Bill Bradley scoring on a 25-yard kick. Lester Gerry had an assist.

Bridgewater scored midway in the first half then went ahead on a penalty shot just before the half ended. The score stayed 2-1 until late in the game when Bridgewater scored on a shot which was deflected off a North player by goalie Paul Mallory. Bridgewater then added its final goal on another penalty kick.

Joe Flynn barely missed on a high chip shot and John Hogan had another near-miss on a head shot for North. Mallory was outstanding in goal with 18 saves.

The Kickers will play at Weymouth Saturday and host Abington on Sunday.

The heavy duty replacement shock with a bigger piston for more control

Replacing worn-out shocks with heavy-duty Red Ryders gives you extra control. Because a bigger than standard piston helps Red Ryders hold your wheels in better contact with the road.

Coil springs for consistent operation—even after years of use. There are four in each Red Ryder. Two in many other shocks.

"O" ring piston seal—it makes sure the fluid flows through the valving—instead of uselessly bypassing it.

Red Ryder's 1 3/16" piston (40% larger than the pistons used in standard replacement shocks) helps Red Ryders shed heat faster—gives you more control when the going's rough.

Gabriel's special nine stage valving (many other shocks use only six) gives Red Ryders better resistance to fade.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You

By ROBERT COLMAN

Ever wonder why golf courses have 18 holes instead of some other number?... Actually, in the early days of golf's development in England, different courses did have different numbers of holes... For example, when the first British Open was played, at the Prestwick Club in 1860, that course had only 12 holes... Some other courses then had 7 holes, some had 8, some had 14... But the most famous course, the St. Andrews Club of Scotland, just happened to have 18 holes and in the years following 1860, other courses increased to 18 holes merely to follow the pattern set by St. Andrews... And, thus 18 holes became the standard for golf courses everywhere.

Here's an oddity... Although the Philadelphia Phillies have been playing big league baseball every year since 1900, they have NEVER won a World Series... That seems hard to believe, but you can look it up and see that it's true.

How fast could you drive a car in the old days?... Well, the first auto race in the United States was held in Chicago on Thanksgiving Day, 1895... It was a 50-mile race, and the winning car, driven by famous inventor Frank Duryea traveled at the average speed of believe it or not-7½ miles per hour.

Banner Year For Quincy Co-operative Bank

President John R. Herbert has reported a banner year for the Quincy Co-operative Bank but he warned of uncertain times ahead for the whole banking industry in the face of unchecked inflation.

"It's not the happiest time in the life of thrift institutions," he told the Bank's shareholders at their annual meeting last week.

Nevertheless, Herbert reported a net profit of $587,710.92 for the year ending April 30, an increase of 76.2 per cent over the previous year, and assets of $123,019,583, up nearly $2 million.

"Of the eight major cooperative banks in the state," said Herbert, "the Quincy Co-operative Bank not only has the highest actual reserve dollar total but we have the highest percentage of reserves to assets. We have reserves of $11,612,583 or 9.4 per cent of assets."

Herbert said the Bank paid out $6,433,677 in dividends to its 36,582 shareholders in the past year, a boost of more than $400,000.

"For the first time in the history of our bank," he said, "our transactions for the past year exceeded a half billion dollars. Our new account business grew handsomely in the year past."

But he said there were indications of a leveling off in the days ahead.

"The signs that our customers are being hurt by the grim, onward thrust of unchecked inflation were manifest in several ways," he said.

"First of all, we showed an asset growth of almost $2 million during the past year, which was somewhat less than the average for previous years. Customers just didn't have the usual amount of money for savings."

"Another interesting sign was the fact that, while we added 1,000 new NOW accounts in the past year, the average balance in these accounts dropped from $795 last year to $760 this year."

"In all candor," he added, "no one in the banking or the business fields knows what the future holds for the economy."

"But as long as the cost of food, home heating oil and gasoline continue to move upward, the average person will have less and less for savings."

Skoler's Ends Retail Clothing Operation After 60 Years

After 60 years at the corner of Quincy at Water Sts., Skoler's has closed its retail uniform and clothing operation and moved to 1372 Hancock St. to concentrate on wholesale uniform and institutional business.

Founder Bennie Skoler came to the United States from Ukraine, then a part of Russia, in 1900 at the age of 13.

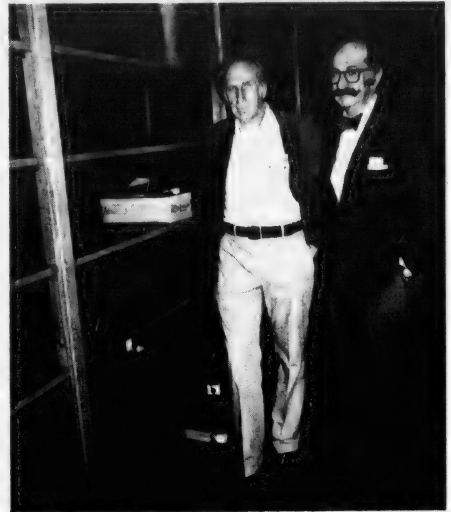

He shouldered a peddler's basket (which the family still has) and went from door to door selling his wares, as was the custom of Yankee Peddlers.

In 1919, he established his business at the old location, assisted by his wife, Gertrude, then a bookkeeper with Forbes Craig Granite Co.

The Skoler's clothed Quincy citizens from mayors to bankers, from granite cutters to shipyard workers.

Sons Sydney and David both joined the business after graduating from Boston University Law School and Boston University College of Business Administration, respectively.

They served in World War II and returned to the business adding their wholesale division and selling uniforms and supplies to fire, police, industry and state institutions throughout the country.

CHECKING OUT—David and Sydney Skoler look at last pair of shoes on the shelves as they prepare to close Skoler's, at Quincy and Water Sts., after more than 60 years. The clothing store, founded by their father was well known to many in Quincy over the years.

progressive ideas than the other.

They would be more inviting to people to come to downtown Quincy.

"We are talking a concept of at least one or two major anchor tenants, maybe 25 to 30 specialty shops and perhaps some type of a mall structure on a section of Hancock St."

"The mall may or may not be enclosed, we are flexible on that, but they said we should be thinking about it because they want to tie in both sides of Hancock St."

Tobin said the developer told him, "once we started moving in a particular direction it would take about five years. The overall plan would be a five year project."

The Mayor said the next step would be to sit down within a week with the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, the Planning Board and City Solicitor Robert Fleming "and pull some of the loose ends together."

Quincy: A City With A Great Second Chance

talking about needed physical development of our city or steps that will bring about some control over lawlessness, our public servants need your help. You will be told that the length to which the law goes to safeguard the rights of a defendant in a court case is for your own protection.

"But how much attention is paid to the victims?"

"I ask you here tonight: Have you ever stolen a car, looted a house, beaten up and robbed an elderly woman or killed an innocent person for no reason whatsoever?"

"Yet the law struggles mightily with the protection of people arrested for these crimes—people who may have a police record that covers page after page of typewritten data. And all of this effort, you are told, is to protect your rights in case you happen sometime to be in the wrong place at the wrong time."

"Charles Francis Adams, in the second volume of his 'Three Episodes of Massachusetts History' tells about how Quincy handled problem people when the town was 'set off' in 1792. He says one of the first things the selectmen did was to warn 14 adults to 'depart the limits of the Town.' Today we would describe this as 'throwing the bums out' but such drastic steps would be wholly illegal.

"There is, of course, a happy medium between the idea of protecting a decent citizen's rights and mighty and costly efforts to free chronic offenders every time they get arrested."

"What really worries me is that some day the pendulum may swing the other way and then all of our rights to a fair trial may be jeopardized. This is why we need to make the law work for decent citizens."

"Let's not get so involved in planning highways and public garages and new stores that we lose our city as an ideal place in which to work and live."

"Our Quincy Police are doing an outstanding job and they need your support but they can get pretty discouraged when their work may be thrown out of court by nitpicking technicalities."

"In summary, then, let us drive ahead to make the most of the great chance we now have to redevelop our city but let us not forget the eternal problem the challenge of 'quality of life' presents to us."

Vera said there is no new deadline set for submission of a revised affirmative action plan. The penalty for non-compliance could be the severance of federal funds to the QHA.

D'Olimpio was not available for comment on Vera's action but O'Brien said the tenants group got the plan for review "a couple of months ago."

"Our consultant was instructed to contact the tenants association and sit down with them to review the affirmative action and equal opportunity plans and get their input," he said.

plan, not the tenants or Scott," he said. "They should not blame others for the delay."

"The draft plan wasn't available until May. I didn't even get the draft until last Monday. I have a feeling it just wasn't available."

Vera said the Authority doesn't absolutely have to have comments from the tenants on the plan.

"The people are given a reasonable time to comment and if they don't or can't comment, that's fine," he said. "Maybe they don't want to."

"But this agreement was signed 60 days before April 6 and I believe the tenants only got drafts in May. I don't see how they could blame the tenants. What happened in February, March and April?"

Vera said he is also waiting for the QHA to file a tenant selection and assignment plan that was requested by HUD.

"That was due April 6 and I don't even have a draft of that," he said.

Vera said there is no new deadline set for submission of a revised affirmative action plan. The penalty for non-compliance could be the severance of federal funds to the QHA.

D'Olimpio was not available for comment on Vera's action but O'Brien said the tenants group got the plan for review "a couple of months ago."

State Reimbursement Key Tobin Warns On School Cost Of Living Pay Raises

By PETER BARNICLE

Mayor Tobin has cautioned the School Committee that any cost-of-living pay raises worked out in union negotiations must be contingent on the amount of state reimbursement the city receives on the cherry sheet.

He told the committee cost-of-living increases which may be submitted to the city council are not covered by fiscal autonomy. He pointed out that the school department budget for the next fiscal year has been submitted to the council and accepted.

"If any negotiations are finalized before the cherry sheets are available you will be plunging the city into deficit financing which would increase the tax rate at a time when homeowners and taxpayers are screaming for relief," he said.

"The City Council does not have to accept any supplemental appropriation," the Mayor said. "I have talked with a majority of the councillors and none of them will vote any money which will increase the tax rate to fund pay raises."

Tobin, who is chairman of the School Committee, said the city solicitor is "quite confident" that his (Tobin's) interpretation of the extent of fiscal autonomy is correct.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon earlier was quoted as saying the committee could grant increases totalling $1.4 million and stay within the state's four percent tax cap. He was further quoted as saying the increases could be granted until the city tax rate is set.

Tobin disputed this, saying that any increases "have nothing to do with the tax cap." He insisted that if increases are granted which require funding above what comes back to the city on the cherry sheets it will mean "either raising the taxes or massive lay-offs."

Committeewoman Mary Collins asked how the matter was handled in previous years.

Tobin replied that it was done through deficit spending and that as a result his administration inherited a $7.5 million debt.

"There is no new valuation in the city," he said. "There is no place to get this money. The only new development is the Corcoran housing complex across the street from 1000 Southern Artery. That's the only new assessable property."

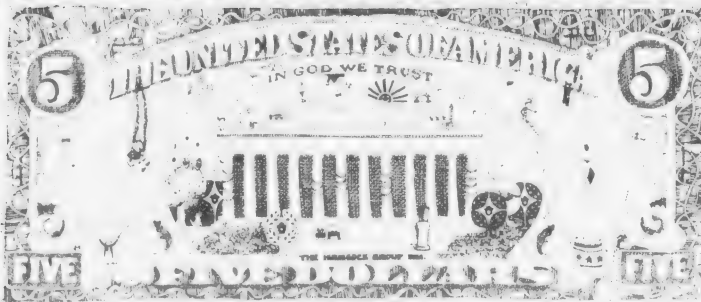

He went on to point out that his administration has started a program which will bring four new $10 million buildings into the city, but they are still in the planning stage.

The Mayor said all union negotiations should continue in good faith, but with the stipulation that any cost-of-living increases depend on state reimbursements.

"If we obtain $3 million from the state we may be able to hold the line," he said.

Thomas McDonald 2nd From Bryan Pos

North Quincy Ma. VFW State Commander

By PETER BARNICLE

Thomas M. McDonald, 24 Vershire St., North Quincy, a 32-year member of the Bryan VFW Post, Quincy, is slated to be elected state department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the organization's convention in Springfield

June 14-17.

McDonald said that as commander he will endeavor to bring all veterans' organizations together to work as a team to help disabled veterans in hospitals maintain the benefits provided by the federal government and the state.

He said the ones presently most in need are the veterans of the Vietnam era.

"I am sure that if all the organizations, working together, make a concerted effort we can achieve this goal," he said.

McDonald, a letter carrier in the Quincy Sq. area, was born in Quincy. He attended the Willard School and South

Junior High School before graduating from Quincy High School in 1941.

He joined the Navy in March, 1942, and spent 36 months in the South Pacific during World War II.

Late in the war he contracted a fungus infection

Tobin Tells 14 Unions

State Aid Holds Key To City Pay Hikes

By TOM HENSHAW

Negotiations are underway with 14 labor unions representing city employees but the money part of the package will have to be held in abeyance until the city sees what it is getting in state aid.

"In order for me to give every city employee a cost of living pay raise, I need $5 million," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin last week. "I don't have $5 million."

The Mayor's $99.1 million budget for fiscal 1980, which is currently undergoing scrutiny by the City Council's Finance Committee, makes no provisions for pay raises.

Should such raises be negotiated a supplemental budget would be required and that, in these days of municipal austerity, is something that may be difficult to come by.

The part of the Mayor's budget that comes under the state's 4 per cent cap is only $2.8 per cent higher than last year's requested appropriation.

If the supplemental budget were to bring it over the 4 per cent cap it would require a two-thirds vote of the city council, in the midst of an election campaign.

The contracts with the city employees' unions expired in July, 1978, and they have been working for nearly a year without contracts. Negotiators have been talking everything but money.

"We have told the unions," said Tobin, "that it's okay to negotiate but if we don't have some place to get the money it's one of two things: either you increase the tax rate or you lay off people."

"I told them we're going to sit and wait and see what we get back on the cherry sheet because the citizens of this city want the tax rate held and no one wants to lay off city employees."

"That's not to say that dedicated employees of the city are not entitled to a cost of living raise. It's just that the money is not there."

Calculated on the basis that $280,000 is equal to $1 on the tax rate, $5 million is the equivalent of about $18.

Auditor Charles L. Shea said the total city payroll is about $62 million a year. A 5 per cent cost of living hike would be $5.6 million spread over a two-year contract.

The only way to balance such an increase, Tobin said, would be to obtain new valuation and "there is no new valuation out there in the city."

"This is what we are trying to do with our economic development plans," he said. "We are committed to that but it takes time to put the shovel in the ground."

"The only new development that is taxable this year in the city of Quincy is the Corcoran development (Faxon Commons) across from 1000 Southern Artery."

Tobin said he feels that city employees and their unions are aware of what he and the city are up against.

"I think they know that we're doing our best here," he said. "I'm keeping people employed. I'm not rocking the boat. I'm trying to hold the tax rate and everybody's getting a pay check."

'60 Minutes' Here For Quincy Court 'Earn It' Program

A unique program at Quincy District Court is coming under the scrutiny of CBS' '60 Minutes' this week.

CBS crews are in town to film a segment on the 'Earn-It' program, in which young offenders pay back the victims of their crimes with their services.

Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice who founded the system, is being interviewed for the program, along with people around the area with differing viewpoints on the idea.

Also planned are film' of courtroom scenes and private meetings between the judge, victim and defendant in which the form of restitution is worked out. Consent by all persons involved in the cases had to be given to allow the filming of these scenes, Judge Kramer said.

For the segment will be Dan Rather. Representatives of 60 Minutes could not be reached by press time to discuss the program.

Conveyor Belt Underground Parking

How about storing your car on an underground conveyor belt while you shop the stores in downtown Quincy?

The Planning Department is proposing to build the prototype of such a facility under the triangular island in Hancock St., between McIntyre Mall, the First Parish Church and the Bargain Center.

Acting Planning Director James Lydon asked the City Council Monday night for authority to apply for a $4 million federal grant to build the first such parking garage in the nation.

The Council, a little dazzled by the whole concept, sent the matter to its Downtown Development Committee.

Lydon told the Quincy Sun that the plan would call for enlarging the traffic island and installing four carports, each a little larger than an auto and all that would be

MDC Beach Station To Honor Brett

The brand new MDC station on Wollaston Beach, which opens Monday, June 18, may be named in honor of Joseph E. Brett, the longtime state rep from the area, who lives around the corner on Fenno St.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy], with the backing of the whole Quincy legislative delegation, entered a late filed bill to that effect last week. "I don't anticipate any problems getting it passed after the budget is out of the way," said Brownell.

The station, on the site of the old Kimberley's Restaurant, contains changing rooms and toilets and will be staffed by matrons.

An MDC spokesman said the beach will open June 18 with a full complement of a manager, two assistant managers, two matrons, a laborer and 14 lifeguards.

Going To Florida

Dr. Solomon Retiring As Health Commissioner

Dr. Samuel Solomon, who survived the hectic transition from the LaRaia to Tobin Administrations, is retiring as City Health Commissioner, effective July 31.

Dr. Solomon, who was a practicing physician in Quincy for 46 years, said he plans to retire to Florida in October with his wife, Ethel, for reasons of health.

"I'm sorry to see him leave," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "I will miss his counsel and guidance. He has been very concerned with public health in Quincy. He is in every way a gentle man."

Tobin said he has held Dr. Solomon's resignation on his desk for the past two months until the commissioner was ready to leave.

"I wish to thank Mayor Tobin and all the city officials for their total cooperation and to my entire staff for their excellent devotion to make the Quincy Board of Health the very best in the state," Dr. Solomon said.

Dr. Solomon has not practiced medicine since he was appointed Health Commissioner on Jan. 5, 1976, one of the earliest appointments made by former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia. Recently he was reappointed to the South Metro Chapter of the Health Planning Council of Greater Boston. He sent a letter retiring from that post too.

He is also a member of the Quincy Licensing Commission and the South Shore Mosquito Control Commission.

Dr. Solomon is a member of the honorary staff of Quincy City Hospital and the Mass Health Officers Association, and the Mass and American Public Health Associations.

He served on the board of governors of the Massachusetts Academy of Family Practice.

Recently he was honored with the Physicians Recognition Award for 1978-79-80 of the American Medical Association. His name is in Who's Who of Health Services of the United States.

McCauley Seeks Reelection, Stresses Financial Background

Francis X. McCauley, a veteran of 16 years on the City Council, the School Committee and the Housing Authority, has announced his candidacy for a second term as city councillor at large.

McCauley, who is president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, said that, with Quincy's budget nearing the $100 million level, it is important to have at least one city councillor with a strong financial background.

During his first term as an at-large member of the Council, McCauley, a Bentley College graduate, served as vice chairman of the powerful Finance Committee and completed a course in municipal finance at Bentley.

McCauley was a member of the City Council from Ward 1 from 1964 to 1968 and the School Committee from 1972 to 1978. He was the state-appointed member of the QHA for five years.

He and his wife, the former Sandra McKinnon, live at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck. They have five children.

CD Exercise To Test Storm Relief Capabilities

Quincy Civil Defense will join other units throughout southeastern Massachusetts Saturday 9 to 11:30 a.m. in a command post/emergency operating center exercise based on a simulated hurricane.

The exercise, code name "Beafort '79" will be a strictly in-house training program and will have no participation by the general public.

Purpose of the exercise is to ascertain the emergency preparedness of Civil Defense organizations in the 92 communities of southeastern Massachusetts and to assess operational problems which would face key community officials having the ultimate responsibility for managing local resources and coordinating relief efforts if such a hurricane should directly hit the area.

Double Shot In Arm Federal, State Moves To Aid N. Quincy Revitalization

Revitalization of the North Quincy Business District, which just got underway on Billings Rd., received a double shot in the arm this week.

The State Office of Communities and Development approved the area as a Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD), making it easier for merchants to obtain rehabilitation and expansion loans.

And the Federal Small Business Administration designated the section as a target area for the Neighborhood Business Revitalization Program, another aid to merchants whose loans might be considered risky.

An enthused Mayor Arthur H. Tobin called it "another indication that the momentum is there and all nice positive things are happening to our city at this time."

North Quincy is the third section of the city to receive CARD designation from the state. Previous designees are downtown Quincy and the so-called "Gateway" area from the Neponset River to West Squantum St. Application for a fourth CARD for Wollaston is being prepared.

Acting Planning Director James Lydon explained that CARD status is used "as a stimulus for businessmen to upgrade their properties and expand their businesses through new construction or acquisition of other buildings."

"They can take advantage of loan money at lower interest rates, sometimes as much as 4 per cent below the prime rate," he said. "They are able to take advantage of commercial revenue bonds."

Lydon said that Stop and Shop, which will be the prime tenant in the building set for the Della Chiesa Parking area in Quincy Center, is the first corporation in the state to take advantage of the new CARD law in building its headquarters.

The new North Quincy CARD extends from East and West Squantum Sts. south on Hancock St. roughly as far as Buckingham Rd. and east and west on Billings Rd. from the MBTA tracks to Lunt St.

North Quincy Gateway CARD runs from the Neponset River bridge mostly on the west side of Hancock St. to West Squantum St., including the vast State Street South complex and the small business area behind North Quincy High School.

"Several office buildings are under discussion in the Gateway area," said Tobin. "but I can't talk about them now because the developers have asked that there be no publicity right now."

Two proposed office buildings, he said, are being negotiated on separate locations, each covering some 100,000 square feet and valued in the vicinity of $10 million in construction costs.

"We've been getting extremely favorable treatment from the Department of Community Affairs," said Tobin, "because the King Administration wants to stimulate development this way. This is what the governor wants to see."

The SBA's Neighborhood Business Revitalization Zone in North Quincy runs along Hancock St. from the Neponset River bridge to Hayward St. and east and west from the MBTA tracks to Fulton St. in the

QHA Gets $1.4 Million HUD Grant To Upgrade Leased Houses

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly (D-Boston) announced a grant of $1,493,632 to the Quincy Housing Authority under the leased housing program of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

QHA Director Clement O'Brien explained that the funds will guarantee rent payments to owners of leased housing, which will enable them to obtain loans to rehabilitate and, in some cases, build new ones.

"This program," said Donnelly, "is significant in that it allows decent public housing while at the same time improves neighborhood property values by refurbishing dilapidated houses or constructs new ones in their places."

Raymondi Asks $10,000 For Point Pumping Station

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has asked Mayor Tobin to set aside $10,000 in the Public Works budget to correct major deficiencies at the Quincy Point Pumping Station.

Raymondi said the Council's Public Works Committee has studied the problem of noxious orders emanating from the station at the corner of Chubook St., and Des Moines Rd.

The study, he said, is now in the hands of Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti and the $10,000 is desperately needed to implement it.

Raymondi called the problem a long standing one that has caused considerable distress, discomfort and health concern to people living in the Quincy Point area.

Special Permission To Attend QHS Graduation

Kathy Mann In 'Seclusion' For Miss Massachusetts Pageant

For Kathy Mann, the simple process of graduating from Quincy High School Tuesday night was a little like borrowing a rare book from the library.

She had to be checked out of Louie's on the Wharf Restaurant in New Bedford early Tuesday afternoon and checked back in at the Gangplank Restaurant in Fall River at noon Wednesday.

This is because Kathleen Elizabeth Mann, 17, of Houghs Neck, Miss Quincy Bay of 1978 and Miss South Shore of 1979, is a contestant in the Miss Massachusetts Scholarship Pageant this weekend.

Should she be crowned Miss Massachusetts on the stage of the New Bedford High School auditorium at 11 p.m. Saturday, Kathy will compete for the Miss America title at Atlantic City in September.

"I'm a little nervous but I know I'll enjoy myself," said Kathy a little uncertainly, just before she vanished behind the week-long veil of heavy security that surrounds contestants in the pageant.

Since Sunday she has been in virtual seclusion, living with a host family. Pat and Gilligan Pelletier of New Bedford, no phone calls, no visitors, no contact even with her immediate family.

In fact, she had to obtain permission from Host Family Co-Chairmen Sandy and John Colvin of New Bedford in order to attend her own high school graduation.

For Kathy and the other 16 contestants, the current week has been a continuous round of appearances, luncheons and rehearsals, ending at night at 9:30 p.m. at the Host Home.

The serious business of matching beauty, talent and personality begins tomorrow [Friday] morning with a seven-minute private interview by the panel of five pageant judges.

The Preliminary Show will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in the New Bedford High auditorium during which swim suit, evening gown and talent competitions will be judged and two field narrowed to 10 finalists.

"The evening gown and swim suit competitions are my strongest," said Kathy, who proved it locally last summer during her reign as queen of Quincy Bay Race Week.

In the talent competition, she will perform an interpretive dance to the strains of "Nadia's Theme", so-called because it was used by Nadia Comaneci, the Rumanian gymnast, in her gold medal sweep.

"Kathy has never taken a dancing lesson," said Mrs. Marilyn Mann, her mother. "You have to give her a lot of credit, going in as an amateur."

In the absence of a dance floor at home, she has been working at the Lincoln-Hancock School facilities with the choreographic aid of Kathleen Bertrand of Braintree.

The 10 survivors of the Preliminary Show will do it all over again starting at 7:30 p.m. Saturday with a reception at Bishop Stang High School in North Dartmouth following the coronation of the winner.

Kathy expects that some 14 or 15 people from Quincy will be in New Bedford to cheer her on in the contest, including her boy friend, Sean O'Sullivan of Quincy Point.

And her family, including brothers John 12 and Michael 9, will have a chance to see her for the first time since she went into seclusion, except for the brief appearance at graduation.

As for Atlantic City and the Miss America Pageant ...

"I can't even think about that," said Kathy. "I'm taking things one step at a time."

Judge Albert Kramer, presiding justice of Quincy District Court, will speak on the innovative "Earn-

It Program" at a meeting of the Quincy League of Women Voters tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the Church of the Presidents, Quincy Sq.

Mary Flavin, president of the Quincy League, said administration of justice has been a subject of study and action for local members for several years.

Election Year, 79 A Big Yawn So Far

This could be one of the quietest and strangest election years in Quincy's history.

In fact, if things don't start perking politically, this might even be the year without a preliminary election. Or, it'll be a ho-hum one.

At the moment Mayor Arthur Tobin has only one announced challenger, Abe Itkin.

There are only three official candidates for city council-at-large: Incumbent Frank McCauley, Michael Faherty and Richard J. Koch Jr. (Incumbent John Quinn has not announced, but is a candidate, Joseph Brett, named to fill the seat vacated by Paul Harold, has not indicated whether he will run or not.)

Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon has one opponent thus far, Gerald Nobile.

In Ward 4 there is only one announced candidate, Barbara Righini. Incumbent James Sheets is expected to seek re-election to the Ward 4 seat, passing up both a mayoral and council-at-large bid.

Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon has just one challenger, Michael Kelly.

Neither Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly nor Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond has any official competition at this time.

And, no one has announced yet for the three school committee seats.

Preliminary election contests require: at least three mayoral candidates, seven council-at-large for the three seats, seven school committee for three seats, and three candidates for each ward council seat.

Unless things start warming up it is quite possible all of the seats might lack enough candidates thus eliminating the need for a preliminary election.

In such a case, all the candidates who filed acceptable nomination papers would be automatically nominated and would then square off in the final election.

Chances are, however, at least one or two contests will have sufficient candidates for a preliminary runoff. But even at that, it would be perhaps the "shortest" preliminary election ballot in the city's history.

One consolation to no preliminary election or a short ballot: it would at least save taxpayers a little money.

VETERAN SCHOOL Committeeman Frank Anselmo has thought it all out and has made his decision: he'll run again this year.

Anselmo, who will be 81 in September, says: "I feel great and I'm in good condition. The School Committee needs a balanced wheel."

And, as far as he's concerned, he's that wheel.

Anselmo, now in his 18th year on the board adds: "We need mature judgement."

He's expected to make an official announcement next week.

ANSELMO

BERNICE MADER, chairwoman of CAAN, the citizens group battling jet noise over the north end of the city, appears to be moving away from a City Council run this year. "At this moment I don't think so," she says. "I've just got too much to do with CAAN. We're not giving up this fight." What about a City Council bid in the future? Maybe.

MADER

A COCKTAIL PARTY fund-raiser for Councillor Frank McCauley will be held June 13 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. Tickets ($30) may be obtained by calling Kathy Roberts at 479-8280.

YOU'VE LISTENED to news editor-director Herb Fontaine on WJDA for many years. Now you'll get a chance to see him in action on TV, for a night anyway.

Fontaine will appear Saturday night on the Ch. 2 WGBH auction as a guest auctioneer. He's scheduled to be seen between 10 and 11 p.m. (And, don't forget to call in.)

HERE'S ONE: It happened at last week's Bingo night at the Quincy Sons of Italy. The number G-50 was called and bingo, there were 97 winners riding on it. They won a total of $485. Jim Mastrantonio reports it took a good half hour just to check the cards.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "Modern man pays a luxury tax on his billfold, an income tax on the stuff he puts into it and a sales tax when he takes any of it out."

LITTLE LEAGUE youngsters and city officials unite to show their enthusiasm at the dedication of two new tournament-size baseball fields in the Merrymount Park complex. Field construction was inspired by a $20,000 gift from the Quincy Sons of Italy.

A Civic Partnership

Little League Fields Teamwork Between City, Sons Of Italy

If anyone wants to hold an official Little League baseball tournament, Quincy is finally ready to play host.

The city now has not one, but two regulation Little League fields in Merrymount Park, thanks to financial aid from the Sons of Italy and the cooperation of various city departments.

The project has been a year and a half in the planning and building.

"Right after I became mayor in January, 1978," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, "a group of Little League coaches came to my office to impress on me that the Little League in Quincy did not have a regulation field to play on."

"When our teams were invited to play in tournaments it was always outside the city. The coaches, the kids and their parents were spending money in other cities. They could not show others how great our city is."

"Unfortunately the coaches were talking about $40,000 plus another $40,000 for lights, a total of $80,000 that I did not have. I had to inform them that our financial picture was tough, that I didn't know where the money would come from."

The first installment arrived almost immediately in the form of a delegation from the Quincy Sons of Italy, checkbook at the ready.

"They were concerned that a gift of money from the Sons had been used by a previous mayor to pay legal expenses," said Tobin, "and they wanted to make sure this gift went for a capital improvement project that would bring credit to the city."

The gift was $10,000 on the spot, another $10,000 later.

Tobin consulted with Auditor Charles L. Shea, Treasurer Robert Foy III and Richard J. Koch, executive director of the park and Recreation Board, then went to the City Council for a $20,000 matching appropriation. That would provide the field.

"Dick Koch came to see me and said we'd be able to accommodate a bigger program, including girls' softball, if we could extend the playing time under lights," said Tobin. "I asked him to get bids and it came to another $40,000."

This time it was Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti and Water Supt. Owen Eaton who came to the rescue.

They discovered an old water bond issue in which about $40,000 was left over when the project was completed.

Last Thursday, after a year and a half and considerable finessing of funds, the two fields were dedicated in the names of Katherine G. McCoy and William J. Mitchell, two longtime members of the park and Recreation Board.

The fields are located on Southern Artery across from Veterans Memorial Stadium and adjacent to the J. Ernest Collins Rest-a-While park for children.

Collins is another former member of the Park and Rec Board who, along with McCoy and Mitchell, contributed 94 years to the city of Quincy as park policy makers.

The new fields will get a lot of use. It is planned for the younger Little League boys to use the field in the early evening while the girls' softball teams, who play on the same size diamond, will have it later under the lights.

So far no tournaments have been planned but when they are Quincy is ready.

"And it all happened because a lot of people worked together," said Mayor Tobin.

Never Looked More Beautiful On Memorial Day

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

With Memorial Day having passed I would like to commend Mr. J. Vincent Smyth, Superintendent of Cemeteries; and his co-workers for what I consider to be an excellent job of maintenance even though we had about eight days of rain prior to the holiday. As a former mayor I can appreciate what a task it is to take care of seven city cemeteries, four historical and three active, with limited man-power and equipment.

All too often we hear criticism, probably justified in certain instances, but not too often do we take the time to give credit where and when credit is due. Therefore, this letter is being written to express my personal congratulations on what I consider to be work,

WELL DONE under difficult conditions.

This year, however, I have never seen our Mount Wollaston Cemetery look more beautiful and well kept for the Memorial Day weekend. Late in the afternoon on Monday I spent a considerable amount of time visiting every section of the cemetery, either in my car or on foot, and I was most favorably impressed. The grass was neatly cut and the beautiful floral tributes placed on the graves of loved ones by their families and friends gave an almost garden-like appearance.

Aside from the regular cemetery employees I understand that several employees from the public works, park and recreation and forestry departments volunteered to work in the cemeteries after finishing their own duties at 4:30 p.m., receiving overtime pay for the extra hours. As Mayor Tobin stated in a press release: "They displayed pride and dedication in reporting to the cemeteries after regular work hours and labored in chilling rain until 8 p.m."

Being a frequent visitor to Mount Wollaston Cemetery I can appreciate what a task it is to take care of Quincy's largest cemetery even though it is only one of seven to be maintained. Again I say WELL DONE to those who in any way took part in this big job! Let us also express our sincere gratitude to those responsible for placing the flags on the graves of the veterans of all wars.

City Pays Tribute

'Vietnam Veterans As Heroic As Veterans Of Other Wars'

Quincy veterans who served in Vietnam, those who made the supreme sacrifice and those who survived, were honored at memorial exercises held last week at United First Parish Church, Quincy Sq. in accordance with a presidential proclamation of Vietnam Veterans Week.

The veterans of Vietnam are just as heroic as the veterans of other wars, Rev. James L. Lanegan of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, told the gathering of more than 200 veterans, their parents and friends, and the relatives and friends of deceased veterans, who attended the services.

"These men have been held up to ridicule and disgrace, but those veterans are just as honorable as those from other wars," Fr. Lanegan said. "These men are just as real, just as heroic."

Mayor Arthur Tobin said the respect Vietnam veterans had earned "is long overdue."

The Mayor served as honorary chairman of the committee of officials from veterans organizations, the school department and the city which put the program together.

The roll of those killed in the conflict was read following by a prayer of recognition and memorial by Rev. Keith Munson, minister of the United First Parish Church, and the playing of taps.

Richard D. Farmer, a North Quincy High School senior and a cadet major in the Air Force Junior ROTC, read a poem "Who Were These Boys?" The poem was written by the late Paul Carlin of North Quincy High as a tribute to deceased Vietnam veterans and has been read at every Memorial Day assembly since that time.

Joseph A. Ciampa, retired Air Force officer and Aerospace Education instructor in the Quincy schools, delivered the main address in which he spoke of the unique problems which confronted Vietnam veterans on their return home.

"We are here this evening to pay a debt of gratitude to Quincy's veterans of the Vietnam conflict," Ciampa said. "We are here to assure them that their sacrifices are appreciated. We are here to demonstrate to them that we hold them in the same high esteem as their predecessors, the veterans of our earlier battles for freedom."

He told the gathering that never before in our history had the price paid in casualties been questioned as too high a price for protecting "the gift of freedom."

"Before Vietnam this question was not even considered because our fighting men were combating an overt threat to the American way of life," he said. "Our liberty and freedom were in jeopardy. It was easy for these veterans to hold their heads high and be proud of the part they played in protecting our way of life."

He said America became involved in Vietnam because "the majority of people believed we had to stem the tide of communism and that the men who fought there were loyally serving their country."

At the service Francis L. Sullivan, director of veterans services, announced that the names of all Vietnam veterans will be placed on a plaque, the location of which will be determined before Veterans Day. Originally the Presidential Award for Community Achievement was to be presented to the five most deserving veterans.

Citations were presented to veterans and to the families of deceased veterans who attended the ceremonies, as well as to post commanders of a number of veterans' organizations.

Following the church services the veterans and families were guests at a dinner at the Lincoln-Hancock School.

The deceased veterans whose names were read at the ceremonies include:

Unions Battle For Recognition

Philip Van Gelder, organizer for the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipyard Workers, charged that three members of his committee had been laid off at the Fore River Shipyard in retaliation for their organizing efforts.

One shipyard workers told an IUMSW meeting at Bradford Hall that the Fore River management was trying to get the names of the ring leaders in the organizing movement so that they could be fired.

Meanwhile, the rival Employees Representative Association charged that a recent organizational meeting of the IUMSW, which claimed an attendance of some 200 shipyard workers, was really made up 85 per cent of granite cutters.

A third union, the Metal Trades Department of the American Federation of Labor was also trying to get a foothold in the Fore River Shipyard, where the top pay was reported to be 85 cents an hour.

BLAMES ENVIRONMENT

Joseph J. O'Brien, chief probation officer at the Quincy District Court, told the Quincy Child Guidance Clinic that heredity plays little if any role in the making of a juvenile delinquent.

"Environment is the primary cause and there isn't any secondary cause worth mentioning," he said. "Correct the environment and you don't have to worry about the heredity."

Squantum Woman Proposes 'Walking Sunday' Observance

Quincy residents have been asked to join with others throughout the state in observing Sunday, June 10 as "Walking Sunday", a day to get out and get re-acquainted with neighbors.

The idea is being promoted by Jennie Beatrice,

24 Richie Rd. Squantum, and it has nothing to do with the present energy crisis. It was conceived after the Blizzard of '78 when automobiles were immobilized and people got out and walked.

Mrs. Beatrice asked Senator Paul Harold to introduce legislation to have the second Sunday in June proclaimed "Walking Sunday" by the governor. Early this week she reported the bill has been approved by the House and is awaiting action by the Senate and the Governor's signature.

"There is nothing to stop people from voluntarily observing 'Walking Sunday' even if it has not yet been officially approved," she said.

Recalling the snow-clogged roads of February, 1978, Mrs. Beatrice said it was a time of great camaraderie and that people became re-acquainted with their neighborhoods and met with people that previously they were aware of only through windshields.

She feels that a return to walking would bring back some of the friendliness of the storm days - without the storm.

"You would drive your car into the carport," he said, "get out, take a ticket and the car would automatically be taken down on a conveyor belt and held underground until you return."

"When you come back you pay your parking fee, put your ticket in a slot and the car comes back up."

"It's an entirely new concept in parking garages. There is not one in existence anywhere."

It would hold about 200 cars, Lydon said.

business district.

Jerry Marquis of the Planning Department said the recent establishment of a Local Development Corporation [LDC] made up of area residents and business men made North Quincy eligible for the SBA designation.

"If the SBA has the funds they can make loans to merchants in the area at below market rates," he said. "If they don't have enough funds they can use various combinations."

"In most cases, they guarantee a bank loan which the bank might ordinarily consider as being risky. That's a great stimulus to a business area."

"Also any loan packages that go to a small business from the LDC in North Quincy will be given priority over requests from other areas that are not so designated."

At the time, shortly after the attack on Pearl Harbor, he recalls, the Fore River shipyard was encircled by anti-aircraft artillery. He won a commendation for his part in saving the life of a North Quincy woman at a multiple alarm fire several years ago. He also received a letter of commendation from Atty. Gen.

HERE'S HOW THE HOME THEY'RE LEAVING FOR COLLEGE CAN PAY FOR COLLEGE.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like the best education money can buy for your kids.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and what you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like taking some of the strain out of paying for college.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Wollaston Hearing On Proposed Residence For Mentally Retarded

A proposal for establishment of a community residence for eight mentally retarded and physically handicapped young adults at 215 Safford St. Wollaston will be the subject at a public hearing tonight (Thursday) 7:30 p.m., at Fellowship Hall, Wollaston First Baptist Church, Prospect and Warren Aves.

Residents of the area have been contacted by Jack Hauck, coordinator for the South Shore area office of the department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, and asked to attend.

Hauck said his office has been working with the Quincy Housing Authority on the possibility of purchasing and renovating the property, an abandoned nursing home, for establishment of a community residence.

He said the meeting will give people in the district an opportunity to ask questions and share concerns regarding the proposed project.

City Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., who set up the hearing, and the Department of Mental Health, have been exchanging heated words on the subject for the past month.

Lydon contends that the DMH has been avoiding community input into the proposal for fear of running into neighborhood opposition.

NORTH QUINCY High principal Peter Chisom looks on as ROTC cadet-captain Steve Danckert receives the savings bond from Mr. Chase of the Hanscom Air Force Association.

Two other Ward 5 precincts also vote at the Church, said Gillis, and he figured it is time to ease the congestion on Election Day.

He also recommended Tuesday, Sept. 11, as the date for the preliminary election, eight weeks

GERMAN MEASLES SHOT PRECAUTION

There is a vaccination available to immunize our population against the dreaded effects of German measles. This disease is especially dangerous to pregnant women who run a high risk of suffering miscarriage or giving birth to physically or mentally abnormal children.

But there are certain precautions that must be taken. For instance, if a woman of child-bearing age requests vaccination, her doctor will first ascertain if she has developed a natural immunity [80-85% of adult women have]. If the lab test indicates she is already immune, the shot is not necessary.

If the woman is not immune, and is not pregnant, her doctor may decide to vaccinate her if she understands that she must not become pregnant for at least two months after vaccination.

The best way, of course, to wipe out this disease is by mass immunization of children between the ages one and twelve—the most common spreaders of the disease.

The urge to decorate our bodies with paint and jewelry seems to be fairly basic to human nature. No matter where one goes in the world, from the most primitive and underdeveloped of countries to the most sophisticated, people wear jewelry and makeup. The differences in types of jewelry worn is based as often on materials available as much as style. In island cultures, you will get leis of flowers, leaves and shells. In Indian cultures, you might get turquoise jewelry, and when it is available, gold and other precious metals. You'll find all types of jewelry, precious, semi-precious and costume, available from us at CRONO & CHRISTIE, INC. 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490. North Quincy Man To Be VFW State Commander and was shipped home to spend six months in Chelsea Naval Hospital before his discharge from the service, as a motor machinist mate, in March 1946.

He joined the Bryan VFW Post in 1947 when it met at Wisteria Bungalow on Cottage St., now part of the Hancock parking lot.

He served 10 years as a trustee of the post and was elected commander, 1960-61. He has been a member of the board of directors since 1960 and is a past president of the corporation.

He was judge advocate of district 5, Norfolk County for 10 years and served two terms as national aide-de-camp. He has also been a member of the national activities committee covering Massachusetts and Vermont.

In June, 1977, he was elected junior vice commander of the state department and last year was elected senior vice commander.

In outlining his hopes for the future McDonald said that "too many people, private citizens and politically-minded people, seem to have forgotten the great sacrifices that have been made by the veterans of this nation."

"I am looking for no personal gain," he said, "but feel that we as veterans have not been working together for a common cause, namely doing all that is humanly possible to help the poor ex-GIs confined to hospitals, who cannot help themselves."

He also expressed concern about the nation's international position.

"Too many times we read in the press about how people are tearing down our flag, insulting, and yes, even killing our ambassadors overseas. It was not so long ago that no country in the world would think of doing such a thing. Yet, we sit back and let them get away with it."

"Militarily we seem to be going from the greatest power on earth to second place, or even to third. I feel that the best way to avert a war would be to make certain our capabilities are so strong that no nation would ever think of causing a conflict with us."

"Many people feel that all veterans think of nothing but the military way of life. But, as a civilian for over 30 years I am of the same opinion as Teddy Roosevelt - 'Tread lightly, but carry a big stick.'"

McDonald is the second state commander elected from the Bryan Post which was founded in 1921. The first was William Russell who was elected to the state office in 1956.

He said he was proud to be a member of one of the biggest VFW posts on the South Shore and expressed thanks to the members who have helped while he served in various offices.

The new state commander is married to the former Natalie Haley of Quincy. They have three daughters, Diane McDonald, 31, of Wrentham, assistant director of nursing at Carney Hospital; Elaine McDonald, 27, of New York City, a broker with Aetna Life and Casualty Insurance Company, and Joyce McDonald Mulcahy, 22, of North Quincy, a magna cum laude graduate this year at Suffolk University.

Koch Club Flag Day Parade To Honor State Constitution

The 28th annual Koch Club Flag Day parade, scheduled for Thursday, June 14, will be dedicated to the Bi-Centennial of the Massachusetts Constitution.

Richard J. Koch, executive director of the Koch Club, said the parade theme will be "Freedom Under Our Massachusetts Constitution," which was drafted in the South Quincy law office of John Adams.

A Police Department color guard followed by a Fire Department unit will lead the parade starting at 6:15 p.m. at the Vocational Technical School parking area on Coddington St.

The award-winning Quincy High School Band will set the marching pace for the First Division of the Koch Club-sponsored event, with approximately 2500 marchers expected to participate in the salute to the flag.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, members of the City Council and School Committee along with other local, state and county officials have been invited to join the 2000 boy and girl participants who will each carry an American flag in the line of march. They will keep the flags as mementos of the day.

The parade will start at Coddington St. and proceed onto Washington St., Hancock St., and Southern Artery into Veterans Memorial Stadium where a special flag raising observance and brief ceremonies will follow.

The Renegade Drifters and Braintree Braves will assist in providing a beat for the 5,000 marching feet.

The Quincy Council Girls Scouts and Brownies will have a large marching unit, joined by units of the Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and the various youth recreational organizations including 1500 boys and girls of the Koch Club Boy's Baseball and Girl's Softball Leagues, St. Ann's Baseball Leagues of Wollaston, St. John's of Quincy and other youth organizations.

Additional musical units are needed to provide marching music for the large participation expected. Organizations wishing to donate 1½ hours to assist in the program are requested to contact Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Organizations are welcome to join and participate in the line of march but must register in advance for assignment to one of the six divisions.

Council Approves $28,531 For Mosquito Control

The City Council, with some reluctance, appropriated $28,531.60 Monday night to pay Quincy's share in the district mosquito control program. The city pays 17.8 per cent of the budget.

The funding was approved only after the Council insisted that Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon write a letter to the control district expressing the city's dissatisfaction with the program.

"A couple of years ago the job wasn't being done that well and we had to get after them through the Health Department," said Councillor Leo J. Kelly. "They seem to have slipped back again."

"This is a very important project," added Councillor Francis X. McCauley, "especially in the parts of the city where there are marshes. Some years they've done an excellent job. Others have been problems."

365 Receive Degrees

Break With Old Material Goals, Donnelly Urges QJC Grads

It was Cong. Brian J. Donnelly's very first college commencement address and it promised to send 365 graduates of Quincy Junior College into the world with a slightly different outlook than their parents.

"Past predictions (by commencement speakers) have all had one thing in common," the 32-year-old congressman told the graduates Sunday at ceremonies in Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"They have predicted that things would get bigger, safer, faster and that we'd have to do more and we'd be happier because of all these things."

That may not be a proper prediction or goal any more, he said.

"It is clear that in looking ahead we often look at the wrong things," said Donnelly.

"Concerned with growth and the power to raise the standards of living in our society, we have neglected to focus on more significant and non-material changes in the quality of life.

"Solving these problems mentioned will be your challenges and your responsibilities.

"We must begin to seriously question whether we need more fundamental changes in our lifestyles and workstyles and in our methods of nourishing our bodies and souls.

"We can no longer postpone asking questions about the human impact of technology... (we must) demand that progress serve a decent human end."

Donnelly said that the graduates of today should not be disturbed by forecasts of a slower material pace in the world.

"We come from relative affluence and you are in a good position to question whether, as the rate of real growth slows, some alternative goals may not be even more desirable," he said.

"This perspective was not inherent in previous generations. Parents here today spent their childhood in an era of economic depression, struggling with the shortages that come during wartime.

"We did not grow up in an environment of scarcity. Lacking the pressure that comes from doing without, secure in the knowledge that material needs can be met fairly easily, what goals do you set for yourselves?"

Donnelly suggested that the greatest goal of all is "the chance to face and deal with the challenges and opportunities open to each of you today."

"We have to view conservation as a goal that is equally as important as growth," he said. "We must develop different tastes, different attitudes. And also, we must admire economy and criticize waste.

"If we stop accepting the notion that we are doing well only if we are accumulating more and bigger material wealth, we will be able to do many things we denied ourselves in the past.

"If we can repeal the belief that we cannot think about anyone else because there is no profit in it, we may find that we have a much wider range of options."

While the older generations were promised the material success badly needed in their era, Donnelly said, "you are being offered a world that cries out for compassion and human dignity."

"I hope," Donnelly added, "you will not feel inhibited by the expectations of others, and that you will remember that their notions of success and failure may not necessarily be appropriate to you and your time."

Ann Carroll, NQHS:

North Seniors Urged To Accept Challenge To Change The World

"Now, as graduates, we must use and develop our new ideas and renovated opinions to change the injustices and the prejudices that are obvious throughout the world."

It was the farewell to school and a challenge for days to come from the North Quincy High School Class of 1979, spoken by Ann Carroll at commencement Monday at Memorial Stadium.

She adopted her theme, "Never Be Afraid," from author William Faulkner's classic admonition to a graduating class:

"Never be afraid to raise your voice for honesty, truth and compassion, against injustice, lying and greed. If you will do this you will change the earth."

Faulkner's idea might seem impossible to many of us here tonight," said Miss Carroll, "but as we grow, change and learn, our attitudes can change, too, and what we once thought to be perverse or difficult can later appear as logical and illuminating."

The text of Miss Carroll's address follows:

"In 1951, the noted American author, William Faulkner, addressed a graduating class in his home state of Mississippi. He said, 'Years ago, before any of you were born, a wise Frenchman wrote, 'If youth knew: if age could.' We all know what he meant: that when you are young, you don't know what to do. Then, when you have grown old, and experience and observation have given you answers, you are tired, frightened; you don't care. You want to be left alone as long as you are safe; you no longer have the capacity or the will to grieve over any wrongs but your own.'"

"Faulkner explains the Frenchman's quote by comparing the inexperienced manner of the young to the weary, reminiscent thoughts of the old. He feels that changes can be made and that we have the opportunity to do it. So you, my classmates, according to one of Faulkner's major assertions, '...have the power to change the world, rid it forever of war, injustice, and suffering, provided you know how, know what to do.' William Faulkner is correct. Behind us, we have years of schooling and guidance which will help us to acquire the wisdom that is necessary if we hope to affect the world we are about to enter."

"The wisdom I speak of is defined as 'the understanding of what is true, right or lasting.' It is common sense and good judgment. Wisdom isn't necessarily how many math formulas we know, nor is it knowing the chemical structure of a specific compound. It is the ability to reject certain old prejudices and ideas which we had easily accepted and formulate new ones based on sounder and wiser discretion."

"Having finished high school, we have already formed many opinions, values and prejudices. These have changed and grown as we have matured. We have learned to use our wisdom, our experience and our maturity to change what was once thought to be true. Everything we have learned will serve as a guideline in the future, if we continue to investigate and study. We have the chance, now, to further our education, to expand our ideas, to seek a career and to take advantage of the opportunities open to us.

"Since we are the new generation of Americans, it is we who will be managing the country in the years ahead. Our parents have helped us to grow and now their generation looks to us as the new leaders. We could stop now and watch the rest of our lives pass by, but we must not let this happen. Instead, we should continue at a successful pace."

"Now, as graduates, we must use and develop our new ideas and renovated opinions to change the injustices and the prejudices that are so obvious throughout the world. We should listen and 'hear' Faulkner's words when he said, 'So, never be afraid. Never be afraid to raise your voice for honesty, truth and compassion, against injustice, lying and greed. If you, not just you in this stadium tonight, but in all the thousands of other stadiums like this one about the world today, tomorrow and next week, will do this, not as a class or classes, but as individuals, men and women, you will change the earth.'"

"Faulkner's idea might seem impossible to many of us here tonight, but as we grow, change and learn, our attitudes can change, too, and what we once thought to be perverse or difficult can later appear as logical and illuminating."

May the Sun shine on you

Melissa McCauley, QHS:

School: The Process, Not The Institution

"School," said Melissa McCauley, "is not just a place where we memorize dates and other facts, but rather a place where we discover our potential and learn to develop it."

Miss McCauley spoke for the graduating Class of 1979 at Quincy High School during commencement exercises Tuesday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"School becomes an epoch in our lives where we prepare for the future," she said. "The interaction between us, our fellow students, teachers, and even our enemies plays a major part in the development of our character."

"The way we live our lives and the kind of person we will become will have been, in some measure, shaped and molded by our experiences in school."

The text of Miss McCauley's remarks follows:

"The process by which we attain a goal is as important as the goal itself. Process is defined as a 'series of actions, changes, or functions that bring about an end or result'. It also refers to a passage of time. Our education is a process in which we interact with many people and we change. The experiences in school are as much a part of the learning process as the accumulation of facts and figures.

"In school we come into contact with many people. We form relationships with our classmates and learn that in friendship, each person must make concessions and try to understand the other's point of view. People are often judged by the company they keep so we found we must be careful in choosing our friends. This interaction with our friends is important after we leave school. We can enjoy things more when we have friends to share them with and problems which we encounter never seem as bad when our friends are there to sympathize. We will also meet new people with different outlooks on life. We must be able to accept these different ideas if we are to establish any kind of worthwhile relationship. At the same time, however, we must not let ourselves be taken in by people or be pressured into acting against our nature and our wishes. We must be able to give something of ourselves and still retain our own identity.

"Friends are important because they give us a sense of belonging in school and help us adapt better to our surroundings. We can, however, learn from our enemies too. In school we usually refer to these enemies as 'the cliques'. They usually take the form of the athletic and/or popular crowds. When we come in contact with these people our impulse is to shy away from them because we feel that we cannot even hope to compete. However, as we

Paul S. Sico, Vo-Tech:

Future Difficult But Hopeful

PAUL SICO

The Class of 1979 can look forward to a difficult but hopeful future as it prepares to face the world outside of school, said Paul S. Sico, speaking for his graduating class at Quincy Vo Tech School during commencement exercises Tuesday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"Technologically," he said, "we will advance to tremendous heights, but some of this knowledge could destroy our hopes and our future."

"In other ways, life in the future will be difficult."

"With the lack of oil and gasoline, and the threat of nuclear war and holocaust, our future looks dim. But we must look ahead to the good things - of cancer cures and worldwide peace."

The text of Sico's address follows:

"Thirteen years ago, our education began, today it ends. In one way, it is an ending, in another - a beginning. It is the beginning of work, the beginning of responsibility, and the beginning of 'the rest of your life'."

For many of us, graduation from high school is an important, but minor accomplishment. Still to come in our lives is college, we must decide on what we want to spend the next 50 years doing. For some, college could be a costly mistake. After four years and a substantial amount of money, they decide it isn't what they want to do. This is the reason that this period in time is the most important period of our lives. It is the time in which you build the foundation to become a success or a failure.

"Hopefully, the past 13 years of schooling have given us the knowledge and understanding of life and will help us to make these decisions correctly. The outlook of our future is changing all the time. Technologically, we will advance to tremendous heights, but some of this knowledge could destroy our hopes and our future. In other ways, life in the future will be difficult. With the lack of oil and gasoline, and the threat of nuclear war and holocaust, our future looks dim. But we must look ahead to the good things - of cancer cures and worldwide peace."

"The basic skills we have learned over the preceding years will be used everyday. We will read, write, figure math and speak correctly without even realizing that we had learned this in school. School has given us the background knowledge to make it in everyday life. It has helped us to learn to live with fellow students and now, after graduation, to live and function with other people, no matter their religion, race or sex."

"In the years to come, many of us will begin a family. We will acquire a spouse and perhaps have children. For some of us, purchasing our own home is one of the goals we will set for ourselves. But in order to do this, we must be willing to sacrifice ourselves and our time to the work-oriented world in which we live. We cannot have the things we most want in life, the luxuries of life, unless we are willing to work and work hard."

"The knowledge we have gained at the Vocational-Technical School over the past three years has given us the skill to get a rewarding job, both personally and financially. Such trades as culinary arts, electro-electronics, plumbing and nursing taught at the Voc-Tech are occupations that are necessary in this modern world. Without the skills of those in the fields of medicine and food, the world would not function normally. Everyday, millions of people are served by these trained individuals. Someone must do the job, and the Vocational-Technical graduates are the ones who have chosen to make these areas their life work."

"We, the graduates of 1979, are positive that we will better ourselves and the world in which we live. The attitudes and skills which we have acquired toward the world over the past three years will help us to understand and cope with life in the 21st Century. We hope we are ready for the rapidly changing world in which we live. As we leave the Quincy educational system, we are confident that the times to come will both fulfill our parents' dreams and our own expectations."

North In Tribute To 4 Deceased Classmates

North Quincy High School graduates paused during their graduation ceremony to remember four deceased members of the class of 1979.
Michael Mariano, a member of the graduating class, told those present that Diane Collins, Daniel Collins, John Conroy and Christopher MacDonald, who died during their time at North, would have been among this year's graduates.

In a brief memorial he commented, "William Penn once said 'Death is but crossing the world, as friends do the seas; they live in another still.'"
"We will always consider them our friends and reserve a special place for them in our hearts," Mariano said.
A moment of silence was observed in memory of the four.

Melissa McCauley

progress through school, we realize that we need not avoid the 'cliques' but find it easier to accept the fact of their existence and try to get along with them. We need not feel inferior for we are people in our own right, whether we belong to a 'clique' or not. Coping with our enemies is a valuable lesson to learn while still in school because we will meet up with 'cliques' wherever we go and if we learn to tolerate them now, later on our attention can be focused on more important considerations.

"The relationship between the student and teacher is also an important one in our 'process' of education. The teacher becomes a motivator for us by making us more aware of surrounding influences and of our own capabilities. The teacher constantly tries to show the necessity for learning and thereby motivates us. Once we want to learn the teacher can then push us to fulfill our potential. It is very much to our advantage to possess the desire to learn. In school, we have teachers who cajole and sometimes threaten in order to get us to work. After we leave school we will have to meet deadlines and strive to reach our goals and then we won't always have someone to push us. In other words we must find strength within ourselves to accept and deal with our problems and responsibilities. The teacher's role also resembles that of an employer. When we embark upon a career or job we must be able to work under the supervision of others and learn to follow their instructions. This is a lesson we learn from our relationships with teachers, guidance counselors and other people in positions of authority.

"The various relationships in which we are involved are established through our extra-curricular activities as well as through the everyday school routine. In clubs such as Drama or the Ski Club, we meet new people. Activities such as Student Union and Student Council encourage students to take an active part in the decision-making process that is such a major part of the democratic principle. These activities involve us in other areas to which we may not have been exposed and encourage us to further our interests which in turn, makes us more well-rounded individuals.

"Thus, school becomes an epoch in our lives where we prepare for the future. The interaction between us, our fellow students, teachers, and even our enemies plays a major part in the development of our character. School is not just a place where we memorize dates and other facts, but rather a place where we discover our potential and learn to develop it. The way we live our lives and the kind of person we will become will have been, in some measure, shaped and molded by our experiences in school.

A Lot Of Graduation

In Lives of Quantum Couple

Schools have played a big role recently in the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar C. Chisholm of 147 Essex St., Squantum.

Their son, Brian, a 1975 graduate of North Quincy High School, was graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N. Y., with a degree in aeronautical engineering.

He has accepted a position on the engineering staff of Pratt and Whitney Aircraft in Hartford, Conn.

Their daughter, Mrs. Cynthia Venezia of Billerica, a 1969 graduate of NQHS and UMass-Amherst in 1973, received a masters degree in education from Framingham State College.

She is currently on the teaching staff of the Marshall Simonds School in Burlington.

Another daughter, Mrs. Joyce Bickel of Franklin, NQHS '65 and UMass-Amherst '69, is a physical education teacher at Chelmsford Junior High School.

And a second son, Russell, NQHS '78 just finished his freshman year at Norwich College, Northfield, Vt., where he is majoring in criminal justice and hopes to make the varsity football team this fall.

A participant in the Army ROTC program, he is scheduled to receive a commission in the U.S. Army after he graduates in 1982.

Dr. Creedon:

Graduates Must Help Shape Future

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Quincy's high school graduates, having been shaped by the concern and love of their parents and educators, now must take their place in shaping the future.

So spoke School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon in addressing graduates of the city's three high schools this week. Nearly 1000 seniors received diplomas from North Quincy, Quincy and Quincy Vocational Technical High Schools Monday and Tuesday. According to officials of the three schools, 148 graduates shared 199 school-awarded scholarships, totalling almost $28,000. In addition, 326 academic and service awards were awarded to 214 graduates.

In Monday night's ceremonies, 364 persons received degrees from North Quincy High School, while the following evening 432 were graduated from Quincy High and 197 more from Quincy Vo-Tech.

In addressing graduates of the three schools, Dr. Creedon noted:

"In speaking of the impact that social institutions have on the lives of individuals as well as on civilizations, Winston Churchill once remarked: 'We shape our buildings and then our buildings shape us.'"

"It occurs to me that all of us drawn together here this evening out of concern and love for our graduating seniors can identify with and understand Churchill's message.

"For just shy of two decades, you as parents and loved ones and we as teachers have been building. Our construction materials have been time and energy, skill and competence, concern and discipline, dedication and sacrifice, compassion and love. Our product is assembled here before us and we are proud.

"As educators, our goal has been to help these young people to become self-fulfilling individuals, competent workers and good citizens in a world that is maximally effective for all. And while we have suffered our setbacks and agonized over our failures, I feel that all of us can take pride not only in our effort but also our accomplishment.

"In a very significant way, this evening marks the beginning of a new construction period. With this commencement, the graduates need to appreciate that for most of them their life pattern has been formed, their building - the individuality - has taken shape and its final appearance now rests with each of them.

"In leaving here this evening our graduating seniors need to appreciate that as we have labored and loved in shaping them, now they must start shaping the future, and thus us, as they begin to assume positions of responsibility in their chosen fields.

"You are Americans and be proud of it, and while, our constitutional form of government guarantees to you the opportunity to grow and become what you must, it is incumbent upon you to realize that this nation's survival requires that it is in you that all of us must place our trust."

On 3-2 Vote

Board Takes Tour, Revokes S. Quincy Scrap Yard License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Following much debate and a tour of the site, the Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to revoke the license of P.D.M., Inc., a South Quincy scrap yard located at 175 Intervale St.

P.D.M.'s license was revoked on a 3-2 vote for extending into an area not licensed by the board, and failure to fence and screen the land.

Voting to revoke the license were Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Health Inspector Dr. Samuel Solomon.

City Clerk John Gillis and Police Chief Francis X. Finn voted against the motion.

Henry P. Gregoire, of P.D.M., had been ordered to appear before the board to show cause why the license should not be revoked after complaints were heard at a previous meeting.

The complaints were in regard to operating beyond the confines of the building, failing to fence in the area according to an agreement made at an earlier meeting, and extending a building without a permit.

Kaymond Kirpa, of Old Colony Crushed Stone and Construction Co., a major abutter to P.D.M., also had told the board of metal being piled against their fence, material being improperly stored and other unsightly and dangerous operations which, he said, adversely affected Old Colony.

Area residents Selma and Edgar Bookman had also registered complaints against P.D.M.

Gregoire had replied that on several occasions he repaired damage to the Old Colony fence, and he expressed a desire to remedy complaints against the company.

When the conditions at P.D.M. were brought up at Tuesday's meeting, Inspector MacDonald replied, "Nothing has been cleaned up."

On Chief Finn's suggestion, the board members recessed the hearing and adjourned to the site to get first hand information on the conditions.

The meeting reconvened 30 minutes later with discussion of restrictions placed on the original license which was transferred from 226 Water St. to Intervale St. in August, 1971.

The restrictions were in regard to material being kept within the confines of the building and board members questioned whether they were still in fact, valid after the transfer.

Chief Barry mentioned a Supreme Court ruling that restrictions on licenses be upheld in case of transfer.

City Solicitor Robert Fleming, asked to give his opinion, stated, "You would have to look at the restrictions and see whether they were unique to the land of the previous location. Interpretation also depends on the original intent of the board in placing the restrictions."

Chief Finn said that in moving to Intervale St., P.D.M. increased its area of operation 15 times and that restrictions on the license would then be unique to the old location and would not apply.

He did say that he would pursue other complaints against P.D.M. such as a crusher located beyond P.D.M.'s land.

MacDonald made a motion to revoke the license and it was seconded by Chief Barry.

The revocation takes effect in two weeks.

In other action, the board: - Granted a request from Ernest Bettuchy, of Ernie's Salvage, 20 Branch St., to relocate at 22 Isabella St., with two junk wagon licenses.

- Continued for six months a hearing on conditions at 31 Sampo Place, an auto body shop owned by Robert I. Putnam Jr.

The hearing is in regard to having more cars on the property than is allowed in the license.

Putnam voiced his intention of talking with City Councillor Jim Sheets and area residents to remedy the situation.

- Granted a request from the South-West Community Center for permission to hold a flea market, July 28, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., as well as a car wash, at Lincoln-Hancock Community School. Food will be sold.

- Continued for one week a request from ARDEE's, 72A Billings Rd. for a second hand license. A letter was to be sent by the board to City Councillor Joanne Condon and the North Quincy Board of Trade requesting their opinion on the proposed second-hand store.

- Postponed for one week a hearing on Bay Colony Realty Association (Cumberland Farms) 470 Adams St., and 604-614 Hancock St., to show cause why their license should not be revoked.

- Postponed for one week a continued hearing on a request from South Shore Bait & Tackle, Inc., 569 Washington St., for a Sunday opening license.

Hats off to Coach Charlie Bunker and his North Quincy High School baseball team.

The Raiders last Friday qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament and Monday they won their first Suburban League championship with a 7-6 win at Brockton.

At the start of the season Bunker didn't know what to expect this season with only one established pitcher, southpaw Gary Earle.

However, with Earle having a phenomenal season and being named the Suburban League's Most Valuable Player, North compiled a 13-3 league record and finished 13-4 overall. Brockton finished second and Waltham third in the league.

"I don't know what to say. Earle was just unbelievable this year and I feel he could be pitching with a college team right now," Bunker said. "He is a real pro prospect and I feel he and our catcher, Bob Biagini, made up not only the best battery in our league, but in the entire state."

Earle had his one bad inning of the year Monday when, having difficulty handling the wet ball, he gave up five runs in the fourth inning to give Brockton a 5-4 lead.

The Raiders had started right off by taking a 4-0 lead in the first inning with Earle and Biagini having key hits.

In the top of the sixth inning Earle won his own game by belting a three-run homer over the right field fence at Brockton's field. In the sixth he gave up another run and Leo Graham came on in relief. With men on second and third and only one out, Brockton attempted a suicide squeeze but the batter missed and Biagini tagged the runner out on a rundown. Graham then struck out the next batter.

Brockton threatened in the bottom of the seventh and had the tying run on third and a runner on first with two outs. The batter hit to Greg Madden at third and his throw to second was high. It appeared the throw was too high and the score would be tied but Dave Nagle, the league's all-star second baseman, made a leaping catch of the throw and tagged the runner just before the runner crossed the plate.

The win gave Earle a 9-0 record for the season. Graham was 3-0 and Brian Condon pitched the Raiders' other win.

North, which played strong defense all year, played errorless ball and had several outstanding plays.

Last Saturday night in its only non-league game of the season, North dropped a 3-0 decision to Milton's Bay State League champions in a game which went two extra innings.

The anticipated duel between Greg Burdette, the Bay State League's top pitcher, and Earle failed to materialize as Bunker used Earle the day before in a 14-1 romp over Weymouth North to clinch a tournament bid.

Bunker used Bob Thomas and Condon on the mound and they matched the outstanding Burdette until the ninth when a highly controversial call at second on what would have been the final out set up Milton's three runs as two hits followed. It appeared the runner was out at second on an attempted force play but he was called safe, resulting in a heated North protest.

Friday Earle was at his best as he hurled a five-hitter, struck out 10 and walked only two as he completed his fifth game in a row without giving up an earned run. He was given ample support at the plate and, taking advantage of five Weymouth errors, scored eight runs. Dave King keyed the inning with a three-run homer over the left field fence at Weymouth's Libby Field.

single in the third, walked with the bases loaded and on the day had two hits, two walks and two runs scored. Mark Millane had three hits and scored two runs and Biagini added two hits and scored twice. All together the Raiders had 15 hits.

Last Thursday night Graham pitched a four-hitter as North exploded for five runs in the second and topped Weymouth South, 7-3. Condon, the team's most pleasant surprise this spring, came on in relief when Graham tired and got a save. He also paced the 10-hit attack with three hits, while Graham helped his own cause with two.

North's busy week had started two days earlier when Earle blanked Waltham, then leading the league, 2-0, with a brilliant one-hitter. North was held to two hits, both by King, as Earle made two unearned runs in the first stand up.

"I just can't believe all this," Bunker admitted. "When we had some games rained out and had to play four games last week, I was worried, but everyone played his heart out and contributed to all this. First, we made the tournament and now we have our first league championship. It is wonderful."

The pairings for the tournament were due to be released yesterday (Wednesday).

Earle had an unbelievable 0.30 ERA going into Monday's game and finished with one of about 0.50, still fantastic. He struck out 2½ batters to every one he walked and gave up an average of only four hits a game. Last year he was 2-0, then missed the rest of the year with an injury.

"If he doesn't make every all-scholastic team, I'd like to see the guy who beats him out," the elated Bunker said.

In addition to Earle being named the league's MVP, Biagini and Nagle made the all-star team and King made the second team as designated hitter.

"Nagle has to be the most unheralded all-star ever named," Bunker continued. "We played 10 scrimmages and 17 games and he didn't make an error at second base."

Although the North coach said his team's success was due mainly to pitching and speed, he had several of the league's top batters.

Biagini batted about .420 and was brilliant behind the plate with one of the best arms in the league. Nagle, King and Condon all batted nearly .400 and Earle hit well over .300.

"Condon was the biggest surprise," Bunker said. "I didn't know when the season opened what I would do with him but he was a good as any first baseman in the league and also pitched well in relief."

In praising his defense, the veteran coach noted that the outfield made only one error this year. "And, you guessed it, it cost us a game," he said.

Triple A League

Faherty, Ciardi Combine On No-Hitter As White Sox Win

The White Sox shut out the Braves, 7-0, in the Triple A Baseball League with Pat Faherty and Joe Ciardi combining for a no-hitter.

Keith Freeman had a single and double for the Tigers, while losing pitcher Mark Campbell had 10 strikeouts.

Junior League

Remick's Wins 3, Rotary Bombs Sears

Remick's won three games in four days last week, the busy schedule resulting from rained out games.

Remick's scored seven runs in the fifth to wallop Kiwanis, 12-5, with Steve Higgins the winning pitcher. John McGlame and Higgins hit back-to-back home runs in the fourth inning. Chris Bunker had three hits and McGlame and Tom Ryan two each.

Remick's also blasted Colonial Federal, 10-1, with Chris Rossi pitching two-hit ball in his pitching debut. Remick's pounded out 16 hits including four for Ryan and four for Don Guthro and two each by Bunker [one a homer] and McGlame.

Earlier Remick's had bested the Elks, 5-2, with Bunker the winning pitcher. Higgins earned a save as the pair combined for a one-hitter. Bunker and Ryan had two doubles apiece and McGlame also hit a double.

Rotary Walloped Sears, 15-9, with Mike Joyce getting credit for the win. It was Rotary's fourth win in six games. A 10-run third inning was led by Jack Outerbridge, who had two homers in the game. Ken Maher also homered and Joe Cullen, Bill Gruen, P. J. Hussey and Bill Burkhead also had hits. For Sears Mike Faherty had a long home run and Joe Barnes turned in a fine defense effort.

Burgin Platner scored seven runs in the third inning and topped the Elks, 8-4, with Danny Kelley the winning pitcher. The Elks had taken a 4-1 lead going into the bottom of the third when Burgin exploded. Jack Kelley had a key hit and Kelley drove in two runs to cut the edge to 4-3, then John Cristiani singled home two more and Jimmy Salvati, Mike Cocce and Eric Roukey drove in the other runs. Kelley turned in a great 4-inning relief stint, giving up only two hits and had a single and his bases loaded double. Cristiani had two hits and Andrew Pugliese, Kelly, Tommy Richardson and Richie Horrigan had hits. Also playing well were Mark DiMatteo, Mike Barron, Derek Holt, Jay Osgood and Billy Cappis.

Foley Plymouth-Chrysler defeated VFW, 7-3, to improve its record to 8-2, with Billy Phillips pitching a two-hitter. Mat Elofson, who is batting .533, had a double and single, Paul Miller, Chris Marshall and Billy Phillips a double apiece and Jackie Bolster, Paul Marshall and Dave Phillips a single each. For VFW Jerry Arroyo pitched creditably, Brian Chase had a double and Ed McArdle a single, and Chase made an outstanding play in the field.

Foley also defeated Sears, 9-4, as Chris Marshall pitched two-hit ball. Bolster had a home run and single, Chris Marshall two singles and Elofson and Peter Furtado a single each. Bolster made a diving catch for the defensive play of the game. For Sears Mike Faherty had a homer and Steve Austin a double.

Foley walloped Boston Gear, 11-2, with Paul Marshall improving his pitching record to 3-0 as he struck out eight, giving him 26 for the season. Foley's scored eight runs in the sixth to break up a close game. Chris Marshall had three singles, Elofson two doubles and a single, Bolster a double and single and Paul Marshall, Billy Phillips, Dave Phillips and Mike Murphy a single each. For Boston Gear Rich Pettinelli was two for three and pitched well and Dennis Napier, Billy Heffernan and Jim Adams each singled.

Remick's kept rolling along with a 2-0 win over Boston Gear as Higgins edged Rich Pettinelli in a fine pitching duel. McGlame drove in the first run in the third inning and he scored the second run in the fifth on Higgins' clutch single. Ryan continued his hot batting with the longest single of the year off the top of the fence and he also saved the game with an outstanding catch in the last inning with two runners on.

Kiwanis topped Foley, 5-1, for its third win in the last four games as Steve Durante pitched a two-hitter. Singles by Mark McDonald, John Doherty, George Hartford, Steve Kelly and Joey Monahan drove in three runs in the fourth to clinch the decision. Shawn Flavin made the fielding play of the game with a great catch at first base.

Earlier Kiwanis had topped Gear, 9-4, behind southpaw pitcher Steve Kelly, who is normally a righthanded throwing catcher.

Kiwanis also defeated Houghs Neck, 9-5, paced by the hitting of Mike Navak, Tom Reilly, Mike Garity, Dennis DeCoste and Chris Ricciuti.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's an interesting point to think about... Whenever a father-or anyone-teaches a youngster how to hit a baseball, they always say to put your hands together on the bat... Yet, did you know that two of the greatest hitters in the history of baseball used a different way of hitting?... Both Ty Cobb and Home Run Wagner batted with their hands separated on the bat... They each had one hand spaced apart a few inches from the other on the handle of the bat... Isn't it strange that no one tries to bat that way today?... Cobb had the highest lifetime batting average of all-time, .367 and Wagner's was .329.

And speaking of odd batting positions, one of the strangest belonged to Al Simmons who played in the majors for 20 years between 1924 and 1944... He always stepped away from the plate with his left, or front, foot while hitting, or, as it's known in baseball lingo, he "stepped in the bucket"... If any batter does that today, he's instructed not to... You aren't supposed to be able to hit that way... Yet, Simmons who did it all his career is in the Hall of Fame and wound up with a lifetime batting average of .334!

Boathouse Unit Sweeps Doubleheader

The Boathouse started out with a 10-run first inning and held on for a doubleheader sweep of the Mount, 19-17 and 9-8, in the fifth annual Memorial Day softball game at O'Rourke Field.

The Boathouse was sparked by Joe Link, who knocked in six runs and played well in the field. Link, who was playing in the annual event for the first time, drove in two runs in the 10-run first inning. He was awarded the game's MVP trophy.

Despite the number of runs, there were some key defensive plays. Brooks Haight and Juan Uhlar made some exciting plays for the winners while Melvin Sullivan, Pat Noonan and Jim Evans played well in the field for the Mount.

The Mount was down, 19-9 in the last inning of the opening game but came up with eight runs, sparked by Will Phelan's 3-run homer. Sullivan flied out with two men on as the rally fell short. Winning pitcher was Louie Chipman, who was also playing in the game for the first time.

The second game saw the Mount pull ahead on the hitting of Ged Phelan, who hit to the opposite field for three singles and four RBIs.

Going into the last inning the Mount led, 8-4. The Boathouse battled back to tie the game on Carl Bortolotti's single scoring Reggie Smith. Bortolotti was thrown out trying to make third and the game went into extra innings.

The Mount didn't score in its half of the inning, but the Boathouse loaded the bases in the bottom half on singles by Brett Buckley, Chipman and Link. Mount pitcher Fred Murray then retired last year's MVP, Kevin McGinley on a strike-out and he got Brian Buckley to pop out. But Brooks Haight drove in Brett Buckley with the winning run.

DeMolay Wins 3rd Straight

The Old Colony DeMolay (Quincy) softball team romped over Needham, 16-0, Sunday, to improve its record to 3-0.

Ken Olson pitched a seven-hitter, while Old Colony pounded out 24 hits. Steve Wood homered for the Quincy team in the third inning.

Coil springs for consistent operation — even after years of use. There are four in each Red Ryder. Two in many other shocks.

"O" ring piston seal — it makes sure the fluid flows through the valving — instead of uselessly bypassing it.

Red Ryder's 1 3/16" piston (40% larger than the pistons used in standard replacement shocks) helps Red Ryders shed heat faster — gives you more control when the going's rough.

Gabriel's special nine stage valving (many other shocks use only six) gives Red Ryders better resistance to fade.

St. Joseph's A Team Rolls Over Sacred Heart

St. Joseph's Girls A softball team opened its season in impressive fashion Sunday when it rolled over Sacred Heart of North Quincy, 39-0.

Allison Bright and Ann Abdallah pitched four-hit ball and received excellent support. Susan Dacey had three home runs, one a grand slam. Abdallah hit two homers and Bright, Kathy Curtin and Janet Caporale each hit a homer. Dacey drove in 12 runs, Abdallah 11 and Bright and Curtin four each. Lisa Shaugnessy, Anne Trubiano and Heather Slicis drove in two apiece and Lisa Dunlea and Caporale one each. Also playing well were Kathy Baritti, Linda Caporale, Coleen Carney, Elizabeth Dwyer, Patricia Hunter and Danielle Morris.

St. Joseph's C team breezed past St. Joseph's D, 23-3, Sunday, scoring 12 runs in the first and 10 in the second. Janice Glavin went the distance pitching her first game and helped her own cause with two hits. Tricia Travers was three for four including two triples. Joyce McLaughlin had three hits and Margaret McBride, Janine LaFleur, Jackie Glavin, Lisa DiGuisto and Mary Travers had two each. Mary Ricciarelli and Margie Kerins had two hits each for the D team.

Last Friday the C team paraded over St. Joseph's B team, 23-3, in its first CYO League game. LaFleur pitched four-hit ball and was afforded solid support and plenty of batting support. Janice Glavin had four hits, Mary Thibodeau three and each had a triple. Tricia Travers hit her first homer and had another hit, while Jackie Glavin, Mary Travers and McLaughlin had two hits each. Kristin Fitzgerald had two hits for the B team.

The C team will host St. Mary's of Hull Sunday at 6 o'clock at the Pond Street Field.

Broad Meadows Track Team Squeezes By Central

The importance of second and third place finishes was never more apparent than in the Broad Meadows-Central Junior High boys' track meet last week.

BM won only two events but took seven seconds and six thirds to squeeze by, 42-40, to improve its record to 3-0. It was Central's first loss.

The only BM winners were Mike Nevins in the shot and John Robertson in the mile. The relay team gave BM its edge with a thrilling come-from-behind win.

The 440 featured a duel between Central's Kevin Wood and BM's Mike Williams, Woods winning by inches in 55.2, the fastest 440 ever run by a junior high athlete.

The 880 matched up Donna Keith and Brad Kenyon, who battled for two laps before Kenyon took command in the excellent time of 2:11.

BM swept the shot with Nevins, Bill Bomar and Dave Finlay. Broad Meadows easily defeated Point, 61-21, for its second straight win.

Williams won the 440 and David Keith the half mile in outstanding performances. Other BM winners were Carl Lockhard, hurdles; Ed Brennan, mile; Nevins, shot put; Dan Radley, high jump, and both relay teams.

For Point Chris McCray won the 100 and long jump, Richard Parker was second in the 100 and long jump, Charlie Kerr was second in the low hurdles, Adam McGhee second in the 440 and Jim Bisson third in the shot.

● Babe Ruth

Police Club Racks Up 3

The Police Club enjoyed a big week with three wins in the Babe Ruth League, climaxed by a 10-3 walloping of Granite City Electric.

Brian Stoker was the winning pitcher and Mark Baker sparked the 13-hit attack with a triple, double and single. Angelo Russo and Kevin Cabala had two hits each. Other hits were collected by Mark Boussey, Dennis Croke, Jim Bandera, Stoker, Mike Morris and Chris Draicchio. Mark Goodwin and Paul Earle made outstanding catches for Granite City.

The Police scored twice in the seventh inning to edge Morrisette, 5-4, with Jim Bandera the winner. Boussey started the winning seventh with a single, stole second, went to third on an error and scored the tying run on a passed ball. Mark Baker went around and scored the winning run. Kevin Whalen pitched a strong game for Morrisette and also had a triple.

Earlier the Police had scored eight runs in the fourth and defeated Sons of Italy, 10-11. Bandera was credited with his first win. Baker and Morris had two hits apiece, one of Baker's being a bases loaded triple in the big fourth. Mike Notarangelo had a double and Tony Green and Draicchio also had hits. Bob Connolly and Kevin Howley had two hits each for S. of I.

Barry's Deli had a big week with three wins to even its record at 3-3.

It topped Granite City Electric, 5-2, with Frank Reynolds pitching a two-hitter, striking out six and walking only one. Chris Baker went three for three and Billy Barter had two hits. Reynolds hit a long triple as did Paul Reinhardt, who also was a defensive standout. Jeff Morrison had Barry's other hit. For Granite City Paul Earle and John Goodwin had the hits, both singles, and Earle did some excellent base running. Jim O'Brien stood out behind the plate.

Barry's walloped Sons of Italy, 11-1, behind the strong pitching of Mike Marshall. Marshall allowed five hits, struck out seven and walked only two. Dave Coletti, Barter, Brian Deitch and Marshall had two hits apiece and Reinhardt, Dave Marrocco and Baker had one each. Reynolds did a fine job catching. For S.C.I. Pat Connelly and O'Bie O'Brien hit back to back triples for the only run in the seventh. Jimmy Austin, Steve Howley and Nick Cristiani also had hits.

Barry's edged VFW, 2-1, in eight innings, with Coletti pitching a two-hitter to edge hard luck loser Jim Kurey, who allowed six hits and struck out 10. Barter drove in the winning run with a bases loaded single, his second hit. Coletti pitched out of constant trouble with VFW filling the bases with no outs in the first and seventh innings. In the seventh an unusual triple play started by Jeff Morrison in center field saved the day. Coletti walked the bases loaded and Billy Goon hit a sinking liner to center. Morrison made a great catch coming in, continued in to tag second and fired to third to finish off the triple play.

Baker, Tom Schofield, Reinhardt and Coletti had hits and Reinhardt caught a strong game. He also drove in the first run with a single and he scored the winner. Jackie Brown and Eric Swanson had the VFW hits.

Golden Print scored four runs in the sixth and topped the Police Club, 6-3, with Brian Reale the winning pitcher. Golden had taken a 2-1 lead in the first on hits by Jim Kelly, Tommy Foley and Sean Martin and in the sixth Martin, Bobby Ready, Danny McInnis and Foley had the hits with Ready hitting a triple to right.

Foley and Martin had three hits apiece. Kelly two and Reale, Ready and McInnis one each. For Police Mark Boussey and Kevin Cabelas had two each and Mark Baker the other.

VFW walloped Police, 10-3, with Mike Cullen the winner. It was the first loss for Police. Jack Brown had three hits and Steve Hogan, Jay Pillard, Bob Grant, Kurey and Gary Brown one each. Anthony Green had two hits for Police and Boussey, Jim Bandera, Mark Baker, Mike Morris, Chris Draicchio and Cabelas one each.

Houghs Neck scored a run in the ninth inning to edge Sons of Italy, 1-0, in one of the best games of the year. Dan Dunn was the winner over Brian Donovan. Dunn allowed two hits and struck out eight, while Donovan yielded eight hits. Tom O'Connor and Joe Conti had two hits apiece but it was Dale Adams who drove in the run. There were many excellent defensive plays and Jim DiPietro, Jim Austin and Mike Cristiani made fine plays in support of Donovan.

Golden Print scored twice in the fourth and edged Local 1139, 2-0, with Reale outpitching Jim Venezia. Ready's home run following Martin's single accounted for the runs. Ready had two hits and Kelly, Martin and John Balzano one each. Mark Righini, Tom Richards, Paul Quigley and Rich Comeau had the hits for Local 1139.

Houghs Neck defeated VFW, 7-5, with Ross Connerly making a successful pitching debut. He gave up only two earned runs, scattered nine hits, struck out 10 and walked only two. He also had three hits and drove in three runs. Steve Sacchetti and Scott Matthews had two hits apiece and Marty McLoughlin and Sacchetti came up with fine defensive plays. Brown, Pillard and Swanson had two hits each for VFW.

Wollaston moved into third place with a 6-3 mark with a 34-28 win over Beechwood Knoll and a 35-34 squeaker over Mass. Fields "A". In the Beechwood game Freddy Kiley had eight points for Wollaston and Mark MacDonald and George Burke had six each. Larry Leonard had eight for Beechwood.

North Track Seniors Defeat Quincy, 104-41

North Quincy's track seniors finished undefeated against Quincy last Friday when the Raiders breezed past the Presidents, 104-41, for their 15th successive win in spring and winter track and cross country over Quincy.

The win gave North an 8-4 overall record and a 4-4 Suburban League mark, while Quincy finished winless despite some fine individual performances.

North won 14 of the 17 events with underclassmen getting 21 places. All of Quincy's places but one came from underclassmen.

Dan McIntyre was a triple winner for the Raiders and Tim O'Neill won two events. McIntyre won the high hurdles and triple jump and ran with the winning 440 relay team. O'Neill won the 220 and long jump. O'Neill's long jump and McIntyre's time in the hurdles were the best in the league this year.

Also winning were the 440 relay team of Mastorilli, McIntyre, Dailey and O'Neill, and the mile relay team of Rick Anderson, Jim Alban, Rich Schaezel and Jod McDonald.

Raiderettes Upset Quincy, 63-55

The North Quincy girls' track team, handicapped by a small squad, won only one meet this spring but it was a big win last week when the Raiderettes upset Quincy, 63-55, for the city championship. The First Ladies also finished with just one win.

North was sparked by Lisa Green, who set a school record, [16-9½] in winning the long jump, won the javelin and also helped the Raiderettes set a mile relay record in winning that important event. That team of Green, Marie Voelkel, Mary Crehan and Elaine Robertson turned in a 4:25.6 effort.

Other winners for Jeff Strangis' North girls were Eileen McKenna in the 220 and hurdles, Voelkel in the 880, Crehan in the mile, Robin O'Donnell in the two-mile and Cheryl Ayles in the high jump.

For Joe Amoroso's Quincy team, Susan McLoughlin won the 100, Lois Guglielmi the 440, Rita Pasqualone the discus and shotput and the 440 relay team of Lois LaTina, McLoughlin, Joanne Mediche and Anne McDonald also won. Facentt For Ruth Gordon Visit

The unfinished Ruth Gordon Amphitheater in Merrymount Park is going to be spruced up in anticipation of a visit by Ruth Gordon herself next week.

Miss Gordon, now vacationing in her summer home on Martha's Vineyard, is expected to attend the 65th reunion of her Quincy High School Class of 1914 Friday, June 22, at the Neighborhood Club.

The Amphitheater which was dedicated on New Year's Eve, 1977, after expenditure of $544,000 in federal CETA funds, was disclosed in a Quincy Sun story in May, 1978, to be left unfinished and unusable.

Mayor Arthur Tobin said

that the Park Department and the Public Works Department, using their own funds, have been quietly working to repair and complete the stage facility for the past year.

"Everything has been done," said Tobin, "except for sodding, shrubbery and landscaping, the installation of a chain link fence and a light at the corner near park Department headquarters.

"It still looks like a mess but we have the important groundwork done."

Executive Secretary Richard J. Koch of the Park Recreation Board promised to clean up the premises, which has become overgrown with weeds, so that

HoJo Motel Planned For Downtown

By TOM HENSHAW

Preliminary plans for a 150 to 200-room Howard Johnson motel in the Ross Parkway, possibly including a Howard Johnson museum, were announced Tuesday by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

The motel would be built for Sage Motor Hotels of Boston, which also has Howard Johnson motel franchises in Kenmore Square, Boston; Cambridge, Revere and Waterville, Maine.

Robert Sage, president of Sage Motor Hotels, declined to set a cost figure for the motel, which could take up to 2½ years through the planning and building stages.

Tied in with the motel would be a parking garage straddling the MBTA tracks, for which the city is readying another Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) application.

"Subject to the approval of the Howard Johnson Co.," said Sage, "we would like to include a museum that would have artifacts showing the origins of Howard Johnson in Quincy."

Sage, who is also a founder and vice chairman of the Convention Bureau in Boston, said his firm is impressed by "the tremendous potential Quincy has to make things happen."

"There is a very livewire group in Quincy that is anxious to see positive things happen," he said. "When we invest our own funds we like to see this kind of effort." Tobin said the city offered no tax concessions to lure Sage to downtown Quincy.

"But if Sage needs some financial relief, I'm sure the city will be receptive," he said. "We are not going to allow the downtown to deteriorate any further. We will do what is needed to encourage Sage."

"It is time we got a first class hotel in downtown Quincy. I think it will fly."

Tobin said he was embarrassed to have to go to another city to attend the senior proms of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools, which were held in the Sheraton Tara in Brintree and the Chateau de Ville in Randolph.

"Wouldn't it be much nicer to have a place for the senior prom in Quincy?" he asked.

The Mayor said that the recently won Commercial Area Revitalization Area (CARD) designation from the state will help Sage to obtain financing for the motel.

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordina-

Computer Readies Assault On 42,000 Parking Scofflaws

Summonses covering 42,000 "forgotten" parking violations in Quincy, some of them dating back to 1975, will be going out to miscreants no later than the end of June, according to City Auditor Charles L. Shea.

Shea said the city now has all 42,000 tickets stored in its computer ready to be "automatically pumped out" at the push of a button and May, 1979, violations are about to be added.

The Auditor said the city would net more than $200,000 if all the violations go to the summons stage, which would mean $5 for a $2 ticket and $8 for a $5 tag.

Anyone wishing to pay up before receiving the summons will not be assessed the $3 extra charge, he said.

If violators ignore the summons for 21 days like they ignored the tickets, said Shea, their names will be sent to the Registry of Motor Vehicles for further action, possibly revocation of license.

Later, however, he conceded

City Council To Act On $99 Million City Budget

The City Council will hold a special meeting tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chamber to vote on Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's $99 million budget for fiscal 1979-80.

By law the budget has to be returned with Council cuts, to the Mayor by Friday, June 15.

The Council's Finance Committee, hung up on the deletion of eight nurses from the hospital budget, finally concluded its hearings Tuesday night when Tobin agreed to restore the eight. The nursing situation that concerned the councillors was hashed out Monday night with Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco first denying that there were any cuts, only transfers to other departments.

Later, however, he conceded

Tobin Outlines Agenda For Development Conference As Downtown Starts To Hum

"It would be nice to be mayor of Quincy five years from now and be able to look back on all this," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "We're doing the nuts and bolts now. It would be nice to look back and say, 'Gee, we were part of that.'"

Tobin, whose current political plans look only two years ahead, was riding an economic high Tuesday when he announced plans for a motel in Quincy, outlined his June 20 economic development conference and dropped a few other tidbits of mercantile interest.

One of them was that Mondev Corp., Ltd., of Montreal, Que., has expressed some interest in building a hotel-convention complex on the site of the Boston Harbor Marina in North Quincy.

Another was that a furniture store, currently located in downtown Quincy, will be expanding in September from its present spot into 4,200 square feet of space in the vacant Hancock Bank building on Hancock St.

Yet another was that Child World and Cummings specialty shop also are seeking to expand and have in mind the store vacated by Milton's when it left the Square for South Shore Plaza.

Tobin called a news conference Tuesday to outline plans for the second annual Quincy Development Conference to be held Wednesday, June 20, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club.

The first one, held in May, 1978 and attended by some 175 developers and real estate people, resulted in a $10 million office building planned for the Della Chiesa Parking lot.

On exhibit this time will be the Boston Harbor Marina area, the Ross Parking area (where a Howard Johnson motel is planned), the State Street South area and the section of West Quincy known as Shea-Ruscitto.

Speakers on the conference agenda include:

Byron Matthews, secretary of the State Department of Communities and Development, who will discuss "Available State Incentives and Newly Designated CARD Areas."

Robert Kenney, former director of the BRA, now with Urban Consulting Associates, "The Future of Downtown."

Frank Remick, owner of Remick's of Quincy, "Quincy's Downtown Retail District."

Thomas Curtis, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, "The South Shore Economic Development Corporation."

Robert Foster, chairman of the MBTA, "The Effects of Mass Transit on Quincy."

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, "The Upland Rd. (Burgin Parkway) Extension and the Crosstown Artery."

Leo J. Kelly, chairman of the City Council's Downtown Development Committee, "Cooperative City government."

Mark Dickenson of Grossman Development Properties, Inc., "Doing Business in Quincy."

Adams Shore Apartment Complex Wins Wide Support At Hearing

Clipper Associates appeared to have won overwhelming approval at a public hearing Monday night in its bid to build a 132-unit luxury apartment complex on the site of the old Quincy Adams Marine Basin in Adams Shore.

But one of the opponents was Ward 1 City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, who, sensing defeat, announced that he plans to add six restrictive amendments to the Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement when it comes before the Council.

Six people, three of them immediate neighbors, spoke in favor of the development and 28 more were recorded in favor. Five others, all of whom live in the area, spoke against it, citing the possibility of traffic and sewerage problems.

Peter Eleey, attorney for Clipper Associates, said the proposed $4.2 million complex would include 85 one-bedroom units renting for $485 a month and 47 two-bedroom units renting for $565. There would be no government subsidies, he said.

The Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, said the complex would mean some $250,000 in tax revenues for the city, or nearly $1 on the tax rate. It was part of the city's development plan to encourage quality apartments, he said.

Kelly said he plans to seek these six amendments to the PUD agreement:

- That all taxes and interest owed to the city on the property be paid before a building permit is issued. City records indicate that the owner of record, John Kaskanian of Medford, owes about $77,000 over seven years in back taxes.

- That the developer be held responsible for any damage to surrounding property during the period of construction.

- That provisions be made to hold airborne dirt and dust to a minimum while the complex is being built.

- That dense plantings of shrubbery be made along Palmer St.

- That a "descending lane" to the complex driveway be added on Palmer St. so that through traffic will not be hampered by autos slowing down for the turn.

- That construction workers park their own cars on the property and not on Palmer St., which is narrow and turns slightly at that point.

Eleey said that provisions already have been made for the descending lane in preliminary plans, although it had not yet been decided whether the developer or the city would pay for it.

Clipper Associates is composed of two-sets of Quincy brothers, Peter and William O'Connell and Stephen and Paul Ricciardi. Peter O'Connell and Stephen Ricciardi both resigned from the Planning Board before the plans were submitted.

Eleey and Baharian called the old boatyard site "an eyesore," littered with junk cars and boats, the buildings deteriorating and unsafe.

Frank Glynn of 244 West St., West Quincy, a health inspector for eight years, testified that one summer the Health Department "eliminated 250 rats" nests in the area. "Development," he said, would remove a health hazard.

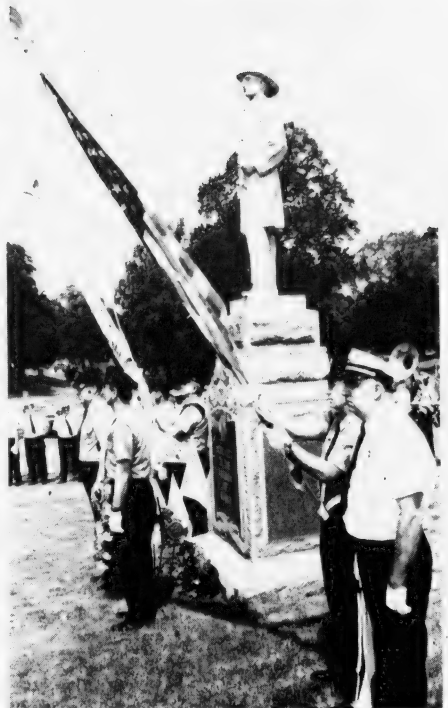

Howard B. League of 56 Palmer St. told the hearing that 5,500 cars use Palmer St. in a day and several times during his 59 years in the area cars have run into his property. Adding more cars, he said, would increase the hazard.

Kelly, noting the proposed rentals of the apartments, prophesied that the number of cars expected to be based in the complex will be higher than estimated, perhaps double.

"The wives as well as the husbands will have to work to pay for the apartment," he said, "so that means two cars for each unit and they probably will leave at the same time in the morning."

Roy W. Higgins of 15 Wilgus Rd. said he didn't know whether he was for or against the development but he added that it was located on one of the few remaining deep water access sites left in the city.

"Perhaps we would be wasting this land by developing it when it is so hard to find deep water," he said. "Perhaps it could be put to better use."

$1,500 Quincy Co-op Scholarship

Her Dream Of Becoming A Lawyer Closer To Reality

Barbara Rhinehart's dream of becoming a lawyer is a little bit closer to coming true thanks to Quincy Cooperative Bank, Quincy Junior College and Eastern Nazarene College.

Miss Rhinehart, a Quincy resident and a recent honor graduate of Quincy Junior College, was awarded a $1,500 scholarship by Quincy Cooperative Bank to further her education.

Bank president John R. Herbert presented the award to aid a student receiving an associates degree from Quincy Junior College who has demonstrated strong academic achievement and has contributed to the college or community in extracurricular student government, social service or other civic activities.

Miss Rhinehart maintained a 3.7 cumulative average while working 15-20 hours a week on work-study as well as being involved in college activities.

A member of the Student Government of the student Senate, Curriculum Committee, Committee on Committees and the Evening Advisory Committee, she was involved in reviewing and formulating college policy.

Barbara, a Quincy resident for the past 11 years, was raised in a small Pennsylvania town.

"Where I was raised it was assumed girls had no further aspirations than to get married and raise a family," she said. "I knew that role was not sufficient for me. At that time, I had this dream of entering the

After graduating from high school, Barbara moved to Quincy and worked as a keypunch operator, computer operator, supervisor and executive secretary.

In 1977, after saving for several years, she entered Quincy Junior College as a full-time student in the Law Enforcement Program and concludes, "Returning to school is probably the best decision I've ever made."

She will enter Eastern Nazarene College this fall, majoring in history pre-law, a program tailored to prepare her for law school.

Quincy Junior College president Dr. Edward Pierce said, "Barbara Rhinehart is the type of person who, once she sets her goals, will see them through. We have been most pleased to have had her at the college and assisted her in developing the resources that will guarantee her future."

CHILDHOOD CONVULSIONS

Few signs of illness in young children are more frightening to parents than convulsions. If the child previously has been found normal by a physician and is on a good diet, the most likely cause is the onset of a disease which produces high fever. Epileptic attacks are uncommon before the age of three.

Alarming as they appear to be, convulsions in themselves are seldom a cause for death. Once started, though, little can be done to stop it. Don't panic. It will end in a few minutes. Don't try to restrain the child's movements any more than is necessary to prevent injury. Lower him gently to the floor or a bed so he doesn't fall.

If breathing stops so long that the child becomes blue, give artificial respiration. When it is over, provide bed rest and quiet and call your doctor.

Nothing succeeds like access.

Chances are, you're pretty busy these days.

We understand.

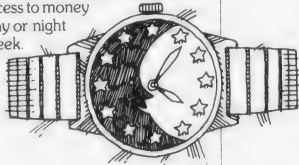

That's why Quincy Savings is doing everything possible to make banking here even more convenient. For you. So you have greater access to the money services you need, when and where you need them.

Whether it's making a deposit into your savings account, taking care of your bills (including loan payments), or cashing a check when you're away from home, Quincy Savings customers enjoy these important advantages:

We're very open with customers

Our six offices are open at convenient hours throughout the week. Saturday hours provide still more flexibility, as do walk up and drive-in facilities at most locations.

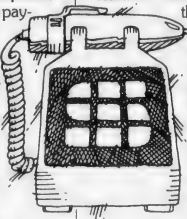

But in a sense, we're open all the time. Because our Plus/24 automatic teller machines make it possible for you to bank around the clock. You have access to money every day or night in the week.

The key to access

We call it a REDI-CASH card. More than 10,000 Quincy Savings Bank customers already use the card for our Plus/24 machines, to make deposits, withdrawals, or loan payments, or to transfer money from one account to another.

One of the further advantages of our REDI-CASH/VEC card is being able to cash personal, payroll or government checks both at our offices and 23 other banks, as well as at more than 100 supermarket locations. Think how convenient that is, when you're away from home!

Checking: with or without checks

Quincy Savings has a way to help you reduce the number of hours you spend paying bills each month. We call it The Bill System. It's simply a REDI-NOW Account, which pays 5% interest, with a Pay-by-Phone feature. The combination gives you the choice of writing and mailing out checks to various places, or having Pay-by-Phone take care of paying some of those bills for you, at 13¢ per transaction, which saves you time and postage. You can take advantage of Pay-by-Phone even when you're away on vacation.

Within easy reach

You'll find the other services you need, within easy reach, at Quincy Savings Bank. Day in and day out, you have a choice of savings accounts and term certificates, all paying the highest possible rates, plus direct deposit service. You'll find retirement plans to suit your needs, as well as Savings Bank Life Insurance, and lending services. In fact, we have about as accessible and wide a selection of bank services as there is anywhere. Maybe that's why we're the largest savings bank on the South Shore today. And why nothing succeeds like access.

To apply for any of these helpful services, visit our nearest office or call a customer service representative at 471-3500, soon.

Quincy Elks Begin Series Of Senior Citizens Dinner Dances

The first of a series of seven dinner dances sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks for senior citizens was held recently at the Elks Home, 1220 Hancock St., Quincy Center, with lodge officials greeting their guests in white dinner jacket and black tie.

Exalted Ruler Leo Nunnari said that in past years the Elks had been limited to inviting only 600. With the new program of seven different dinners it is expected that more than 2,000 senior citizens will be able to attend, especially those who live alone in private housing.

Nunnari said people living in public housing projects have opportunities to mingle with other people and take advantage of various public affairs. Efforts will be made through local ward clubs, churches and organizations to contact those who live alone.

City Council President John J. Quinn brought greetings of Mayor Arthur Tobin to the gathering made up in large part of those who attend the Elks bingo nights, and residents of Clay St. and Granite Place.

Quinn assured them he would vote in favor of the Elks' request to purchase property on Quarry St. for a new home when the question is brought before the city council.

HERE'S HOW YOUR HOME CAN PAY FOR ITS OWN IMPROVEMENTS.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like converting your basement into a room your whole family can eat, play, and relax in.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and how much you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like making your dreamhouse more than just a day dream.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

No Primary Election In '40

We noted here last week that this might be a year without a city preliminary (primary) election.

It's not such a far-fetched possibility.

It actually did happen 39 years ago.

The preliminary election scheduled for Nov. 12, 1940 never came off. There weren't enough candidates to politically tango.

There was only one candidate for mayor, (three were needed), six for three City Council at-large seats (seven needed) and three candidates for two School Committee seats. (Five were needed).

In those days, the mayor and at-large councillors were elected in even years and ward councillors in uneven years. Two school committeemen were elected for three year terms every three years.

In the Dec. 3 final election that year, Mayor Burgin was unopposed for re-election—the only time in the city's history that has happened.

BURGIN

Laurence J. Curtin, Joseph J. Kendrick and Neil A. McDonald were elected to the City Council over John R. Bass, Amelio Della Chiesa (who went on to serve 12 years as mayor—longest in the city's history), and Victor T. Hultin.

Earle S. Bates and I. Paul Marini were elected to the School Committee, defeating Kenneth C. Walker.

DELLA CHIESA

Only 6,458—or 15.5 per cent—of the city's registered voters bothered to go to the polls. Just one month earlier, 37,925 or 93 per cent voted in the national and state elections in which Franklin D. Roosevelt defeated Wendell Wilkie and Leverett Saltonstall turned back Paul A. Dever for governor.

The then Quincy Patriot Ledger editorially called the small turnout a "shameful demonstration" and commented:

"There is only one thing to do: we must have a concerted drive when the legislature opens to get our charter changed so that we can have off year city elections... The majority of the voters were fed up with elections this year. We hope before many years to see off-year elections without a primary and we think the result will be real old fashioned election interest."

Well, a change came in 1942 when the mayor was elected for a three-year term (Charles A. Ross defeating Myron N. Lane). Then, in 1945 the mayor and all the councillors were elected to two-year terms at the same time.

But, unless some more candidates start putting in an appearance 1979 will be the second year without a preliminary election.

IT PROBABLY WON'T be until September before the "60 Minutes" look at the Quincy District Court's Earn It Program airs on CBS.

The show's producer, Steve Glauber, said most of the people talked with "favored" the restitution program established by Judge Albert Kramer, presiding Justice of the Quincy District Court. Under the program, offenders pay back their victims with their services.

How accurate CBS' report on the program is remains to be seen, however. The big question: can it really be completely accurate?

At least two critics of the program in the downtown business community were invited to comment but declined. One felt his remarks would be taken out of context. The other was advised it would not help business from a public relations standpoint. Other critics probably also remained silent for one reason or another.

Regardless, "60 Minutes" can be sure of a top Nielsen rating in Quincy the night it shows.

SENATOR Paul Harold will be a featured speaker at the American Legion's Boys' State at Nichols College in Dudley Sunday, June 17. Harold will speak on the role of a legislator. In 1965 while a student at Sacred Heart High School, Weymouth, he was a delegate to the conference from his school.

MILESTONE: Richard Koch, Sr., executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation board, just celebrated his "speed limit" birthday. The office gang whipped up a cake for him.

WHICH REMINDS US for catchy campaign slogans you can't beat the one Richard J. Koch is using in his bid for a City Council-at-large seat. He has T-shirts emblazoned: "Things Go Better With Koch".

At Quincy District Court

CBS's 'Sixty Minutes' Cameras Focus On 'Earn-It' Program

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Workers and visitors at Quincy District Court crowded for a look through the tiny windows outside Judge Albert Kramer's courtroom last Wednesday.

Some searched for a famous face while others, at the outside of the group, asked "What is it?"

It was CBS's "Sixty Minutes," in Quincy to film a feature on the court's Earn-It program. The feature, reported by Dan Rather, is scheduled to be broadcast sometime this fall, according to producer Steve Glauber.

The Earn-It program, and others like it, which allow young offenders to repay the victims of their crimes with their services, have their supporters and detractors both here and across the country. Last week's filming gave persons on both sides of the idea a chance to have their say for a possible nationwide audience.

Chief target of the cameras, however, was Judge Kramer, founder of the Earn-It program at Quincy District Court. Kramer spent much of last week being filmed in the courtroom, in his chamber, in private meetings, at the Charles Street Jail and walking in and out of the courthouse.

Also interviewed, according to Glauber, who coordinated the week of filming, were local businessmen and law enforcement people, legal experts like Harvard Law Professor Alan Dershowitz and victims and defendants involved in Earn-It cases.

A meeting sponsored by the Quincy League of Women Voters last Thursday, at which Kramer was the featured speaker, was also taped. During the meeting, at historic First Parish Church, "just plain folks" were filmed speaking out on the program. Opinion was reported generally in favor of Earn-It, but with some dissenters.

The entire week of filming will then be edited and compressed into a 12 to 15-minute feature, Glauber said.

The most unusual filming was last Wednesday's court sessions, closed to the public because it involved juveniles. Special consent from all of the parties involved in the cases had to be given to allow the filming, Kramer said.

The youths in Wednesday's cases were charged with vandalism at the MDC's Shea Rink in West Quincy; the pair reportedly tipped over a drum of oil and set it on fire and drove the rink's Zamboni machine through a part of the boards. Damages, at the time, were estimated at about $31,000.

After lengthy sessions, attended by Glauber and the Sixty Minutes sound and film crew, the pair got their sentences: spend the summer repairing the damage they had done at the rink.

During a court recess, after the vandalism case was dealt with, Glauber interviewed one of the defendants and his parents as the cameras rolled.

Did he think the sentence was fair? Glauber asked.

"Year, it was fair... it could have been worse," the youth answered.

Did his brush with the law teach him a lesson?

With his eyes on the ground and speaking in a low voice, the boy answered, "I wouldn't spit on the sidewalk now."

Whether or not the brief interview is used in the final program, Glauber's voice and questions will never be heard on the air. Dan Rather, as well as narrating the segment, will rephrase and restate the questions, so it seems as if he is interviewing the defendant.

That's common practice in the filming of Sixty Minutes, Glauber said. Rather is actually present for "about 25 percent of the filming—it varies with the story," Glauber said.

The five days spent in Quincy represent an average story, he said. Filming for a single 15-minute feature can range between three and 11 days, he said. The Earn-It feature was in the planning and research stages for about six weeks before filming actually started, Glauber said; editing and writing will go on for several more weeks.

Besides Sixty Minutes' four on-the-air reporters, there are about 20 producers, or, as Glauber said, "20 jokers like me." Glauber is one of five who work exclusively with Rather, following a story from start to finish. He is responsible for producing one story every six weeks.

"It might not sound like much, but it is," he said.

Most of the story ideas he works on come from either him or Rather. He first learned about the Earn-It program in legal weekly's article on restitution sentencing and thought it would be a worthwhile story.

Rather, who spent most of the week in New York, finally made it to the courthouse Friday for an interview with Kramer in his chamber.

Meanwhile, Thursday morning found the two sentenced youths at work at Shea Rink. Rink Manager Tony anzalone said painting, scraping and lots of other repair work still had to be done.

The pair will probably be busy for the rest of the summer, he said. "A lot of work still has to be done," he added.

Gave The Breed Respectability

State Dog Boston Terrier Honors 'Doc' Kendall

The Boston terrier was recently designated the Official State Dog of Massachusetts, which would have made Doc Kendall mighty proud.

You see, Dr. Walter Gardner Kendall, the Atlantic dentist who died in 1946 at the age of 92, was the man who gave the once-scorned Boston terrier social standing along with the pekes, poodles and spaniels.

In fact, the New York Herald Tribune in 1925 called him "the father of the breed ... the first to develop the breed into a distinct species" at his Squantum Kennels in Atlantic.

Mrs. Doris Oberg, a local historian whose family knew the Kendalls well, brought her collection of memories of Doc Kendall to The Sun the other day to share with its readers.

The Boston terrier is the result of crossbreeding an English bulldog with a terrier in order to produce a dog that would put on a livelier and more exciting fight in the pits.

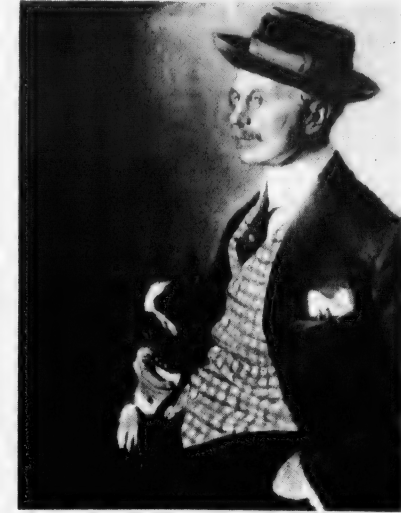

The progeny of that mating was the bull terrier, the long-nosed slit-eyed fighting dog of which the best known locally is "Blue", owned by Mr. and Mrs. Donald S. Cherry of Andover.

But every now and then there was an accident, the result of which was a short-nosed, round-eyed fighting dog of no particular desirability. Imported to America, this became the Boston terrier.

Doc Kendall opened his Squantum Kennels in 1877 especially for the breeding of Boston terriers.

In his book, "Four Score Years of Sport", now long out of print, Doc Kendall, then a resident of Milton, recalled his first Boston terrier, a pup of extraordinary intelligence, named "Bess".

"On my daily trips from Milton to Boston and return," he wrote, "she was my constant companion, but on one occasion we became separated in town, and I began to worry for fear she had become lost.

"My neighbors on the afternoon train to Milton, however, were astonished to see Bess come walking into the car, unaccompanied, and calmly take a seat near the window.

"In those days the train stopped at eight stations before reaching Milton, but Bess, head cocked a little to one side, sat motionless until the brakeman thrust his head through the door and called out 'Milton'.

"At once Bess left the train, in company with a number of other ladies, and walked sedately home, where I found her awaiting me on my return."

By 1933, Doc Kendall's Squantum Kennels were said to be the oldest in the country and had produced more champion Boston terriers than any other.

One of his dogs, Squanto I, winner of first prizes in shows in Boston and New York, was sold for $2,000 and another, His Nibs, was purchased by J. Pierpont Morgan for $1,000.

Yet another dog, Squanto II, acclaimed by Doc Kendall as "perhaps the greatest Boston terrier that ever lived," won no less than 275 first place ribbons and cups in shows all over the country.

It was largely through Doc Kendall's efforts that Boston terriers were accepted as a breed by the American Kennel Club in 1893 and from 1929-35 they were judged the most popular breed in America.

And now the Boston terrier ranks with the mayflower, the chickadee and cranberry juice as an official symbol of the state of Massachusetts.

2,000 Youngsters To March In Koch Flag Day Parade

The 28th annual parade and flag raising ceremonies marking observance of Flag Day will be held today (Thursday) under the sponsorship of the Koch Club. Approximately 2,000 boys and girls, each carrying a small American Flag, will step off at 6:15 p.m. this evening from the Vocational Technical School parking area on Coddington St. and parade to Quincy Sq. and then along Hancock St. to Veterans' Memorial Stadium for a brief patriotic program. Mayor Arthur Tobin has issued a proclamation noting that this is the 202nd anniversary of the Stars and Stripes. In his proclamation the Mayor also called attention to the fact that on this date 204 years ago the Continental Congress adopted resolutions establishing military units in New England as the official national army. The flags carried by the young marchers have been donated by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, the Quincy City club and individuals who have contributed towards purchase of the flags over the years.

The United States flag being used at the flag raising ceremony was flown over the Capitol in Washington, D.C., during the Bi-Centennial year and was presented to the Koch Club by former Congressman James A. Burke.

The marchers will pause at the Church of the Presidents while Koch Club members place a wreath on the crypt of John Adams and John Quincy Adams. There will also be a brief stop at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, where a wreath will be placed in memory of the 35th President, the only honorary member of the Koch Club.

The parade will be headed by a Quincy Police and Fire Department Color Guard, the award winning Quincy High School Band and Mayor Tobin and city, county and state elected officials. Also participating in the first division will be Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall and a unit of uniformed deputy sheriffs.

Representation will be present from the George F. Bryan VFW Post and the Houghs Neck Legion

Post will also march in the first division. The Bryan Post VFW, one of the oldest participants in the event, have provided a Color Guard in the parade for the past two decades.

The Koch Club units of the parade will be led by the Quincy High School Air Force, ROTC squadron and the Renegades Drum and Bugle Corps of Quincy.

Two floats have been entered in the parade with the latest Boston Gas Company float and Hancock Street, USA, a Quincy entry.

Marching units of the Blue Hills Council Girl Scouts and Brownies will participate with 100 members of South Shore Council Camp Fire Girls joining the march.

The Twin Twirlers will join the line of march with the Braintree Braves Drum and Bugle Corps.

St. Ann's baseball leagues and St. John's baseball leagues have been invited to join with the 1500 members of the Koch Club Boys Baseball and Girls Softball Leagues from the North Quincy, Broadmeadows, Montclair and West Quincy districts of the organization.

At the stadium, scholarships will be presented to the winners of the Koch Club Awards while winners of the Energy Conservation Essay and Poster Contest will receive citations.

Outstanding participants in the "Josiah Quincy" Oratorical Contest for junior high school students in grades 7 through 9 will also be recognized.

This year's theme will be "Freedom Under Our Massachusetts Constitution" drafted in 1779 by John Adams in the area now known as the City of Quincy. The document is the oldest constitution in the country and was the forerunner of the United States Constitution.

Council To Act On City Budget

that there were eight nurses less than the previous year.

The problem is that the hospital is undergoing a reorganization and not much of last year's budget appears in the same place this year, a fact that upset Councilor James A. Sheets.

"It's unbelievable to me," he said, "that in essence we are trying to reorganize the hospital through the mechanism of the budget. There is mass confusion here."

Council President John J. Quinn called it "a mess."

Even DeFalco felt called upon to call it "an intolerable situation."

There was one bright spot for Quincy taxpayers, though.

"We will wind up June 30 with no deficit," said DeFalco. "I believe we can balance the (hospital) budget next year."

"It appears at this time that that is the case," added William S. Grindlay, former city budget coordinator who was hired by the Council to help them out of the hospital dilemma.

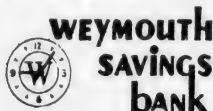

"I'd say that the hospital will be able to live within its budget under normal conditions," said Auditor Charles L. Shea.

"A balanced budget," added President Quinn, "means that the hospital will have no effect on the tax rate."

Principal Since 1972

Eunice Gilford Leaving Woodward To Seek 'New Challenge'

By PETER BARNICLE

At a time in life when many people are seriously considering retirement, Mrs. Eunice Gilford is leaving her post as principal of Woodward School for Girls in Quincy, not to retire but to seek new challenges.

"Perhaps the Peace Corps in some sort of administrative post," she said reflectively. "But not immediately. First I'm going to take a few months off and relax."

Mrs. Gilford came to Woodward School in 1972 without any previous school administrative experience. She had placed an advertisement in a Boston newspaper and among the replies she received was one from the school.

"It sounded like a very challenging position, and it has been," she said. "I felt that in five years I could bring the school to new heights. It has taken seven years. They have been very rewarding years, although difficult at times. The pleasures, however, far exceeded the voluntary sacrifices I had to make, like giving up summer vacations."

The enrollment at the school, she said, has remained steady. During the past year 78 students attended. Present indications are that in the fall the school will have 90 students.

"We have raised the scholastic admission requirements and at the same time we increased the number of required courses which must be taken for graduation," she said.

Classes are small and this has resulted in a fine relationship between students and faculty, in her opinion. "It's like a big family," she said.

Mrs. Gilford has included courses on consumerism and the rights and responsibilities of teenagers in modern society. Recognizing current problems she has also arranged for lectures on drug and alcohol abuse for the students.

In the past year, half a dozen students spent six weeks studying at the University of Madrid and visiting Spanish families. Others have gone on trips to the United Nations in New York. This summer two students will be part of the Presidential Classroom for Young Americans in Washington.

"The faculty is extremely capable, cooperative, and devoted to the students," she said. "The students are all lovely girls and have fine parents. The school has an unusual parents group. They do a great deal to help by raising money for scholarships and building repairs. They also help out in less tangible ways."

She had high praise for the alumnae who keep in touch with the school and help out whenever requested. A member of the class of 1913, now living in Sweden, corresponds regularly and "has been very supportive," Mrs. Gilford said.

The Board of supervisors, made up of Quincy clergymen, and the board of managers "have given the school years of devoted service without any recompense, except the satisfaction of having provided invaluable assistance," she said.

Mrs. Gilford had particularly high praise for the help and assistance of Mrs. Margaret Buck, the assistant principal. Mrs. Buck teaches reading and college career planning and takes care of all testing and academic records as part of her duties.

"Her role in college career planning is important since practically all of our girls go on to higher education," Mrs. Gilford explained.

The Woodward principal said she did not start her career in administrative work until her family was grown. Her son Stephen Gilford, is now a producer of educational television programs in Washington, D.C., and her daughter, Mrs. Linda McIntosh of Cambridge, mother of two sons, is a former teacher of nursing at Boston State College.

Mrs. Gilford, born in Nashua, N.H., is a graduate of University of Michigan and Boston University School of Law. While her children were growing up she was active in many civic committees.

In 1961 she decided the time had come to step out and look for a challenge. She became a researcher and editor for the European office of the American Joint Distribution Committee in Geneva, Switzerland.

The committee, she explained, was involved in providing funds for the rescue of people trapped behind the Iron Curtain. She also worked for a time with the U.S. mission to the United Nations in Geneva.

On her return to this country she became assistant to the director of the National Women's Committee at Brandeis University. Two years later she was named director of adult education at the university. In that post she arranged lectures by international figures in government, the arts and science.

"Early in 1967 I decided to go to Israel, because I felt a war was brewing and I could be of some assistance in an administrative position and replace some soldier needed at the front," she said. "However, while arrangements were being made, the Six Days war broke out and I was over here I had a chance to get there."

Having already submitted her resignation she decided to let it stand and took off on a trip around the world.

On her return, four months later, she became executive director of the Boston Council of the Girl Scouts and then executive director of the Boston Chapter of Hadassah.

"I've always worked for a non-profit organization," she said. "I find the work very challenging and very rewarding."

Getting back to the Peace Corps she said: "I have a friend who served in Nepal and it sounded intriguing. I'm not interested in going into the field, but I would love to be able to do some administrative work in a French speaking country."

A message to all savers from The Cooperative Central Bank

You put your hard-earned dollars in a bank to avoid the risks and uncertainties associated with other investments. For that reason, you should know just how safe your savings are in a co-operative bank.

Your co-operative bank is chartered by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, whose statutes require that each co-operative bank be examined regularly by the State Banking Department to ensure proper management and investment of depositors' savings. In addition, it is required that each bank be audited yearly by independent accountants approved by the Banking Department.

Further, each co-operative bank is required by law to set aside part of their earnings as reserves to safeguard deposits. These reserves form only part of your total deposit protection.

In addition to these statutory regulations and reserve requirements, your savings are protected by the Share Insurance Fund of the Co-operative Central Bank. This fund was established in 1934 to further protect all deposits in every co-operative bank in Massachusetts.

Each co-operative bank must be a member of the Insurance Fund. Annual premiums from these banks, plus the income the fund realizes from conservatively investing in various types of governmental securities, continue to increase the assets of the Insurance Fund. In fact, the Co-operative Central Bank and its Share Insurance Fund have a greater ratio of reserves for insurance to insured deposits than any other deposit insurance fund—private or federal. Your Deposits Insured in Full Our financial strength is such that we insure all deposits in full, including interest left on deposit. No one can offer you better deposit insurance—no one.

Miss Gordon can inspect it. John said that he and Koch, Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciardi and the Rev. Reddy Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, toured the Amphitheater shortly after the Sun story.

"It was a unanimous decision that something ought to be done in a positive way," said John. "It had merit but it was totally mismanaged, the whole thing."

"It was absolutely criminal to use the monies that were paid down there and then leave it as it was. The people who took part in the dedication should hold their heads in shame."

The Mayor said each of the flagstones in the back of the stage had to be taken out and reset.

"They were never cemented in there," he said. "Someone taking part in a play on the stage could have been severely hurt. Anthony DeMonico, the Park Department's stonemason, took each one out individually and reset them when he had time.

"Then they went to the other side of the amphitheater, here the audience benches are. Everyone of them was loose and could have tumbled down and hurt someone. Every one of them was reset, too."

"We even had to change the grade of the aisle for the handicapped. Anyone trying to go down that in a wheel chair would have wound up in Black's Creek."

John said the money to fix up the Amphitheater came from Park and Public Works Department accounts.

"We've been cutting corners here and there and taking certain sums to do the job," he said. "Rather than leave it there as a deplorable disgrace for all time."

John said he hopes the work on the Amphitheater can be completed sometime this summer.

HoJo Motel Planned For Downtown

tor, said firm commitment for the motel is contingent upon the Burgin Parkway Extension, which will link Quincy Center to the Southeast Expressway.

"I hope this motel and the Burgin Parkway Extension will be ready at the same time," he said.

Sage said it would take four to six months to get plans for the motel ready, three to four months to line up financing and a year and a half to build it.

Drawing on his experience with the Convention Bureau, Sage said there are some 7,000 hotel rooms in the Boston area with realistic expectations of 2,000 more in the next three or four years.

"More than that will be needed to make greater Boston a first class convention center," he said.

The fact that the location in Ross Parking area is close to the Quincy and Quincy Adams MBTA stations played a role in his company's decision, Sage said.

Your Dental Health

by Daniel P. Sweeney D.D.S.

Vertical wrinkles from the nose to the mouth are often caused by poor posture of the mouth, discouragement, or by other negative emotions. These may actually cause the corners of the mouth to droop, which causes definition of the lines. Sucking wrinkles can also be caused by missing teeth or by a denture that is not built up sufficiently to fill shrunken gums resulting from the tooth loss. These wrinkles can sometimes be somewhat alleviated by light massage.

If your dentures need repair or adjusting, visit the office of Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., 539 Adams St., East Milton Square. Dr. Sweeney offers complete dental care for the entire family; he provides all routine care and offers expert referrals where specialized treatment is required. Call the office at 698-3636 for an appointment. Master Charge, Visa, and most dental plans are honored.

'Free Bird'

Semi-Formal In Gym Friday

By KIM MURPHY and DEBBIE PETERSON

Our gym will be shaking this Friday evening as the student council sponsors its semi-formal. Students from the eighth and ninth grades will be dressing up to celebrate the close of the school year.

The doors will be opening at 7:15 p.m. and closing at 11:00 p.m. Amanda Mujica, one of the eighth grade students, was able to get the band, "Break Down", to perform at the dance. This is a popular local group. The song, "Free Bird", which was originally sung by Lynyrd Skynyrd, will be the theme of the dance.

Amy Buckley, chairman of the student council, explained that at the beginning of the year some members of the student council suggested a number of various activities. The semi-formal was one of the most popular. She said that everyone pitched in and did a great job, so she didn't want to single out any one particular person for praise.

Some of the proceeds will go to repairing or replacing things in the school such as the flag, or things that were ruined by vandalism earlier in the year.

The tickets will be sold at the office for $2.50. About three hundred people are expected to show up.

School Honors 40 Ninth Graders

By SUZANNE STARSIAK

The cafeteria at Atlantic was buzzing with happy voices of ninth grade students Tuesday night, June 12. School was about to close for the year, but voices were talking about the special banquet about to get under way. The banquet was held in honor of all ninth grade students who made the honor roll for the first three quarters of the year.

About forty students were honored. Among them were their parents and some of their teachers. The guest speaker was Mr. Carl Deyoso, Director of Academic Affairs for Quincy Public Schools.

It was a catered dinner and awards were given in the form of a plaque, featuring the Atlantic "A" for excellence.

The idea for this banquet was originated by Mr. Rubin to reward the students for their achievements in their academic work.

Depending on the outcome of this year's banquet, Mr. Rubin would like to make this honors banquet an annual event.

Among the students learning life-saving cardio-pulmonary resuscitation (C.P.R.) methods is Gerard Crowley.

Students Learn To Save Lives With C.P.R.

By LINDA FLAHERTY

Would you know what to do if you were with someone who had a heart attack? Many students at Atlantic would.

The students are studying cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, C.P.R. They are being taught by Mr. Maher and Mr. Kennedy, both certified instructors.

The course lasts for three weeks and the students receive thorough training. They are taught to perform one-and two-man C.P.R., infant resuscitation and how to deal with choking emergencies. The students are able to practice what they learn on special mannequins designed for C.P.R.

The students get much practice and homework. At the end of the course they must take a written test given by the American Heart Association. They need to get a grade of 86 percent to pass. They will also have to demonstrate their knowledge of the procedures they were taught.

Mr. Kennedy said the kids get right to work and don't waste any time. They even come in before school to work. By the end of the year about 130 to 150 will be certified, he said.

Alex Coutts of Room 105 was one of the kids interviewed about the course. He said: "If my mother was dying, I would want to save her life."

Donna Lambert of Room 205 told me that the purpose of C.P.R. was to prevent people from dying from heart attacks. "It's to prevent a person from going into a biological death."

Neil Leonard, Room 105, told me what he thought of the C.P.R. course. "Dynamite! It happened to my father and if it happens again I want to know what to do so I can help him."

SQUANTUM SEVENTH GRADERS Jimmy Di'Nasi, Ann Woodman, Susan Hegarty and teacher Russell Dionn look over a diorama they designed and built.

Seventh Graders Find Squantum Better Than Expected

By SANDRA GIZELIS,
DEBBY SALTON and DONNA MOONEY

Around this time last year there were rumors that the sixth graders would become seventh graders at Squantum School while the eighth and ninth graders would stay at Atlantic. The parents were afraid the seventh graders would not get the full benefit of the things at Atlantic like cooking and shop. They didn't seem too pleased about the busing either.

The tables were turned when they found out that the kids weren't missing a thing. The seventh graders have shop, cooking, sewing and also electives on one day each week.

The kids take electives in subjects that interest them, such as, disco dancing, art, gymnastics, etc.

We interviewed some kids and they had a lot to say. Jack Burke says he likes it at Squantum because he just has to walk to school.

Jeff Stryker told us, "I don't like it because I don't like being bused here every morning, but once I'm here it doesn't bother me."

Mary Kennedy said she would like to go to Atlantic because it would be different. "You could meet more people and the school is bigger."

"I would have rather gone to Atlantic because of the big gym and the showers," said Mike Phelan.

Joe Engrassia said that he expected the school to be smaller than Atlantic, but now feels there is more room.

Mr. Adams, Alpha's English teacher, said the kids were worried about losing out on sports and other activities but later found out they wouldn't. The seventh graders are even involved in their own newspapers. They have written their own articles. One article was about State Senator Paul Harold. The teachers were also amazed when they saw that the kids were taking part in a discussion dealing with vandalism in the schools with Harold.

Mr. Adams also told us that the students seem to have identified themselves as belonging to one school. They have pride in themselves. They are also very close and are used to joining activities. He feels that this closeness will help out next year because the kids will all know each other.

Mrs. Karhu says that it is difficult for students at Squantum to make a comparison between their school and Atlantic because of the fact they've never been to Atlantic.

Mr. Darhe and Mr. Harris, both social studies teachers, said they like it at Squantum because it has no bells.

The seventh grade schedule begins at 7:45 and the day ends at 2:00. John Hanf said he likes the hours because it gives him more time to study.

The students have a half hour of 'D.E.A.R.' time each day. This is short for 'Drop Everything and Read'. During this time the kids have to read any book they want.

Mr. Dionne and many of his students have made a diorama in the middle of the media center. Mr. Gordon Nelson, a resident of Squantum, also helped to build it. It is a model built to scale about twenty feet by twelve feet, showing Boston and the surrounding areas during the Colonial times.

Atlantic Presents 'Miss Jean Brodie' At Drama Festival

By KAREN PETRAKOS
and MARTHA CARROLL

The third annual drama festival was held on May 25 at Central Jr. High.

Thirteen Atlantic students participated in this drama festival. Other schools that took part were Central and Sterling Jr. High Schools.

Atlantic's play, directed by Miss Margaret Kennally, was "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie". This was only one of the plays she has directed for Atlantic.

Miss Jean Brodie was played by Anne Gorczyca. Ms. Kennally told us Anne was able to learn her part in only two weeks.

Other kids from Atlantic who performed were Mary Ellen Timmins, Nancy J. Allen, Mike Costa, Amy Buckley, Neil Leonard, Cindi McTiernan, Paula Fitzgerald, Jane Cordaro, Kelli Penniman, Christine Reilly, Melissa Burns and Amanda Mujica.

Later at the festival, we were entertained by the Pocket Mime Theater of Boston: a demonstration workshop in which the audience participated.

LUCY BLIGHT

Atlantic had an alcohol and drug assembly in their auditorium on Tuesday, May 22. It was held only for the ninth graders, and it lasted about one hour.

The assembly stressed the fact that alcoholism and social drinking are not the same thing. Drinking may be just a social pastime, but it could turn into alcoholism if it gets out of control.

The guest speaker, Mr. John Fox, is a former officer for the M.D.C. Police Dept. He was with the force for 15 years. Mr. Fox saw the problem and he wanted to do more, so now he is one out of twenty-eight Alcohol Beverage Control Investigators in this state. His job is to respond to complaints in bars and restaurants and to enforce the laws concerning alcohol.

The people who arranged this assembly were, Mr. Paul Stanton, who is L.I.N.K. Community Coordinator, and Mr. Miceli, who is a ninth grade social studies teacher.

The students were very much interested in the assembly. They responded eagerly and asked a number of questions. Mr. Fox answered them to the fullest.

Mr. Fox was very understanding and he talked to them as if he were a father. He was complete, descriptive, and to the point. He also pointed out that if you mix alcohol and drugs, you won't know what could happen, because the alcohol magnifies the drug's effect.

Ninth graders had different opinions on the assembly:

Steve Kallenberg felt that the assembly stressed how the police tried to get the drinking problem under control and discussed the result of drinking.

Patty Sullivan felt as though she knew much of the things discussed and also that most people won't listen and will drink anyway.

Helen Fitzgerald said it was good. "The guy knew what he was talking about."

Mary Ellen Timmins told us what he said would happen if we got caught drinking. She also said the kids asked a lot of questions and weren't rowdy. Students thought it would be worthwhile if the school had more assemblies like this for next year's ninth graders.

The recent alcohol and drug assembly inspired many students to put their thoughts on alcohol and drugs into words. Here are some of the results: an essay by Tracy Bradley and a poem by Rachel Squires:

A Side Of Life I'll Never Meet

By TRACY BRADLEY

My friend, you've learned too late. You were helplessly clinging to that bottle of alcohol. The one you held standing on the corner, thinking, knowing that you were smart. Having a good time, being so tough. You proved you were the bravest, the one who did it all. The boy who thought he was a man when he joined our little gang.

You became our leader and we loved you as our brother, but something began to happen. You no longer smiled when we would laugh. Instead you hit us off for our last buck, for that bottle that you were seriously interested in.

That bottle! How I grew to hate it. You blamed it on your family. The ones who drove you to drink and your pesky little sister, the girl you called a fink. They loved you and were concerned and knew not what to do. They couldn't get around that forcefield. The one you built around yourself.

I watched you abandon all your friends, except for the one made out of glass.

I saw you fall to pieces, crumbling to the ground. I saw you crying in the streets and dying very slowly, melting away from reality.

I could still see the shine of God through those glassy and pitiful eyes of yours. I couldn't let you down. I wanted to take away the bottles that you would cradle in your arms and forget the way you didn't give a damn about yourself, or anyone else.

I saw you in the papers and heard your name around the school. The boy who robbed stores for money and for booze.

You ended up in prison, in and out of jail. For a whole year you kept sober, and I thought you had stopped for good.

Don't you remember the fun we had last Christmas Eve underneath the stars? And you, with your girlfriend in your arms.

Then they, the kids I thought were my friends [and trusted], handed out the bottles which you couldn't resist. They, too, knew your weakness.

I tried to grab it away, but you punched me to the ground. Then I saw your car screech away into the night.

I'm sorry to say that was the last time I saw you, my friend. I still don't know to this day. Did you commit suicide, throwing yourself off that cliff to the rocks below, or did you lose consciousness?

Oh, that bottle of wine, that terrible bottle of alcohol.

I've learned my lesson well [because I'm not going to be the one who burns in hell].

I'll never forget you. Your voice, your face, and that bottle. [I'll always regret].

You turned my future in the opposite direction, and for this I thank you.

Sincerely, your best friend,
Billy

To An Alcoholic

By RACHEL SQUIRES

Some call you a drunkard, and others, a bum.
"Life's too good for your likes, so get lost," say some.
But I know you have a terrible disease.
Which deprives you of happiness, comfort and ease.

Your family has left you; you've only your life.
And I wonder if you've already ended the strife.

Why give up the booze, in exchange for the pain?
Is it worth it to start all over again?

I don't know your name, or your purpose in life.
Or if you can bear to take out the knife or that crutch that you've leaned on called alcohol.
I've no answers for you, no answers at all.

Do you have the power to stand up again?
Have you the will and the courage of ten?
Can you once again take your life in your hands
And be a new person, free from those bands?

You must overcome alone what society ignores.
Can you do it? Will you try it?
Your life is yours.

Anselmo Candidate For School Committee

Veteran School Committeeman Francis F. Anselmo, 81, announces his candidacy for election in the fall to the post he has held for the past 18 years.

"My experience will serve as a balance wheel, so that the scale of judgement will not tip too far to the left or too far to the right, on the constantly changing problems," he said in his announcement.

"I have been elected five times and so far have served honorably for 18 years. I feel as good now as I felt when I retired as superintendent of the Quincy Post Office 12 years ago," he said.

Anselmo conceded that he will celebrate his 81st birthday Sept. 22. "To this fact I have often asked myself 'why has God been so good to me, so far?' The only answer I can come up with after long soul searching is 'so that I can help others'."

In his statement he said he wanted to refute the "common misconception that all politicians are on the take."

"I will pay a $1,000 reward to anyone who can prove that I ever made a dime or dollars from my activities as a school committeeman. Also, I can say with conviction that applies to others on the Quincy school board."

"Time brings changes, society changes, but I've kept in step," he said. "For my part I pledge to continue on that same straight course; to call the shots as I see them; to continue to do my home work, and there is always plenty of it; and to be honest, courageous and loyal to my trust."

Anselmo narrowly lost his bid for re-election in 1977. However, Francis X. McCauley, a member of the board, resigned to take a seat on the city council.

A joint convention of the city council and the school committee was called to fill the vacancy and Anselmo was named to fill the seat.

Mimes Visit Atlantic

By KAREN O'REILLY and CINDY ROGERS

Thursday, May 31st, three actors from the Pocket Mime Theater of Boston came to Atlantic to show us what mime is all about. The three actors were Tracy Connors, Michael Gunst and J. Tormey. They performed six skits for the eighth and some ninth grade classes. Included in the audience was a third grade class from the Parker School and a sixth grade class from the Quincey School.

The actors mimed several scenes with excellent results.

They performed without scenery or any background music. Their acts are taken from everyday happenings and that lasted about five minutes.

After the last skit Tracy Connors gave a short lecture on mime. She explained that they use classical illusionary mime. Using shapes and sizes they give the image of the object they're using. Facial expressions and body language are all part of their type of mime. As she was talking, Michael Gunst and J. Tormey acted them out.

The presentation lasted a little over an hour.

Two Teachers To Retire...

Roy Merritt

By BOB ELLIS, TOM VENTOSI and EDDIE O'REILLY

Mr. Roy Merritt will end his teaching career when school closes at the end of this year. He has been teaching for thirty-four years.

He started teaching at Rivers School for Boys in Chestnut Hill. He taught there for four years, then he went to M.I.T. where he coached and was the assistant athletic director.

Mr. Merritt is an all-around athlete. He has played professional football and went to William and Mary College with the help of the New York Yankees. Instead of pitching for the Yankees he became a teacher. He also spent three and a half years in the Coast Guard. Mr. Merritt also likes to swim, golf and play tennis as well as to build model ships.

ROY MERRITT

MARIE BANKS

He says that in all of his career he had high points every day. He told us he had more fun than any other teacher in the whole school. He says that he loves teaching so much that he would do it again.

As he leaves he wants to remind Atlantic's students to get "high on themselves" and not on pot or drugs. Life is too much fun and important to destroy at fifteen years of age, he says.

Music

By SUSAN SCHACHT

Singing brings out emotion in a being. Brings life to your eyes. It's really seeing.

Pain and happiness are stressed in thought. You may think it's reality, but it's not.

You live through the music day by day. It's the only real chance you get to get away.

So whenever you think you're not going to make it. Listen to the music and you'll find you can take it.

Marie Banks

Mrs. Marie Banks, a ninth-grade English teacher, is retiring after 21 years of teaching in the Quincey Public Schools.

She taught for seventeen years at North Quincey High and three and a half years at Quincey High. She has spent the past year teaching the ninth grade here at Atlantic.

She loves teaching very much and loves to see people advance their knowledge.

She is retiring because she wants to see more of New England. In one year she will be moving to North Carolina where she and her husband have built a home to enjoy their retirement.

Mrs. Banks loves to travel. She's been to Europe six times.

When asked what she would like to leave to her students she said, "Compete with yourself in doing your best. Try to better your own achievements; don't worry about others."

Her interests are traveling, quilting, sewing and reading.

Her fellow teachers at North and Atlantic are planning to say goodbye when each school has its end of the year party.

60 Take Part In Gym Show

By WENDY BUSQUETS, NANCY CALLOW and KAREN BRIDGES

Recently there was a gym show put on by over 60 students from Atlantic Junior High School. The theme was "Salute to America". It was held in Atlantic's gym on May 31.

There were many exciting acts including a disco couples dance performed by eight selected members of our school. It was choreographed by Donna Anderson and Kevin McSweeney.

Other acts included: the parachute act which consisted of 30 kids. While the parachute was lifted up students did organized poses underneath it, while it continually came floating back down.

Also, there was a tumbling routine. Almost everyone in the gym show participated in this event, as in the mini-trampoline routine.

The most daring event was the tiger leaping. This event called for students leaping over other students piled on the vaulting horse. A new school record was broken of ten piled on top while others jumped over them.

There was an aerobic exercise performed by the seventh grade students from Squantum. This dance was choreographed by Lauren Chiminiello.

There were individual acts performed by gymnastically inclined students. They were: Capt. Richie Palmer, Capt.

Kathy McCarthy, Scott Andrews, Michelle Burke, Jamie Fennell, Martha Donahue, Bobby Waterman, Jeanie Vella, Anne Cooney, John Hogan and Joanne Connolly.

Little Tommy Ellis was the hit of the show. He is a third-grade student at Parker School. He was placed in the gym show because he is extremely good in gymnastics. He has two brothers, Michael and Brian, who go to Atlantic. They were also involved in the gym show.

The gym show was accompanied by singing from Paul D. Haight's chorus.

Directors of the gym show were Mr. Kenneth McPhee, Mrs. Barbara Winters and Mr. David Merrill.

Cafeteria head Edna McPhee pauses during a hectic morning's work preparing the school's food.

Atlantic Memories Of 78-79

By CINDY ROGERS and KAREN O'REILLY

Memories of happy times.
Sad times.
Weird times.
Memories of special times.
Atlantic gave to us.

Song fests, plays, assemblies, too:
Softball Football
And the soccer crew.
Brought on happy cheers
The whole year through.

Paper fights, fire alarms, homeroom in the caf Bomb scares
Test scares
It's very hard to laugh
When all your friends get perfect scores
And you get less than half.

Memories of hard days Trying days
Learning days
Memories of mysterious days
That happened here and there.

Math tests, science tests, art tests too, Passing Failing
Not knowing what to do,
Going here, ending there,
Lost without a clue.

Foreign wars and English kings, Birth dates
Battle dates
And other such things,
All part of history
And each require learning.

Another Letter From One Of Our Many Satisfied Customers

April 29, 1979

Mr. Frank Evans
331 Newport Avenue
Quincy, Massachusetts

Dear Mr. Evans,

I would like to take this time to tell you what a wonderful job your company did in insulating my house two years ago. The fuel savings has been tremendous.

Before the house was insulated I was using about 1,500 gallons of oil per year for heat and hot water. In the last two years because of the insulation my oil consumption has been cut to about 1,000 gallons per year, this is a savings of one third. At today's prices I feel that I am saving $300.00 per year and that in 5 years the initial investment will pay for itself.

Your workmen are to be commended for their thoroughness, thoughtfulness and respect. Having to work around three children and a dog is no easy task.

Thank you again and if you ever wish to use me as a reference feel free to do so.

Sincerely,

4 Major Bills

This will be one of the busiest weeks for the Massachusetts Legislature. The House is scheduled to consider 4 very important issues, capital punishment, bottle bill, the deficiency budget for fiscal 1979 and the transportation bond issue.

The deficiency budget totals just over $103 million. The money is needed to get the state through to July 1 when fiscal 1980 takes over.

The Transportation Bond Issue totals $860 million including matching federal funds and assistance. It provides for road and bridge improvements and construction by the DPW. Also included is commuter rail improvement and upgrading and improvements for the MBTA. The most controversial item in the bond issue is the provision to convert the gas tax from a fixed 8 1/2 cents per gallon to a percentage figure to make up for lost revenue due to the cut back in consumption by Massachusetts drivers. The gas tax is the main source of funding for any transportation bond issues.

I would appreciate hearing from you on these important matters. I can be reached by calling the State House at 727-7035 or at home by calling 328-0900.

Board Revokes Gas Station License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board unanimously voted Tuesday to revoke the gas station license of Bay Colony Realty Association [Cumberland Farms] for 604-614 Hancock St.

Following a lengthy discussion, Fire Chief Edward F. Barry made the motion to revoke the license because it was no longer being used for the purpose that it was issued, and for failure to comply with fire prevention regulations during the time it should have been accomplished.

Voting in favor of the motion were Police Chief Francis Finn, City Clerk John Gillis, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon and Chief Barry.

A hearing on the association's other property at 470 Adams St. was continued until June 21, so that the board could discuss the matter with City Solicitor Robert Fleming.

Hearings on complaints against the two locations had been before the board on several occasions.

Appearing at the hearing were Richard Longton, construction manager for Bay Colony, and the firms sales supervisor, Ron Fraitas, as well as Atty. Neil Kerstein.

Kerstein told the board that action has been taken at Hancock St. and that the firm had no present intention of pumping gas.

Kerstein said plans are underway for the operation of a convenience food store at the site. Bay Colony was interested in keeping the gas station license for economic reasons feeling that should they want to sell the property, the license would increase the value.

Chief Barry responded by saying the license was issued for the sale of gas, not business reasons, and the license was revoked.

The board then discussed the Adams St. location and the fact that it had been open five days a week, March 15-29.

Chief Barry called the brief re-opening of the gas station "a sham" as it had no toilet facilities for the one employee or the public, and the office was located in a car parked on the site.

Fraitas replied that the original office and toilet facilities were destroyed by vandals during the time that the station had been closed, and that renovations would have been very costly.

The station was subsequently closed and boarded up because it was uneconomical.

Chief Finn agreed that the re-opening was "a sham". He said that it was a technical question as to the validity of the brief re-opening in regard to the six months cessation of business and resulting complaints.

In other action:

A request was granted Roscommon, Inc., 25-27 Billings Rd. for extension of hours of operation of Kelly's Pub & Grub from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. to 8 a.m. to 1 a.m., weekdays. The establishment will close at midnight Saturdays, and be closed all day Sunday.

City Councillor Joanne Condon, as well as the North Quincy Development Corporation, had sent letters to the board in favor of the extension. The Sacred Heart Church council had also voiced no opposition.

Councillor Condon and the North Quincy business group also sent letters to the board voicing no opposition to AR-DEES, a second hand shop located at 72A Billings St., which was granted a license subject to a police check and Mark Boussey had a two-run double, scored three times and stole three bases. Bunker: 'Couldn't Ask More'

For Raiders, A Season To Remember

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy's baseball season is now history, and it was a season Coach Charlie Bunker won't soon forget.

Although his Raiders were eliminated in their first Eastern Mass. Tournament game by St. John's Prep, 4-2, in 10 innings last Friday, the defeat took nothing from their accomplishments this spring.

"This was my most satisfying season," Bunker admitted. "First we made the tournament and then we won our first Suburban League championship. I won't forget this season and the way the boys performed. It would have been nice to win a tournament game but we faced a struggle when we lost our league all-star catcher, Bob Biagini, for the game, and this really hurt. [He suffered a shoulder injury in the title-clinching win at Brockton].

"This was a great bunch of kids and I couldn't ask any more from anyone. They all did their jobs well and they deserve a lot of credit for the way they came along to win the championship. We had to win three of our last five games to make the tournament and they won four of them, losing only a non-league game to Milton. We had four league games in the last week and won them all. That shows something about these kids, they were just great."

North's Gary Earle, a strong southpaw, finished the regular season with a 9-0 record and an amazing 0.50 ERA and was named the league's Most Valuable Player. Biagini was the all-star catcher, Dave Nagle the all-star second baseman and Dave King made the second all-star team as designated hitter.

Bunker loses some outstanding players, including Earle, but will have an excellent nucleus for next season.

Also graduating were first baseman Brian Condon, pitcher Bob Thomas, pitcher-infielder Greg Madden, outfielder-catcher Pat Ennis, outfielders Tom Quinn, who missed the last third of the season with an injury, and Larry Baker.

Biagini, the best catcher in the league who batted .422 and whose strong arm kept the opponents' stolen bases to a minimum, will be back as will Leo Graham, the third baseman and number two pitcher.

Bunker's fine double combination of second baseman Nagle and shortstop Bill O'Connell will also return as will catcher-outfielder Chris Petrillo, outfielder Glen Segalla, Mark Millane, an outstanding sophomore outfielder, and Jamie Walsh, who divided his time between the varsity and javees.

"I will have some outstanding boys coming up from Lou Iannilli's junior varsity team," Bunker said. "I brought Tony Camillo, a fine first baseman-outfielder, up for the tourney game and he did well. Others I will be depending upon next year will be pitcher Rich Hallberg and infielders Paul King, Joe Crifo and Peter Alibrandi. All in all, I am looking forward to next season with a lot of anticipation."

Earle suffered his only defeat of the year against St. John's when he went 10 innings for the first time. Like many other schools, North plays seven inning games during the season.

St. John's had scored an early unearned run on a throwing error and added a run in the eighth.

The Raiders were blanked for seven innings by Tom Smeczynski, but tied the score in the bottom of the eighth. Pinch hitter Segalla walked and Biagini, who couldn't even be used as a designated hitter, ran for him. Ennis, who filled in nicely for Biagini behind the plate, blooped a single into right and when he tried to stretch it into a double, a wild throw enabled both runners to score.

St. John's got to Earle for the winning runs in the top of the 10th when Glenn Sherlock, a 6-1, 180-pound catcher who was heavily scouted by major league scouts, belted a triple to right center to knock in two runs.

North had a choice in the bottom half when it had Camillo and Ennis on first and third with one out but Matt Giamarco came on and struck out the next two batters to end the game.

Earle allowed nine hits, struck out 13 and walked only three.

"We really missed Biagini because, when Ennis went in to catch, I had to use our regular third baseman, Graham, in the outfield," Bunker said.

OFF FOR FLORIDA -- Tim Woodbridge, Eastern Nazarene College marathoner, was given an official send-off when he left from Quincy City Hall to run 1,300 miles to his hometown in Florida to raise funds for a cross country scholarship at the college. Mayor Tobin gave him an honorary citizen's citation to present to the mayor of Gainesville, Fla., and the City Council gave a citation from Quincy. From left, City Councillor James Sheets, an alumnus of ENC, Mayor Tobin, Woodbridge and Dr. Donald Irwin, president of Eastern Nazarene.

Foley Plymouth-Chrysler walkoped Rotary, 18-6, with Billy Phillips pitching his fifth win with

Quincy Girls Tennis Team Improved All The Way

Shirley Laing, coach of the Quincy girls' tennis team, started the season with only one senior after having lost 13 seniors last June.

However, sparked by this one senior, Capt. Francie Maloney, the First Ladies improved steadily as the year progressed and finished with a 7-9 record, better than last year's senior-laden team.

"We had to rely on Francie and a small number of juniors who had seen very limited action last year," Mrs. Laing said. "A sizeable number of sophomores came out for the team and they proved themselves, both in ability and interest. By the time matches began, with diligent practice and 100 percent participation, an excellent team spirit had developed."

Maloney played No. 1 singles and won more than 60 percent of her matches against strong Suburban League competition.

Sophomore Bridget McCarthy, played No. 2 singles and lost only twice all season, a remarkable record for her first year of high school competition.

Rounding out the squad were Janet Lenchan, Ruth Tangway, Christine Rusconi, Julie McCauley, Kathy Behan, Julia Stasio, Susan Persson, Carolyn Nee and Meredith Burt.

Also, Tricia Lenchan, Beth

Mahoney, Donna Marvin, Ann Rice, Claire Brennan, Carol Mayer, Cheryl Cadman and Linda Baccari.

"All in all, with such a young squad, I consider it a good year," Mrs. Laing said. "If all these girls report next year, our outlook should be a rosy one."

Here's a tough baseball question... Who holds the All-time big league record for batting in the most runs in one season?... Answer is NOT Babe Ruth or Hank Aaron or Ted Williams or any of the sluggers you usually think of first... Record is held by Hack Wilson who drove in 190 runs for the Cubs in 1930... Nobody in the majors has ever topped that.

Did you know there was once a professional boxing match in which both fighters KNOCKED EACH OTHER OUT?... It was a match some years ago between Earl Williams and John King... In the 4th round, both men threw a knockout punch and connected on each other at the same time... Both fell to the floor and were counted out!... How was the fight scored?... It was called a draw.

Has any player ever played ALL 9 positions in one major league baseball game?... Oddly enough, it has happened... Bert Campaneris did it for the A's in a game in 1965, and Cesar Tovar did it for the Twins in a game in 1968.

I bet you didn't know... That Colman's has the most complete line of sporting goods for men, women and children in New England. Whatever your sport, Colman's has just what you need, and at prices that will save you money. Free store-side parking for your convenience.

Kickers Bow To Stoughton

League-leading Stoughton edged the North Quincy Kickers, 2-0, Sunday in a South Shore soccer League game.

The Kickers dominated a scoreless first half as they kept play at Stoughton's end and just missed on several fine scoring chances. Joey Flynn barely missed on a head shot and Bill Bradley just missed another.

Stoughton scored with 10 minutes left in the game on a scramble in front of the net. Up until that time goalie Ed Ahearn had stymied the Stoughton offense with many fine saves. Stoughton scored its second goal on a penalty kick.

Fullbacks Paul Gill and Paul Leonard and halfback Dave Lapsley played well for the Kickers, who will face Abington Sunday at 5:30 at Perkins Field.

Castaways Romp To 3 Wins

The Castaways romped to a wild 30-19 win over the Sea Gals in the Houghs Neck Women's Softball League with June Brundle the winning pitcher.

For the Castaways Jayne Reynolds homered in the first inning and Maureen Goldie made a shoestring catch for the third out to save trouble. In the fourth Berty Mae Batson displayed some fine base running to account for a run, in the fifth Sandra O'Hare drove in three runs on a ball scored as a four-base error and in the sixth Reynolds blasted a grand slam homer. She also made a fine catch in center field and threw to third to complete a double play.

For the Sea Gals Paula Munroe had a homer and double, Marion Keith had a triple, double and single. Kathy McIntyre and Pauline Munroe had three singles each and Marilyn Abboud had a single and three walks.

The Castaways also romped over the Good News Bunnies, 25-5, with Sandy O'Hare the winning pitcher. Marge Wiggins and Reynolds had triples and Donna O'Hare a double, while Gail Curran had three for four. Trudy Gray pitched well for the Bunnies and Susan Erickson played well after coming back from an injury. Bobby Foley also played well until injured.

The Castaways completed a tremendous week with a 25-8 win over the Broad Squad with June Brundle the winner.

The winners erupted for 16 runs in the fifth. Berty Batson led off the big inning with a single. Karen Leuchte doubled and Jeanne Reynolds had a homer. Carol Walsh of the Broad Squad also had a homer.

The Houghs Neck Hustlers topped the Bunnies, 6-1, scoring six runs in the sixth inning. Lisa Buerhaus was the winner and Ruthie Galligan the loser. The game was filled with fine defensive plays as Diane Maher in left end field and Ann Maher at short field made excellent catches for the Bunnies. Helen Kelly excelled at second base and Sue Pacetti starred for the Hustlers and made a great play with the bases loaded in the last inning.

The Steamers romped over the Foxy Follies, 19-2, with Marilyn Morrill the winner. Joan Cameron had two homers and a triple and played outstanding ball at shortstop. Pat Adams drove in five runs with two triples, Joan Witham had two doubles and a homer, and Mary Lou Frisoli had a long triple. *Jewels
& Gems*

by Stan Manin

The basics in jewelry are still gold, silver, and precious stones. But other natural materials are making a place these days in the fashion world, often in conjunction with some of the traditional stones. Ivory, coral, jade, onyx, jet, and other such natural materials are hot items. They are often seen in gold or silver settings, but are also very attractive and stylish when adorned in their own settings. Especially dramatic are contrasts between the golds or whites in ivory and blacks in jet and onyx. One of our specialties at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton. 696-1490 is the re-setting of jewelry. Stop by soon and let us show you the many beautiful mountings we have. All service is handled on our premises, diamond setting, designing and remodeling. Don't forget Dad on his special day. We have gifts ranging from just a few dollars to thousands. While you're in the area stop by and visit our "Something Special" shop next door. We carry fine lines of greeting cards and gifts. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat. Have a nice Father's Day.

HELPFUL HINT:

May Seek U.S. Aid For Needed Repairs

Historic First Parish Church Faces Financial Crisis

United First Parish Church is considering a number of plans, including a "cooperative relationship" with the U.S. National Parks Service, to relieve the financial burden of badly needed repairs to the 151-year-old structure.

"When you've got a roof that needs extensive work and leaks up around the tower and fascia boards that are drying out and falling off, the building has got to have some steady, constant maintenance," said Rev. Keith Munson, the minister.

"We're just trying to look at all of our options including an association with the National Parks Service, and see which ones are viable."

For the past few months, a Building Endowment Proposals Task Force has been studying those options and expects to announce its recommendations in the fall. The first report of the Task Force, made in April states the problem bluntly:

"Membership in the church has fallen; endowments have not been left to the church for its perpetuation; spiraling costs of even minor repairs and upkeep have become a serious burden to the present members and friends.

"As we look into the not too distant future, we know that some overwhelming renovations and maintenance projects shall loom as emergencies. There are no reserves or endowments to meet such catastrophes."

Public Quiet On Issue

Tobin, 4 Councillors In Showdown On NQHS Bond Issue

By TOM HENSHAW

The Tobin administration is preparing a last ditch fight for the controversial $1.5 million supplemental bond issue for North Quincy High School amid indications that few people really care anymore about what used to be the city's cause celebre.

The Tobin administration is preparing a last ditch fight for the controversial $1.5 million supplemental bond issue for North Quincy High School amid indications that few people really care anymore about what used to be the city's cause celebre.

Ironically, it was Councillors Joanne Condon and Stephen J. McGrath, two of the leaders of the opposition, who probably saved the bond issue from going down the tube Monday night when they helped President John J. Quinn to prevent a final vote on it.

Condon and McGrath were joined by Councillors Daniel G. Raymondi and Leo J. Kelly in opposing the bond issue on the Finance Committee. One of them must switch his or her vote if the bond is to pass the Council by the required two-thirds, or 6-3 vote.

Meanwhile, an expected telephone assault on the recalcitrant four in an attempt to change their votes over the weekend failed to materialize and the crowd at Monday's Council meeting was composed more of Squantum 4-H kids than North Quincy advocates.

Kelly reported receiving two calls about the North Quincy bond issue on the weekend. McGrath said he got one, which really came on Thursday night so that's stretching the weekend a bit. Condon and Raymondi didn't get a single call.

"I was surprised," said McGrath.

"He [Tobin] will play his game and have them march tonight," said Condon Monday afternoon.

But they didn't.

The last angry utterance from Monday night's meeting had scarcely died away when Mayor Tobin was on the phone with School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti making plans for their next move.

"Rather than wait for the councillors to make contact with those people who have the answers to their questions," said Tobin, "I asked Creedon and Ricciuti to give me timetables for when they will be available for the councillors."

"They told me that starting today [Tuesday] they would clear their calendars any day this week to accommodate them and they will also clear Wednesday evening, Friday evening and Saturday morning. I don't think we can be any fairer than that."

The bond issue, which Tobin maintains is necessary to complete the renovation of North Quincy High School, was scheduled to come up for a vote

Council Sets Sept. 11 For Preliminary Election

The City Council has set Tuesday, Sept. 11, as the date for the preliminary municipal election in Quincy.

If there is a preliminary election, that is.

Unless there are three candidates for mayor and the ward council seats and seven candidates for the council at-large and the school committee, a preliminary election will be unnecessary.

So far there is only one announced candidate for Mayor - Abe Iltin - but Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has set up a headquarters on Hancock St. and is preparing an announcement.

Published reports last week had Elmer K. Fagerlund, former chief assessor, entering the race against Tobin but Fagerlund told The Sun that he had not yet decided.

"A lot of things have to be jelled before I decide," he said. "I'm testing the waters. The people need a choice. There has to be an alternative to the way things are going."

He said he'd decide in two or three weeks.

None of the other races have drawn enough candidates to fill a preliminary ballot.

If there is no preliminary election at all, said City Clerk John Gillis, the city will be saved about $44,000. Single ward races would scale the cost down accordingly.

Gillis said nomination papers will be available for candidates Monday, June 25. Candidates need 50 names on their papers to gain a spot on the ballot.

The Council also voted Monday night to keep the precinct polling places in the same locations as in 1977.

It was decided to leave the voting place for Ward 5, Precinct 3 at the Wollaston Methodist Church instead of moving it to the Wollaston Legion Post to relieve crowding.

"There are safety problems where the Legion Post is located in a dark area," said Councillor Stephen J. McGrath, who represents Ward 5.

Voters from three Ward 5 precincts vote at the Wollaston Methodist Church.

Council Okays Adams Shore Apartments

The City Council Monday night approved Clipper Associates' plan to build a 132-unit luxury apartment complex in Adams Shore but only after Councillor Leo J. Kelly added seven restrictive amendments.

Councillors liked one of the amendments so much that it may become a part of their standard Planned Unit Development (PUD) repertoire.

The amendment specified that a building permit could not be issued until some $77,000 in back taxes extending over seven years be paid by or for a previous owner.

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. called it "a most significant amendment."

"I don't think you're going to see a proposal coming in the city in the future that does not have this type of amendment on it," he said.

"As far as I'm concerned," said Council President John J. Quinn, "it will be made a permanent part of our PUD decisions."

Kelly's amendments were approved by a 9-0 vote but the main order granting a special PUD permit to Clipper Associates was passed 6-3 with Councillors Kelly, Joanne Condon and Stephen J. McGrath opposed.

Kelly's other amendments specified:

- That the developer be held responsible for any damage to surrounding property during the period of construction.

- That provision be made to hold airborne dust and dirt to a minimum while the complex is being built.

- That dense plantings of shrubbery be made along Palmer St. so the complex cannot be seen.

- That a descending lane for traffic "on the owner's property and paid for by the owner" be added onto Palmer St. so as not to hamper traffic flow.

- That construction workers park their own cars on the property and not on Palmer St. during construction.

- That reflectors used to divide the roadway in the area be paid for by the owners.

McCauley Sees $13.85 Tax Rate Increase

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley says he fears that the $98.5 million budget for fiscal 1980 passed by the City Council could mean as much as a $13.85 increase in the tax rate.

McCauley cited a possible shortfall in city receipts, lack of a school surplus, the possibility of less state aid, and the abatement of taxes at State Street South among his calculations.

"The $99,129,649 budget submitted by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin represented an increase of $4,686,919 or 5 per cent over the fiscal 1979 budget," said McCauley in a statement.

"Cuts made by the Council's Finance Committee in the amount of $673,794—$2.40 on the tax rate—plus the allocation of $1,850,000 in revenue sharing funds reduced the total appropriation to $96,605,855, a net spending increase of $3,888,125 or 4.2 per cent over the present year's expenditures.

"This increase represents $13.85 on the tax rate."

McCauley pointed out that there are several other factors that must be considered before the 1980 tax rate is set—and some of them don't look good at all.

"Preliminary figures indicate possible shortfalls in receipts from the hospital, water and excise tax departments," he said.

"If the total estimated receipts of $35,200,000 are not received and not offset by surpluses in appropriation accounts the deficit must be added to next year's appropriations.

"For the first time in many years, the School Department will not be returning surplus funds to the city treasury. Surplus funds from the School Department have offset deficits in other city departments in recent years.

"A move in the state legislature to cut personal income taxes will, if successful, result in less state funds being returned to the city and towns for property tax relief.

"The abatement of personal property taxes on the computer installation at State Street South will also add an additional $1 million to the expenditures for fiscal 1980 or $3.56 on the tax rate."

Gov. King Here For 200th Anniversary Of State Constitution Celebration

Gov. Edward J. King has agreed to lead the parade and be the main speaker when Quincy observes the 200th anniversary of the Massachusetts Constitution on the second weekend in September.

"We've invited the President, too, but I don't know if he'll come," the City Council was told Monday night by James R. McIntyre, chairman of the Constitutional Bicentennial Committee.

McIntyre laid out plans for celebrating the 200th anniversary of the constitution, which was drafted in the law office of John Adams on Franklin St., South Quincy, in September, 1779.

The Council was so impressed that it appropriated, with scarcely a word of debate, $17,000 for the observance—$5,000 for the parade and $12,000 for a monument.

The monument, to be designed by Ed Monti of the Monti Memorial Co., would be placed in Constitution Common between the old City Hall and the new City Hall Annex, which would be dedicated at the same time.

"The design will be made of Quincy granite, symbolic of the strength of our constitution and it will also be modernistic, symbolic of the constitution as a living document."

McIntyre's committee has also designed a logo with the phrase "Quincy, the Birthplace of Constitutional Rights."

McIntyre said the original draft of the constitution, which was composed by John Adams, his cousin, Samuel, and James Bowdoin, will be on display for possibly the first time ever.

It will be taken from the State House vault, where it is kept for safe-keeping, and brought to the Adams Birthplaces to be shown, with the cooperation of the National Parks Service, from Sept. 5-10.

It is also planned to have the Marine Band for the parade and the Quincy Symphony Orchestra for a concert on the Saturday night preceding the parade, McIntyre said.

He said the $12,000 monument actually will be valued at $35,000.

"Ed Monti said his father virtually donated the veterans monument in South Quincy, so he would like to do this for Quincy," said McIntyre.

Morrisette Representatives

2 QHS Juniors Selected For Girls State

Two juniors at Quincy High School were recently selected to represent Morrisette American Legion Auxiliary 294 at the 35th annual Massachusetts Girls' State convention later this month.

Marguerite Boland was chosen as a delegate to the convention, which will meet June 17 to 22 at Bridgewater State College. Susan Peach was selected as alternate delegate. Boland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Boland of 30 Reardon St., West Quincy. Peach is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Peach of 11 Jewett St., Adams Shore.

More than 250 representatives from across the state will meet at the convention to participate in a week-long study of local and state government. Delegates are chosen by their local American Legion Post Auxiliary on the basis of leadership qualities.

MARGUERITE BOLAND

SUSAN PEACH

Miss Boland, 17, attended St. Mary's School and Fontbonne Academy before entering Quincy

High. Her interests are reading, dramatics, creative writing, pottery, gymnastics, swimming and music. She had done volunteer work with the handicapped and has taken Red Cross Safety courses. She is taking college prep courses and plans to enter the field of law.

Miss Peach, 16, attended Broad Meadows School before entering Quincy High. She is a member of the marching band's color guard and the National Honor Society. She works part-time as a cashier and has been secretary of her CYO group.

Over 18,000 girls will attend Girls' State exercises across the country this year. At each convention, the delegates will form and operate a miniature state government. Talks by state officials, leaders in government and persons in other fields are aimed at giving the delegates first-hand understanding of the democratic process.

GRADUATE -- David J. Kerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving S. Kerman, 18 Lowe St., Quincy Point, has been graduated cum laude from Brandeis University. A political science major who was on the dean's list for four years, Kerman will enter Harvard Law School in the fall.

HERE'S HOW THE HOME THEY'RE LEAVING FOR COLLEGE CAN PAY FOR COLLEGE.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like the best education money can buy for your kids.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and what you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like taking some of the strain out of paying for college.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Anti-Burglar Meeting Scheduled For Quincy Point

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymond has scheduled a meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse so residents of Ward 2 can discuss with police precautions to take against burglars.

A representative from the Quincy Police Department's Crime Prevention Division will discuss home security techniques and there will be a slide presentation on the Neighborhood Watch Program.

"The concept of 'target hardening' will be encouraged," said Raymond. "The more difficult and discouraging it is for a burglar to gain entrance, the more likely the burglar will look for an easier place to victimize."

Raymond noted that residential burglaries increase each year between the months of June and September and that June is Burglary Prevention Month in Quincy.

COLON-RECTUM CANCER

Colon-rectum cancer is not something to joke about. It strikes 73,000 Americans each year - more than any other type of cancer except skin cancer - and kills over 45,000 annually. [Both men and women equally].

This loss of life is especially tragic, for colon-rectum cancer is highly curable when it is found and treated in time. Thousands of cured Americans live normal, healthy lives.

The American Cancer Society urges that all adults over 40 have a proctoscopic examination as part of their annual checkup. [A small hollow tube which allows the doctor to examine the area of the lower colon and rectum.]

Chief symptoms of the disease are: Change in the normal bowel habits, bleeding or pain. However, with the proctoscope, physicians can detect this cancer long before there are any symptoms - when it is most curable.

Ever have one of those days?

Quincy Square had one Monday afternoon. Take, for example, the Baskin-Robbins on Hancock St.

Like many businesses in the downtown area, it was forced to close during the power outage that hit much of New England about 2:15 p.m. When the lights finally came back on, about 4 o'clock, The Embers Restaurant, just 30 feet away, was on fire.

"We were doing great," Janet DiCenso, the manager on duty at Baskin-Robbins said. "The fire was right next door and everybody was coming in."

The ice cream store had been open for about 15 or 20 minutes when firefighters told Miss DiCenso to close down again because of the intense smoke pouring out of the nearby restaurant.

The employees at Baskin Robbins were just a few of the thousands in Quincy affected by the outage and fire in the downtown area, which made for a very hectic afternoon.

The power failure, which reportedly affected about 200,000 persons in Eastern Massachusetts, Vermont and Rhode Island, knocked out electricity in about 5,000 homes and businesses in Quincy, according to Massachusetts Electric Company spokesman Jack McNiff. The problem started in the Salem Harbor power station, from which Mass. Electric and several other companies draw their power.

Customers affected were "mostly downtown, some in Quincy Point," McNiff said.

Monday's outage was a "manual load reduction," meaning Mass Electric had advance warning that its power lines were overloaded and had several minutes to shut off some sections. If the Quincy feeder lines weren't shut down, all four communities that Mass Electric serves would have lost power, McNiff said.

The Quincy lines were chosen because Mass Electric's Field St. sub-station in Quincy Center is its only manned station, and the only one that could have been shut off in the 10-minutes' warning the company had, McNiff said. Mass Electric also services Weymouth, Randolph and Holbrook, which were not affected by the power cut, he said.

The warning from Salem Harbor's central dispatching came "a little after two o'clock," McNiff said, and the Quincy power cut was made within 10 minutes.

Most of the 5,000 customers had power again by 3 o'clock, McNiff said, and all were back to normal by 4 o'clock.

Because the power cut affected some, but not all, of the Quincy feeder lines, the outage "hop-scotched" down Hancock St., hitting some businesses and missing others.

The Quincy Savings Bank at 1372 Hancock St. lost its lights at about 2:15, while the South Shore Bank, at 1400 Hancock St. had its power throughout the afternoon. Moving down the street, the Pewter Pot [1418 Hancock] lost its power. Quinwell Travel [1424] didn't and Baskin-Robbins [1434] did.

Mass Electric was able to elect which lines would be shut down, McNiff said, adding that the company purposely spared Quincy City Hospital and certain "important industries" like General Dynamics.

Companies hit by the outage got by with varying results. Some closed down; others, like the Quincy Savings Bank and The Quincy Sun remained open. "Everything was really about normal," said Donna Rae Hoey, bank branch manager.

"They kept coming in, but we only let a few in at a time," she said.

Bank customers had to settle for handwritten receipts, she said, since all of the bank's electric machinery was out of order.

The outage offered no break for "rubber check" defendants at Quincy District Court. When lights went out on the court's traditional Monday afternoon "larceny by check" session, the court continued, using flashlights and other emergency lighting.

The lights had just returned for most of the downtown area when a fire alarm summoned trucks to The Embers, 1446 Hancock St., at 4:02 p.m. Smoke poured from the one-story building and flames were visible in the roof vent. Hancock St. was closed between Granite Ave. and Cottage Ave. for about an hour.

A fire department spokesman blamed the fire on grease in a "fryolater," used to cook french fries and other fried foods.

Fire Lt. John Bille suffered a hand cut, was treated and remained on the scene, the spokesman said. Customers and staff left quickly when the fire started and there were no other injuries, he said.

Damage to the building is estimated at $4,500, he said, while damage to food and other stock is still being estimated. The building is owned by Paul and Elpidia Zarkodas of Watertown.

Slight smoke damage to the Big J Sandwich Shop, 1440 Hancock and Edson Shoe Store, 1442 Hancock was also reported, the fire department spokesman said.

Thieves and vandals have forced the closing of Quincy's cemeteries at sundown.

Mayor Tobin and Cemetery Supt. J. Vincent Smyth announced last week that the cemeteries will be open from 7 a.m. until dusk, daily and Saturdays and Sundays. Gates will be closed after sundown.

"We agreed that this step had to be taken in order to reduce this serious epidemic of vandalism and theft," said Tobin.

"Cemeteries are sacred and holy places and to ensure the safety and property protection of others we have ordered all gates to be closed at sundown."

The change is effective in Mount Wollaston, Pine Hill and Hancock Cemeteries.

To Be Restudied

New Honor Roll System Under Fire From NQHS Students

By PETER BARNICLE

The controversial single honor roll system for Quincy's high schools will be restudied as a result of protests from North Quincy High School students that the proposed system is unfair.

The School Committee has asked Arthur S. Woodward, director of secondary education, to take another look at the system and report back to the next meeting of the board.

Earlier this year the School Committee approved a system worked out by Woodward and a group after nearly a year of study. This type of honor roll places the emphasis on ability and is favored at Quincy High School.

Both high schools have courses at four levels; basic, standard, honors and advanced. At Quincy High students receive added points if they are in the higher level courses. As it works out an "honors A" is worth more than a "standard level A."

At North Quincy the level of difficulty is not a factor, an "A" is an "A," regardless of the level of difficulty, and students can make the honor roll by applying themselves to the courses they are taking.

Mrs. Mary Ann Mahoney, representing the NQHS parents' advisory committee, told the school board that parents support the students' objections to the new system.

She said that the single honor roll is not in keeping with the philosophy of the Student Centered Learning System and that there are no honor credits given students in business courses. She also contended that special needs students enrolled in basic courses cannot attain honor roll status.

"Students who need motivation find it almost impossible to attain honor roll status," she said. "On the other hand, highly motivated students will become the honor roll elitist group."

She pointed out that the honor roll is not a consideration for admission to college and urged that it be awarded for achievement at the student's own level.

Michael Ricciuti, president of NQHS student council, presented the committee with a petition signed by more than 500 students asking for a retention of the system which has been in effect at the North Quincy High School.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon told the committee that if the single honor roll policy is reversed they should be prepared to have protests from Quincy High School. It was also pointed out that many students have already chosen their courses for the coming academic year and they may want to revise their schedule depending on the committee's action.

Sheets Seeks Check On 2 A.M. Lines At W. Quincy Gas Station

City Councillor James A. Sheets has asked the Council's Public Safety Committee to look into those long lines at gas stations—particularly one on Willard St. in West Quincy.

"The station does three or four times as much business as other stations," he said. "It is open 24 hours a day and at 2 a.m. there are 35 or 40 cars lined up."

Residents are having trouble getting in and out of their driveways and young people, waiting for gas, are drinking, playing their radios loud, and using front lawns for bathrooms, he said.

Councillor Leo J. Kelly suggested that perhaps the proper place for complaint was the state energy commission because the city does not have the power to do anything about the gas shortage.

"It's a question of public safety, not energy," said Sheets. "I want the public safety committee to meet on it. What happens when the people of West Quincy can't take it any longer?"

The matter went to Kelly's Public Safety Committee.

2 QHS Seniors Win 4-Year ROTC Scholarships

Two Quincy High graduates, William Barnes and Frank

LaPierre, have been awarded full four-year college scholarships from the U.S. Air Force ROTC program.

Barnes, cadet-major in the Junior ROTC Cadet program, was the unit's personnel officer and LaPierre, a cadet-lt. colonel, was the squadron's cadet commander.

ROTC scholarships are awarded based on SAT scores, academic and extracurricular activities and a personal interview for finalists. Scholarships cover tuition, books, and other academic expenses plus $1,000 for a year for other expenses.

LaPierre plans to attend Notre Dame University, while Barnes will attend Northeastern University.

Merrymount Man Appointed Deputy Supt. Of Boston Police

Boston Police Capt. William J. O'Brien, 18 Narragansett Rd, Merrymount, has been promoted to a deputy superintendent in charge of internal affairs.

O'Brien joined the department Oct. 3, 1947, after having served in the Army in World War II. During his nearly 32 years of service he has received more than 60 letters of commendation from citizens and police officials.

He was first assigned to the North End and later served at divisions in East Boston, Charlestown, Hyde Park and West Roxbury. He also served as commanding officer at the South End police station.

He received the rank of sergeant in 1956 and four years later was made lieutenant. In addition to his division assignments he has also been in traffic division and was for a time keeper of the lock-up at Suffolk Superior Courthouse.

In August, 1966, he was promoted to captain and assigned to the patrol division. He served in various posts until 1977 when he was placed in charge of the field inspection division, and a year later the staff inspection unit.

Born in Roxbury, he attended Mission Church Grammar School and graduated from the High School of Commerce.

He is married to the former Dorothy E. Halloran of Quincy. They have three children, Mrs. Paula Marie Vinal of Quincy; William J. O'Brien Jr. of Quincy, an attorney with Digital Corp., and John O'Brien of Quincy, a sales representative for Johnson Controls, an air conditioning maintenance firm.

O'Brien is a member of North Quincy Knights of Columbus, the Emerald Club of the Boston Police Department, and the Montclair Mens Club.

Environmental Study On East-West Connector

The East-West Connector, the road that was once designed to connect the Burgin Parkway Extension with McGrath Highway across Hancock St., surfaced once again at the City Council meeting Monday night.

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond said people in his ward were becoming concerned that the plan was being revived and wanted Councillor Leo J. Kelly's Downtown Development Committee to look into it.

Mayor Tobin said that an environmental impact statement is being prepared for a new East-West Connector plan but the plan itself "is still flexible at this time."

Kelly promised to set a date for a hearing, possibly in the Quincy Legion Post Hall on McGrath Highway, to give local residents some input into what is going on.

Plans for the East-West Connector were abandoned last year after merchants on the south end of Hancock St. complained that it would wipe out too many businesses and homes in the area.

Mayor Tobin and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development director, promised plans would not be revived unless local businessmen were consulted.

3 New Positions Funded

Hospital Budget Director Gets Top Priority From Tobin

"The hospital is on the road to being straightened out," said an obviously pleased Mayor Tobin after the City Council gave him most of what he wanted in the 1979-80 budget to reorganize the financially plagued City Hospital.

The Council, after examining the $22 million hospital budget with a microscopic eye, funded three new positions: budget director at $20,375, patient accounts manager at $16,500 and, reluctantly, assistant director of financial services at $25,000.

Tobin said his first priority, after the Council okays the new jobs by ordinance, will be the naming of a budget director, an appointment which will probably come from within the current ranks of hospital employees.

The budget director, he said, will be working from an entirely new budget concept recommended by Touche Ross and Co., the Boston-based accounting firm that is the architect of the hospital reorganization plan.

"The top priority is to put a budget director in right away," said the Mayor. "If we can appoint him in July we will be giving him all the time we can, six or seven months anyway, to get the next budget ready."

Tobin said the budget director will report to Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco until an assistant director for financial services is named. He will also be the man designated to present and explain the 1980-81 budget to the Council.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea said the new budget concept will be "an attempt to base the hospital's needs and requests on up-to-date statistical data. The hospital budget has never been broken down into detail before."

"Statistics such as the number of patient days at the hospital and the age of patients are constantly changing as new medical procedures are developed. The budget director will compile figures on a weekly or monthly basis."

One request by the Mayor for a major administrative post at the hospital, that of public information officer at $17,500, was chopped out of the budget by the Council despite the pleas of several members of the hospital staff.

Dr. Russell L. Irons, chief of the pediatrics division, said that such an officer was needed to promote the hospital, particularly the obstetrics division, which could be in danger of being phased out if births fall below a certain number.

Also chopped out were salary increases for Personnel Director Harold W. Coose Jr. ($9,500) and James Mulcahy, superintendent of materials coordinator ($2,100) and an added 1.5 posts for medical social workers at $15,225.

Dr. William J. Frates of the Hospital Medical Staff told the Council that the "administrative force at the hospital is now insufficient to meet its needs. It's inconceivable that an organization like the hospital can run without those individuals."

Thomas Maguire of Touche Ross also spoke up for the changes in the administration, saying, "You don't run a $20 million operation with $12,000 a year clerks."

"You build organizations from the top down," he said. "With a team of qualified people in these positions, you should be able to do the job."

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who led the opposition to some sections of the hospital budget, said he based his position on "too much politics up there."

"I have no confidence that this administration will appoint qualified people for these positions," he said. "We've got to get better performance from those who are up there."

Councillors Joseph E. Brett and James A. Sheets joined McCauley in voting against funding the position of assistant director for financial services.

Fashions change for both men and women. And after a number of years of informality, the formal look is beginning to reassert itself. In men's clothing, this means more suits, and remaining especially popular is the vested suit complete with tie. This look leaves a lot of room for such traditional accessories as cuff links, tie pins, tacs or bars, vest chains, and collar and lapel pins. Keep this in mind when buying gifts for the man or men in your life.

We hope you'll keep us in mind at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., East Milton, 696-1490 when looking for gifts for all occasions. Wedding, shower and anniversary presents can be easily located from our collection of pewter by Reed & Barton and Royal Holland, full lead crystal by Waterford, and clocks by Cornwall. Reagan Doing A Johnny Carson

If Ronald Reagan could charm voters like he does an audience, he'd have been sleeping in the White House long ago.

At age 68, time may have now run out on him as a Presidential hopeful but he still cuts a handsome figure and can still attract a crowd.

In fact at last week's South Shore Chamber of Commerce breakfast meeting at Lantana, Randolph, he packed in 850 people—the largest crowd ever for a Chamber function.

That drops Senator Edward Kennedy to second place as a local attraction which may not be a fair comparison because Kennedy is in the area quite frequently and this was Reagan's first South Shore visit.

REAGAN

KENNEDY

The facial wrinkles may be there, but the boyish grin is still there, too, and you remember him as the Gipper in the Knute Rockne movie with Pat O'Brien nearly 40 years ago.

The breakfast meeting was scheduled for 7:44 a.m. which is early enough. But those attending were arriving as early as 7 a.m. to be sure of a good seat. And there were probably more women in the audience than ever before—some of them clamoring for autographs.

What Reagan said in a serious vein, you'll find elsewhere on this page. But he got off some good quips and jabs about government and politics and politicians, that might make you smile. Like:

On the size of the crowd:

"I suspect there was some element of curiosity in it. After all, it isn't every day that you see someone who, for 25 years was rising off into the sunset with 'The End' superimposed on his back."

On inflation:

"I had a physical checkup the other day. I asked the doctor how I was. He said, 'Sound as a dollar.' I fainted dead away."

"Inflation has even changed nursery rhymes. There was an old lady who lived in a shoe. That's all she could afford for $80,000. You're better off today with a dime in your pocket than a dollar. At least you can use a dime as a screwdriver."

On OSHA:

"I spoke recently in Indiana. There was a fellow there with a small shop. He's got seven employees. He has a 12-foot door at the front and a 12-foot door at the back. OSHA caught up with him the other day. After looking it over, they told him he had to put up exit signs. They said he might have a new employee that in the event of fire would become confused and not be able to find his way out. He asked the very logical question: 'If he can't see a 12-foot door how is he going to see an exit sign?'"

On Washington politicians:

"Washington goes on inventing miracle cures for which there are no known diseases."

On politics:

"It has been said that politics is the second oldest profession. I have come to realize in recent years that there is a great similarity to the first."

On getting a hostile legislature to work with a President or governor:

"I learned it's not necessary to make a legislator see the light. Just make him feel the heat. (From the people).

Asked if he planned to meet Gov. Edward King while in Massachusetts:

"Do I plan to visit the new governor?" No, but I've been wondering when he's going to re-register as a Republican."

At Chamber functions it has become a tradition that Brintree's Bill Brooks somewhere along the line asks the main speaker (senator, governor, Congressman, etc. etc.): "Well, tell me, what can you do about solving the Brintree Five Corners situation?"

BROOKS

Bill was at this breakfast but probably figured Reagan never heard of Brintree Five Corners (how lucky can you get?) so passed on the question this time.

Someone, however, (probably Chamber President Tom Curtis) tipped Reagan off and he left 'em laughing with this closeout:

"I've been told there is a question that is usually asked here and that I didn't get. It has to do with the Five Corners. I have given it a great deal of thought and felt that perhaps for the first time there is an answer. I figure if you make all of the five streets that are coming together one way, then when the jam is absolutely impenetrable—pave it over!"

Presidential Decision In Fall

Reagan Assails Government

By TOM HENSHAW

"You must have read about all those crazy Californians lining up at the gas stations," said Ronald Reagan, who used to be governor of all those Californians, some of them sane.

"Well, we weren't crazy at all."

"The federal government in its allocation of resources based its gas quota for California on 1972 figures. And we've got four million more cars in California than we had in 1972."

"Now they've finally decided they'll base them on 1978 figures and there aren't any lines at the gas stations anymore."

"This is what happens when the government tries to make the millions of decisions that are made every day by people like yourselves in running a business."

Reagan was on the South Shore last week, drawing a bead on his favorite target, government interference in business, and he couldn't have found a more responsive group than the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

One might even think he was running for president and he allowed that he was thinking about it but wouldn't have a decision until fall, even though those cards on the breakfast tables of the Lantana did say "Reagan for President."

Reagan's hour on the podium ran the gamut of national issues but he was at his best when tilting with the big government dragon, reeling out statistics like the kids used to rattle off batting averages.

"Government regulations alone are responsible for 50 per cent of the rate of inflation," he said.

"The steel industry is covered by 5,600 regulations administered by 27 different agencies."

"General Motors employs 23,300 full time employees just to comply with federal regulations."

"The textile industry spends 538,000 man hours a year just filling out government forms."

"Right now 164 agencies regulate hospitals alone and they add $35 a day per patient to hospital costs."

"Every time you go in for a prescription, the druggist spends more time filling out a government form for the visit than he did mixing the prescription."

Reagan offered a solution. "Government will respond when the people speak in a forceful manner as Proposition 13 in California indicated," he said.

"Who better than business to start telling people that all of the taxes that are shifted over on business have to wind up in the price of the product. The same fellow, Old Joe Taxpayer, pays for it each time he buys the product."

"More than half the price of a loaf of bread is made up of 131 accumulated taxes beginning with the property tax on the farm where the wheat was raised. If the farmer can't get enough for his wheat to pay that then he can't continue farming and so on up the line."

"It's time for all of us to recognize that we have allies. We must talk to each other because freedom can't be lost in just one part of our society without it being threatened in all the rest."

"Can we let the doctors fight alone against socialized medicine? Do we let the oil and gas producers fight the energy problem as if it's no concern of ours?

"Our problem is not a shortage of fuel, it is a surplus of government. Let government get out of the way and turn that industry loose in the marketplace and we will have the sources of energy that we require."

But all is not lost. Reagan noted that the Independent Business Men and Women of America Association recently formed a political action committee and he added, perhaps with a glint in his eye:

"Did you ever stop to think that with their numbers if they'd only contribute $5 apiece they'd have $30 million to help elect people to government who are friendly to free enterprise?" he asked.

Reagan also said these things about these issues:

• He has doubts about the Strategic Arms Limitation

A Tribute To Leverett Saltonstall

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

A sadness prevails upon the passing of the Honorable Leverett Saltonstall, a gentleman of high moral standards, steady, level-headed, who rowed a true course for this country.

The interests of our South Shore Area, the Commonwealth, and the nation were ably served by his adept maneuvering of the many Washington legislative routes. His concern for our economic health was great. He was a stalwart supporter of a strong U.S. Navy and Merchant Marine. In matters of a shipbuilding nature he had no peer, and the South Shore business community knew this full well.

He always had time to listen. His presence commanded attention, respect, admiration, and love.

In the minds of many, "Salty" was Mr. Massachusetts, an avowed patriot, an honorable man, and a true friend of the people.

Praises City Departments For Cemeteries Appearance

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I wish to publicly thank the Cemetery Department Personnel for their dedication and diligent work in preparing the seven [3 active, 4 historical] cemeteries for Memorial Day. The sites were well groomed in spite of eight days of rain.

The department is especially appreciative of the co-operation extended us by both the personnel and use of equipment from the Public Works, School, Park and Forestry Departments. Without their help this monumental task could not have been accomplished. The Citizens of Quincy can be proud of their determination to make our city a better place in which to work and live.

Thanks Those Who Protested Auto Demolition Operation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I would like to thank all the residents of South Quincy who appeared at the City Hall meeting on June 12 to protest the proposed opening of an auto demolition operation on the site of the former Vulcan Tool Company property on Liberty St.

I would also like to express appreciation to City Councillors James Sheets and Frank McCauley for their part in Treaty [SALT]. "None of us have seen the treaty so we're kind of talking in the dark," he said.

Some people who have seen the treaty, he said, "are frightened and deeply concerned." One of them told him "if we do not alter our course immediately it is five minutes to midnight for the United States."

"Most people think that the treaty limits the number of missiles on both sides," he said. "It does nothing of the kind."

"The treaty only limits the number of launchers and that is one element to begin with that marks us for inferiority."

"When we shoot a missile out of the launcher or silo that's it for the silo until it's rebuilt."

"The Soviet Union has perfected a cold launch method where they are released by compressed air and ignited above ground.

"They can reload their silos like you reload a shotgun and there is no way in the world of telling how many missiles they have."

"I think it's time for a full scale debate in the Senate of our entire strategic policy, our national security and where we intend to go in the next 10 years."

• "This country of ours is sophisticated enough that we could set down a figure that is the optimum percentage of the overall earnings of the people that government can take before it becomes a drag on the economy and fix that by law as the government's share."

• "The safety record of nuclear energy warrants our going ahead. Three Mile Island is hailed as the worst disaster in the generation of nuclear power. No one died. No one was injured. The release of radioactivity was actually less than you get on a cross country trip on a jet liner at 40,000 feet."

• "One of the things I think would solve the problem of the CIA ... why not a blue ribbon committee of the most respected citizens as a kind of supervisory group that the CIA could reveal its secrets to and that we would have faith in without their violating these secrets?"

"If that blue ribbon group told the rest of us, 'We approve what the CIA is doing,' I think we would find ourselves safe."

City's Financial Problems Rule Out Pay Raises

Mayor Charles A. Ross said Quincy's financial problems were such that there would be no raises for city employees and a $36,000 order for rehabilitation of the city's playgrounds had little chance to pass.

The mayor announced that there was only $320,000 in the municipal excess and deficiency fund and $310,000 of that would have to be used to pay maintenance expenses for the rest of the year.

"There is complete agreement among all members of the City Council and the Mayor that some increase should be granted to city employees as soon as it is financially possible to do so," he said.

"The financial outlook at present, however, would seem to preclude the possibility of any salary increases during the balance of 1946."

VISITORS FROM HARLEM

The Rev. Bedros Baharian and a special committee from the Quincy Point Congregational Church were completing plans to bring some 30 Negro children from Harlem on a two-week vacation in Quincy.

The youngsters, ages 13 through 19, would be guests in the homes of parishioners starting July 9.

"We hope the experiment will broaden the vision of people who have never come in contact with Negroes," said the Rev. Baharian. If successful, he said, a Quincy group will visit Harlem next year.

Wollaston Problems Discussed With Police Dept. Representatives

City Councillor Stephen McGrath and representatives of Quincy police met with Wollaston residents at the Beechwood Knoll School recently to discuss area problems.

Captain Paul Nestor and Lt. David Rowell discussed the operation of the police department in handling local problems and answered questions from residents. Nestor said the Fenno St. area is a trouble spot for police.

Also discussed was the Neighborhood Watch program, in which residents cooperate with police in helping cut down on burglaries.

Nestor claimed the police department is understaffed by 18 persons. Although the city council has fully funded the police force, McGrath said, the civil service list tie-up has prevented additional men from being appointed.

echoing the sentiments of voters and pledging to keep taxes from rising. But they continue to protect vested interests and to fight for Federal handouts benefiting their own areas and constituencies. It will be a herculean task to cut Federal deficits which in the past four years [1975-78] climbed to more than fifteen times what they were in the four years from 1963 to 1966.

A huge annual Federal deficit fans inflation and thereby wipes out whatever gains American wage earners may achieve from salary increases. Interest from savings barely preserves the value of the original principal. As we noted in an earlier column, the wage earner is actually worse off despite assumed salary and interest gains that keep pace with inflation. Uncle Sam's progressive income tax scales move him inexorably into higher brackets that require proportionately higher taxes -- even with the pious assurances of Congress that taxes will not be increased.

The winner in this game, as we previously noted, is the U.S. Treasury. History provides many examples of this governmental method of using cheapened money to pay off national overpending. It also notes that this kind of fiscal irresponsibility leads to national catastrophe.

Economist Milton Friedman has said it succinctly: "There is no such thing as a free lunch. That is the sum of any economic theory. The rest is elaboration."

Here's How White House Occupants Plotted To Get Themselves Re-elected

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Some readers found it hard to believe our statement that American presidents have repeatedly chosen re-election over a strong dollar by overheating the economy to inflationary proportions in election years to give the American voters a sense of economic well-being.

The practice began in earnest in 1964 when Lyndon Johnson was seeking re-election. And it has recurred every succeeding four years regardless of who was in the White House.

How else do you account for the fact that in the election years of 1964, 1968, and 1972 the Federal deficit totaled six times as much in billions of dollars as it did in the interim years of 1966, 1970, and 1974?

Even the pre-election year was not immune from the presidential temptation to give the electorate a false sense of prosperity. Deficits in 1963, 1967, and 1971 were four times what they were in the 1966-70-74 interim years.

A classic example of overkill was that of the Nixon administration whose Federal spending deficits in 1971 and 1972 were each more than eleven times what they had been in 1970.

The 1976 Federal deficit of $66 billion was the highest ever in U.S. peacetime history, continuing the fine American tradition of striving to keep the party in power rather than giving the nation a sound fiscal basis.

Pneumatic Scale Employees Get 16% Hike Over 2 Years

Employees of the Pneumatic Scale Corporation, North Quincy, recently ratified a new two-year company-union agreement, calling for a 16-percent wage increase over the next two years.

The contract, effective immediately, also features a cost-of-living clause that could bring an additional two-percent increase in the second year. It also included improvements in group medical and dental insurance, pension plan and vacation eligibility requirements, according to the company.

A company spokesman said "this is the most attractive wage-benefit package accepted by our employees in many years."

Pneumatic Scale, headquartered in North Quincy, is one of the world's largest manufacturers of bottling and packaging machinery. Employees were represented by the Mechanical and Allied Production Workers Union, Local 444, AFL-CIO.

State Street South Appeals Restrictions On Creek Channel Relocation

State Street South has appealed a decision by the Conservation Commission that it feels sets up too vigorous restrictions on a proposal to relocate the channel of Sagamore Creek in North Quincy.

SSB Realty, Inc., the State Street management company, wants to change the location of a temporary culvert outlet channel to permit the extension of Heritage Drive.

The Conservation Commission approved the plan but limited any necessary alteration to the area to an 18-foot wide strip along Heritage Drive, which, said SSB, is not enough. "We can't do it for the long-range stability of the road," said a spokesman for SSB Realty. "The 18 feet is not adequate to support a road if erosion occurs."

In a non-related action, the Commission gave conditional approval to an office building planned by O'Connell Brothers Management Co. at the intersection of South Rd. and Heritage Drive.

The Commission directed O'Connell Brothers to stick to its plan of rerouting pavement runoff, installing tide gates and cutting a drainage ditch along the State Street property line.

Open House June 27 At New Atlantic Center

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center has moved to 245 Atlantic St., and an official open house is scheduled for Wednesday, June 27, from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

new programs. Joan Roach will be available to take blood pressure.

On display will be the "magic bags" created by the Center's graduate babysitters, knitted and crocheted goods done by seniors, diet recipes from "Pounds Away" and sample of ceramics made at the Center.

A complete schedule of summer trips and events will be available, including a list of all the field trips with sign-up dates, cost and other information necessary for planning ahead.

52% NQHS Grads Plan To Go On To Higher Education

More than half of this year's seniors plan to attend either two- or four-year colleges, according to a survey of North Quincy High School's graduating class.

The survey was answered by 248 students, about two-thirds of the 364 seniors, according to Marjorie Rogers of North's guidance office which conducted the survey.

Eighty-five seniors said they planned to attend a four-year college this fall, while 44 others will go to two-year or specialty schools.

This means 52 percent of the class will be seeking some higher education.

Almost as many seniors, 44 percent, plan to go directly into the job market after high school, the survey indicated. Eighty-six seniors will start full-time jobs this summer, while 25 will be receiving job training.

Eight seniors said they would enter the armed forces after graduation.

Quincy Junior College was the most popular choice of North's college-bound seniors, with 21 graduates planning to enroll there for the fall semester. The next most popular schools were UMass-Boston [choice of 11 seniors], Northeastern University [10], Bridgewater State College, [10], Boston State College [seven], Suffolk University and Massasoit Community College [six each].

More college-bound students, 18, said they would major in business than any other field. Other popular majors are accounting [12 students], nursing [nine] and computer science [six].

North's graduating seniors reported $71,500 in scholarships in the survey.

Chamber Estate Planning Seminar

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring an estate planning seminar for the close corporation and family owned business June 21, 2-4:30 p.m., at the Winsor House, Duxbury.

Panelists will include Atty. Robert J. Forrest, of Briggs, Forrest, Leonardi and Pye, Plymouth; John C. Doody, Arthur L. Doody Insurance Agency, Randolph; David Sargent, Rockland Trust Company; and Bonnie A. Layman, C.P.A., of Creelman & Smith, Boston.

First Parish Church Badly In Need Of Repairs

One of the six options noted in the report is a "cooperative relationship" with the National Parks Service—but a spokesman for the service told The Quincy Sun that such a relationship does not necessarily mean money.

"As we begin to explore this possibility," said the Task Force report, "we were surprised to find that arrangements of this nature have been in existence for many years. For example, two historic churches in Philadelphia have agreements."

"Now that the Adams Birthplaces and the Adams Mansion are under the aegis of National Parks it would seem feasible to include this edifice as well and encourage the establishment of a central office to supervise all three."

United First Parish Church, also called the Adams Temple, was built in 1828 with a gift from John Adams. The second President, his son, John Quincy Adams, the sixth President, and their wives are buried beneath it.

Actually, there are four active churches in Philadelphia that have relationships with the Park Service, none of them involving direct grants of money for upkeep.

They are Christ Episcopal Church, St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Gloria Dei (the so-called Old Swedish Church) and St. George Methodist Church, all within the Independence Hall National Historic Park area.

"We provide advice and assistance in public affairs," said Tom Mercer of the National Parks Service in Boston, "and we are authorized to purchase and maintain land around them. But the Service gives them no money support."

Giving money to an active church, he said, probably would be a violation of the separation of church and state.

Another option being studied by the Task Force is a "supportive relationship" with the National Trust for Historical Preservation, a Congressionally chartered private organization that aids in the preservation of historic sites.

Other options include:

- Continue as we are doing now—responding to crisis. We are concerned that some major conditions may arise that will be beyond our ability to handle. As a building gets older it is more vulnerable and requires special attention.

- Raise a substantial endowment so that the income might be sufficient to upgrade the building and keep it in repair. This would involve hiring a top-notch professional fund-raising company who would no doubt study the feasibility of a national campaign.

- Seek a yearly income from the Adams Temple and School Fund. The Fund was set up to build the Temple and run the now-defunct Adams Academy and there is some legal disagreement whether income can be used to upkeep and maintenance of the Adams crypt.

- Organize our assets so that they would provide a building maintenance and preservation fund. What this means is that we would sell the communion silver. This has been discussed for years.

The last major repair to United First Parish Church was in 1964 when an international subscription drive raised more than $50,000 to restore the belfry and dome, most of which had rotted or been eaten by termites.

The cost of building the entire church of Quincy granite in 1828 was $30,488.56.

● St. John's Little League

Alpine Wins National Division, Gacicia Holds American Lead

With St. John's Little League moving toward its playoffs beginning June 25, the Alpine Restaurant nailed down the National League championship with a 21-5 romp over Presidents Pharmacy.

In the American League Gacicia Insurance moved into first place with a 14-2 record, but Riley and Rielly Insurance is right behind with an 11-2 mark and The Quincy Sun also has a shot at the division crown. Gacicia defeated Riley and Rielly, 8-6, on Joe Buccini's two-run homer following Bob Kozlowski's triple. Down, 4-0, Gacicia tied it up in the bottom of the sixth and won it in the seventh. P. J. Duggan hit a two-run triplet to spark Gacicia's comeback.

Gacicia walked the Sun, 9-1, with Sean Kudelka striking out 12, and romped over Beau's Place, 15-2, behind Mark Goodwin's one-hit pitching and some outstanding defense by Steve Davis at shortstop.

Social Club, after splitting with Presidents Pharmacy, winning the completion of a tie game, 7-4, and losing, 12-1, to Bob Kinsbury's blazing fast ball, handily defeated Braintree Paint and Wallpaper, 7-1, as Paul Foy threw a two-hitter and also singled and tripled. Brian Durante, Pat Calabro and John Nee also walked big bats. Dave Tocchio had two hits in a losing game.

The Sun edged the Social Club, 12-11, with Michael Casey and Jim Stasio sparking the attack with three hits each. Dan Consolagis made the defensive play of the game at second to snuff out a Social Club rally and Dan Santry was the winning pitcher in relief.

The Sun also edged the Alpine Restaurant, 7-6, with southpaw Eddie Gore pitching five-hit ball and striking out 13 to edge Al Martel, who struck out eight Sun batters. The Sun came from behind to win as Eric Jolley drove in the winning run after Stasio had tripled. Gore struck out the side in three of the six innings and struck out the last batter in every inning. Sang Yoo's line drive single in the third had given The Sun the lead at that point.

In the Sun's 14-7 win over Presidents Pharmacy, Stasio paced the team both on the mound and at bat. He pitched a six-hitter and struck out 12 and also drove in four runs with a two-run homer and was two for two. Kevin Jolley went two for three and drove in four runs and Gore was three for three.

Alpine, winning three in a row, the last a crushing win over Presidents Pharmacy, opened up a huge lead on its way to the division flag. Following Martel's 10-strikeout 5-3 effort against Van Oriola 'Plumbing, with timely hitting by Bob Volpe and Tim Finnegan, Alpine breezed by Braintree Paint and Wallpaper, 13-5, sparked by Tony Koury's fine defensive play at first base. Alpine then drew down the curtain with its 2-5 walkaway over Presidents as Martel pitched well and Kevin Capobianco had five hits. Sean Cahill's triple and Mike Shield's three-run homer paced the losers.

In the Farm League Sweeney Funeral Service wrapped up the title with a 10-0-1 record with one makeup game left.

The championship playoffs start June 25 with the American and National league champions meeting in a best of three series. If there is a tie for the American League top, the playoff would be held on the 25th and the playoffs would start the 26th.

The annual all-star game and picnic will be held at Faxon Park on Saturday, June 30, at 10 a.m.

A-N Girls Track Team

Defeats Broad Meadows In Finale

The Atlantic-North Junior High girls' track team won both relays to snap a 36-36 tie and defeat Broad Meadows, 46-36, in its final meet.

The one-lap team of Karen Lindenfelzer, Deirdre Donovan, Laura Coughlin and Martha Donaghue broke the school record, set two weeks ago, by 1.08 seconds, with a 44.72 timing. The team has been unbeaten this spring.

The two-lap team comprised Linda Kennedy, Ann Gorczyca, Erin Horrigan and Kathy McCarthy.

Kennedy finished unbeaten in the mile and Donaghue was undefeated in the hurdles. Marjorie Bortolotti has shown great improvement in the high jump and finished with a fine 4-8 to win in the finale. Donovan placed second at 47 and Bortolotti also was third in the 440.

Horrigan and Gorczyca were 1-3 in the 880, Donovan and McCarthy were 2-3 in the 100 and McCarthy also was third in the shot put. Donaghue and Marie McGurl were 1-2 in the hurdles and Martha also finished second in the long jump.

For Broad Meadows Chris Pearsall won the 100 and won the long jump with a 14-8 leap. Colleen Mahoney was second in the long jump. Stacy Sparks, in her first attempt, won the shot put at 28-6 and Ellen Mullen was second at 25-7.

In the mile Meg Goldrick and Frannie Brown finished 2-3, Diane Rafferty took second in the 880 and Michelle Beven was third, Mahoney won the 440 with Maria Burke second. Sue Mitchell was third in the high jump in her first attempt at 4-7.

In junior varsity action Atlantic-BSM defeated undermanned BM, 68-14, with Salton winning the 100 at 11.88. For BM, sisters Janet and Ann McCarthy placed 1-3 in the hurdles, Joan McDonald and Holly Morris were 1-2 in the shot put.

Atlantic-North looks forward to a good 1980 season. Although it will lose Donovan, Donaghue, Bortolotti and others, it will have a fine nucleus of seventh graders to take up the slack and Salton, McGurl, Markham, Coughlin, O'Brien and Kennedy are some of the girls coaches Adams and Hughes will be depending upon.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's a baseball riddle you can have some fun with... How can a team get three triples and three singles in one inning, and still not score a run?... Answer: First two men triple and are out at the plate trying for an inside-the-park homer... Next man triples and stays at third... Next two men get infield singles with the runner holding third... Last man smacks a ground ball that hits runner going from first to second... Batter gets credit for a hit, but runner is out, making three triples, three singles, three outs...and no runs!

Do you have any idea what was the smallest city ever to have a big league baseball team?... Answer is Troy, N.Y.... Troy was in the National League from 1879 to 1882.

Do you know who was the very first player in history to sign a contract for a salary of 100-thousand dollars or more a year?... The first 100-thousand dollar player was baseball star Joe DiMaggio, who signed for that amount in 1949.

Board Denies Change For Lakin Sq. Liquor Store

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

To the sound of applause from some 54 Lakin Square area residents, the City Licensing Board voted to deny the request of Atlas Liquors for change of address from 665-671 Adams St., 60-70 Hilda St., to 659-665 Adams St., 49-53 Eddie St.

Board members Police Chief Francis X. Finn, Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon, Fire Chief Edward Barry and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald voted to deny the request, with City Clerk John Gillis dissenting.

At issue were traffic and other problems in the Lakin Square area resulting from the volume of business done at the discount liquor establishment.

Area residents said the move to the new, larger site in the same vicinity would only aggravate existing problems since the liquor store could then potentially bring even more traffic into the area.

The Lakin Square Neighborhood Association, formed recently to fight commercialism in the area, had many of its members at the meeting Tuesday.

Discussion of the issue began with Atty. Peter Eley, representing Atlas Liquors, outlining proposed plans being undertaken, in part, to remedy the traffic situation.

Following the demolition of a house on the proposed site, a single story, masonry building would be built with two entrances, one on Adams St. and Hilda St. Parking for 28 cars would be available.

The area would be landscaped, and the old, free-standing sign would come down. All supplies and rubbish would be stored in the basement of the store.

Eley said that Atlas had been trying to secure the new location for several years, and felt that there it could efficiently and effectively deal with the traffic problems.

Gillis then asked residents, "Who is in favor of the move?"

Two men, Philip Cheverie, of 44 Eddie St., and Richard Doyle, of 48 Eddie St., came forward and gave their names to Gillis.

Atty. Neil Kerstein, representing the Lakin Square Association, presented the board with a petition against the move signed by 181 residents.

He presented pictures to the board showing the unsightly condition of the building, grounds and sign, and told of a "Dear Neighbor" letter sent to residents by Robert White, trustee at Atlas.

The letter detailed improvements and stated there would be no access on Eddie St. However, Kerstein pointed out, there would still be access on Adams St., site of a good deal of the traffic problems.

He told the board of a 1972 letter to Chief Finn in which then Ward 5 Councillor William Delahunt had opposed the intentions of the liquor store, known then as White's Liquor, for increased parking.

Kerstein said that if the store had intended to alleviate traffic and other problems, it would have done so before this, and that a move would only add to the problems.

City Councillors John J. Lydon Jr., and James Sheets also voiced opposition to the move.

Lydon said a 15-foot buffer zone would be necessary and it would take away from the parking area. Lydon, who lives a street away from Atlas, called the proposed plans "cursory." They don't have their act straightened out," he said.

Sheets said he has had phone calls about the traffic problems. Sheets noted that Atlas had done "practically nothing" about the traffic problem in the past.

Area residents told the board of problems with traffic, parking, rubbish and youths hanging around the area late at night.

Carol B. Reardon of 63 Hilda St., appeared before the board on behalf of her elderly parents who have lived on Hilda St. since 1943. Her mother recently had a heart attack and, because of the traffic, an ambulance had to park in the middle of Hilda St. to reach Mrs. Reardon.

She also said when Atlas acquired the store in the late 1960's, it was in "apple pie condition," there was no deterioration. Employees of the store used snow shovels to clean up the debris around the establishment last weekend, she said.

Many other residents offered similar complaints, which were often met with applause.

Lydon informed the board the Stop & Shop on Adams St. is up for sale, and that when it closes shoppers will move to Lakin Square, bringing more traffic.

Fire Chief Barry said he didn't see why the Stop & Shop area couldn't be subdivided and a liquor store put in there.

Atty. Eley asked that the board continue the hearing for a week so that the different parties could discuss the matter and make other changes that might solve problems.

Atty. Kerstein said talks would have no effect on the opposition to the move, and Councillor Lydon also objected to a continuance, saying "all the facts are known".

Police Chief Finn made the motion to deny and it was seconded by Dr. Solomon.

In other action, the License Board:

- Postponed for one week, a continued hearing on the request of Daniel N. Antonelli of Highway Auto Body, 481 Quincy Ave., for a permit to store 250 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars, and for an auto body repair license.

- Continued for one week a request from Richard J. Flippin for a lodging house license at 10 Edgewood Circle, pending a tour of the establishment by the joint inspection team.

- Denied the request of Mrs. Beverly A. Mignosa for a second-hand license for 414 Washington St. because of the failure of Mrs. Mignosa to appear at the meeting.

- Granted a Motor II license to John A. Kohler, of Ace-K Auto Body, 310 Washington St., with restrictions that no cars be displayed outside the building, no more than two cars be up for sale, signs be approved by the building inspector and the area around the building be kept clean.

- Placed on file a request from George Terrio, of South Shore Bait & Tackle, for a Sunday opening license.

- Placed on file complaints against Feeley's Baked Enameling Co., 232 Water St., that the firm operated after the specified hours.

- Granted George P. Viglas a repair shop license for 113 Garfield St., (formerly Granite City Blacksmith Shop) with the restrictions that all tank trucks under repair and iron and equipment no longer used, be removed; no spraying be done except in an approved spray room; no work be done outside, and cars be kept in the building at night.

- Ordered Wollaston Golf Service to clean up the station within 30 days.

Summer Yard Sales Planned To Dispose Of Old School Equipment

With yard sales becoming more and more popular the Quincy school department has decided to get into the act.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon is asking the school committee for permission to hold a series of sales or auctions this summer to dispose of old and out-of-date school equipment and furniture.

The superintendent estimates that old student desks and chairs would bring from $2 to $4 each. Other items would include wrought iron chairs, lathes and a radial arm saw.

Creedon informed the committee that Vincent Sullivan, coordinator of science in the school system and a registered auctioneer, has volunteered his services.

The sales, Creedon said, would be conducted on Saturdays with the first sale and auction on June 23 at the Quantum School playground.

The city solicitor has rendered an opinion indicating that the school system has the authority to dispose of surplus school property, Creedon said.

Conference To Study Plans For New Jail

The National Institute of Corrections Jail Center of Boulder, Colo., will conduct a two-day jail planning session at First Parish Church hall in Dedham today [Thursday] and Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., to aid Norfolk County with preliminary plans for construction of a new house of correction and jail.

Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall has invited criminal justice, local social service, civic and political organizations to participate in the conference along with the site selection committee, Norfolk County Commissioners, and the administrative staff of his office. The conference will study the feasibility of constructing a new correctional facility for the county.

The present Norfolk County House of Correction and jail was constructed in 1817. It has not had a major renovation since 1850, according to Sheriff Marshall.

A fire last November destroyed the northeast wing and has resulted in overcrowding in the remaining useable sections.

Tobin, Councillors In Showdown On NQHS Bond Issue

at Monday's Council meeting but Tobin, in an 11th hour letter to Quinn, asked that it be postponed.

"It is my firm belief," Tobin wrote, "that additional time is needed for the Council to ascertain answers to questions so that the issue may be voted upon objectively and intelligently."

He asked that individual councillors "meet with the commissioner of public works, the architect, the city solicitor, the superintendent of schools and Blount Brothers [the general contractor] at a time and place mutually agreed upon to have all questions satisfactorily answered."

There are those who feel that Tobin's action was more of a delaying tactic to give him time to work on changing the vote of at least one of the four councillors who oppose it.

Quinn was about to accede to Tobin's wishes and call a special meeting for the bond issue in the future when Raymond rose to request a poll of the individual members of the Council to see if any of them really did have any further questions.

"It [the bond issue] has been in committee for a lengthy period of time and we have had many public sessions on it," said Raymond. "The City Council has exhausted the issue. I don't think anything is going to be gained by further delay."

Quinn agreed to poll the Council with the stipulation that "if just one councillor wishes additional information, I'm going to call a special meeting on this matter."

Two of the councillors so wished.

"I would suggest at this point in time I do not have answers to all the questions," said Condon.

"It is my intention to meet with the people mentioned in the Mayor's letter," added McGrath.

The bond issue was saved for at least a few more days - which Tobin apparently feels is just what he needs to get the matter straightened out.

"I see the project going through sooner or later," he told The Sun. "Nine reasonable people cannot leave that project standing the way it is."

He said he could understand the apparent lack of reaction of North Quincy parents to the possibility that the long-awaited project might not be finished as planned.

"The impact hasn't set in yet," he theorized. "I don't think the people down there believe the bond issue is not going to be voted."

Tobin said the request for a postponement of the vote originated in a late Monday afternoon conference among the Mayor, Creedon, Ricciuti, architect Barry Coletti and George Riley, the Mayor's executive secretary.

"We deduced," he said, "that the City Council had problems with the project and, judging from their published statements, they didn't understand and maybe additional time was needed."

"I felt there was an obligation on my part to accommodate them so that we could say we explored every avenue. I want to be able to say I've done everything I could to satisfy their requests."

Tobin blamed at least part of his faulty communications with the individual city councillors on the state's open meeting law, which forbids most private meetings of public bodies.

"One of the most difficult things at the present time," he said, "is that I do not have the luxury of my predecessors where they could bring in groups of city councillors and discuss matters ahead of time. This is because of the mandate of the open meeting law."

"I'm trying to run a city that has a budget of nearly $100 million with nine part-time city councillors. They are all good, decent people but they have jobs to go to during the day to support their families."

"When problems arise during the day and I have to make important decisions, we have to operate on the telephone. All I'm asking is for the City Council to realize and appreciate this."

"I'm not asking them to do anything they wouldn't ordinarily do but just to be a little more understanding that they can't slow down the wheels of progress coming in here on the first and third Mondays of every month."

"They have to have a certain amount of trust and faith that the Mayor is acting in the best interests of the city unless there is evidence to the contrary."

"This project is now under the third mayor of this city, Hannon, LaRosa, Tobin. How much longer is it going to get kicked around? Will there be a fourth mayor, a fifth mayor involved in it?"

Flatley, City Officials Mum On 'Huge Development' Plans

By TOM HENSHAW
Developer Thomas J. Flatley, who came close to fleeing the Massachusetts business climate a few years ago, is considering a "huge development" on an unspecified site in Quincy. Word of Flatley's interest in Quincy was dropped by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and the Rev. Bedros Baharian, citywide development coordinator, at the Mayor's Economic Conference last week. The Mayor and Rev. Baharian were closeted with Flatley for an hour and a half Tuesday morning in the conference room at 1000 Southern Artery but Tobin refused to comment on the meeting. "I asked him if I could discuss the results of the conference," said Tobin, "and he asked me not to talk about specifics. He is in very serious negotiations on agreements and nothing has been finalized; he said if any publicity got out that would jeopardize negotiations he'd just as soon not get involved." Flatley, who is president of the Flatley Co. of Braintree, which lately has been involved in building shopping centers and condominiums, was not available for comment. [Cont'd on Page 26]

50 From Each Ward Selected

300 Names Drawn In Summer Jobs Lottery

The names of 300 lucky teenagers have been drawn in a lottery to fill the city's summer jobs.

The names were drawn Friday in the City Council chamber, which was about half-filled with job seekers and other observers, according to George Riley, Mayor Tobin's executive secretary.

Over 800 applications for summer work were received, Riley said, and the names were separated by ward. Fifty names from each ward were chosen, he said.

The young city workers will fill a variety of jobs, ranging from outside work for the public works, cemetery and recreation departments to clerical jobs at City Hall and the city hospital. They will work for five weeks, earn the minimum wage, $2.90 per hour, and work 35 to 40 hours per week, depending on their department.

Riley, City Councillors Daniel Raymond and Joanne Condon and other city officials were among those drawing names.

'Stay At Home'

This Weekend Gas Picture: CRITICAL!

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

This coming weekend looms as "the critical one" for availability of gasoline, city officials say, although they're not ready to speculate how bad it will be.

The best advice the city has for would-be motorists comes from Richard Koch, city energy conservation director: "Find something to do at home."

For those who must drive, the Quincy Police Department will be keeping track of who's open in the city, where and when. Anyone searching for gas can call 479-1212.

While efforts are being made on several fronts to guarantee more gas for the city, Robert Traknis, manager of the city's energy office, admits most of the solutions are "just robbing Peter to pay Paul."

One plan to hold down the length of gas lines in Quincy and elsewhere would move up delivery of July's gas allocations to this Thursday or Friday. Stations usually don't receive their monthly allocations until the first week of the month.

Representatives of the state's Office of Energy Resources are trying this week to persuade oil companies to make their deliveries a few days early, Traknis said. How well they succeed won't be known for a day or two, he said Tuesday.

Early delivery's wouldn't mean extra gasoline, but just spreads July's allotment over a few extra days, he said.

The state's much-publicized decision to shift gas from resort areas to urban areas this week may not benefit Quincy, Traknis said.

After meeting with Harriet Stanley of the state office of Energy Resources, Monday, Traknis said the extra gasoline is intended for more outlying cities, like Fall River, New Bedford and Springfield, and "possible into Quincy, but that's not definite." In any case, the amount of gas to be transferred to the cities is "not a big shift," he said.

A meeting with gas station managers and operators scheduled for yesterday [Wednesday] afternoon would give city officials a firmer idea of how many stations expect to be selling how much gas, this weekend, Traknis said.

Quincy drivers last weekend fared comparatively well, according to Captain Paul

Brownell Airport Noise Bill Passes House

A bill calling for Massport to hold public hearings before it requests a major change in flight patterns from Logan Airport in East Boston has passed the State House.

The measure, filed by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] is designed to correct a problem that arose in May 1978 when Massport rerouted noisy departing aircraft over Quincy.

The bill requires Massport to issue public notice whenever it proposes a "significant alteration" in a route for more than 30 days when it has "substantial impact" on an area.

Fifty citizens in the community affected then have 30 days in which to petition for a hearing.

The bill now goes to the State Senate where Brownell predicted it will also pass "because it makes sense and corrects a basic flaw in the way the Port Authority operates."

FOR OPEN SPACE -- Mayor Arthur Tobin signs zoning change permitting historical and open-space preservation of a 10-acre city-owned parcel on Quarry St. The change from a planned unit development will maintain the area as a natural buffer zone from surrounding development. From left with Mayor are Councillor Francis McCauley, Ronald Iacobucci, Jeanne Giagrande, William O'Connell, Councillor Daniel Ramondi and Councillor James Sheets.

'No More Apartments'

Quarry Street Residents Favor Passive Recreational Area

Eighty-five percent of area residents contacted in a telephone poll by the subcommittee on Quarry St. Land Use, expressed approval of the committee's plans for development of a passive recreational area on the 10-acre site.

In the survey, 67 percent of those polled said they would definitely use such a facility and 24 percent said their families "most likely" would take advantage of the proposed recreation area.

"This is the first of many efforts to get direct responses from people in the area most affected by the project. We need the continued support and interest of these people," said Ron Iacobucci, subcommittee chairman.

The telephone survey covered 75 residents and 67 percent said they were aware of the recent zoning change from Planned Unit development to open space. Suggestions for use of the land are, for the most part, similar to those proposed by the subcommittee.

They include jogging trails, gardens or arboretum, and bicycle paths. Other suggestions included an art museum, a pond, children's playground, bridal paths and tennis courts.

When asked what they did not want to see in the area, 39 percent responded "no more apartments" or "high rise development." Many surveyed expressed concern over dumping, increased traffic due to development or ballfields, and possible abuse from vandalism or teenage drinking.

The pollsters were Marilyn Casey, Jeanne Giagrande, Carla Kindt, Anneli Johnson, Helen Johnson and Rene Lumaghini.

Remick's Confidence Keynotes Conference

"My heart is not troubled about the future of Quincy," said Frank Remick of Remick's of Quincy.

"We have certain lacks but they will be filled because, through the cooperation of private business and city government, we are doing those things that will make stores want to come to Quincy."

Remick, prominent downtown Quincy merchant with 48 years at the head of the family store, turned out to be the keynote speaker at the second annual Quincy Economic Conference, which attracted some 200 people to the Neighborhood Club.

Speakers included such political heavyweights as Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III but it was Remick who set the tone for the show with his quiet confidence in the future of his city.

"Twenty years ago," he said, "there was the city of Quincy and Norfolk Downs and Wollaston, little tiny retail centers, and not one square inch of selling space in what is now South Shore Plaza."

"Today there are a million and a quarter square feet of selling space in Braintree Plaza and still Quincy enjoys good business and looks forward to a great future."

"I don't say we don't have our problems. We have to realize the leaving of Sears Roebuck soberly and do things to offset the loss of that volume and that traffic."

"I say that we can do it through the cooperation of our good mayor and his planners and the Council and everyone involved in the city government with the retail community for which I speak."

All of the speakers on the hour-long program emphasized what they saw as the spirit of cooperation between the public and private sectors in the revitalization of Quincy.

"We've got to provide more business incentives if we're going to compete with other states in attracting industry and development," said Byron Matthews, secretary of the State Department of Communities and Development.

"Terms like 'Taxachusetts' and 'unfriendly business climate' are hard realities. The establishment of an atmosphere that is conducive to job creation is the top priority of Gov. King's administration."

"We have two problems in Massachusetts—high taxes and a cumbersome regulatory process."

"The fact that Gov. King signed a 4 per cent tax cap is a major victory for the citizens of Massachusetts, a necessary first step toward achieving tax relief and promoting economic development and job creation."

"The next step, of course, is tax reform."

"Gov. King has taken the initiative in forming a task force on regulatory reform. This group is studying alternative ways to minimize the hassle in the development committing process."

"With some deregulation, coupled with the prudent application of the various incentives already in place, we should be able to cultivate every development prospect."

Matthews noted that he has approved three Commercial Area Revitalization District (CARD) plans for Quincy and that Chapter 121A tax agreements also are available to spur developers.

"This does not mean that the property will be exempt from taxation nor does it mean that a developer will end up paying less than the community would otherwise have received in taxation," he said.

"It provides him with the certainty of an equitable tax return for a period up to 15 years, the kind of certainty that could be a key factor in making a city like Quincy more attractive for development."

Robert Foster, chairman of the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority, said the MBTA "takes great delight in coming to Quincy because nowhere is the display of good public and private partnership so visible."

"Quincy is my main focal point in showing other cities what may be expected from the development of transit facilities," he said. "Transportation truly makes Quincy the gateway to the South Shore."

The MBTA has invested $125 million in Quincy, he said, adding that "the infusion of transportation funds has a massive impact on urban employment levels, growth patterns and the economy of a city."

"After 14 years of existence, the federal transportation bureaucracy has finally begun to realize that good public transportation can be a major instrument of urban revitalization."

He said daily ridership from North Quincy has reached more than 3,000, of which 1,520 are Quincy residents. Similar figures are 2,800 and 1,415 from

SUNBURN DANGER

According to the National Safety Council, a sunburn - a bad one, that is - is just like the burn you get from a hot iron, but more serious because it covers a large area.

The danger of sunburn is usually greatest between the hours of 10 and 2 o'clock. If you sun then, be extra careful or you'll pay the price.

Don't count on an umbrella to protect you from burning at the beach. Sand and water are superb reflectors of the sun's rays. And light rays, not heat rays cause sunburn.

Protect yourself. Always use a lotion, not a potion, when you venture out to tan. Authorities on the subject advise the use of sunburn products containing, among other things, menthyl salicylates which admit the sun's tanning rays while blocking out the harmful burning rays. And it won't hurt to double your dose for proper protection.

An astounding 85% of the adult population of the U.S. suffers from some form of periodontal disease. It is the leading cause of tooth loss in adults over 35 years of age. However, it can be controlled and often cured with proper attention and treatment. Periodontal disease is basically an infection of the gums and bones that hold teeth in place. It often starts among adolescents and is indicated by swollen and bleeding gums and plaque buildup. Regular dental care and good hygiene can prevent periodontal disease. A little care in this instance, can go a long way. Regular dental checkups by your family dentist can control and prevent tooth decay and serious health problems. Dr. Daniel P. Sweeney, D.D.S., whose office for the practice of general dentistry is at 539 Adams St., East Milton Square, stresses preventive dentistry. When you have a need for dentistry, call Dr. Sweeney at 698-3636 for an appointment at your convenience. We honor most dental insurance plans. Master Charge and Visa.

Court Clerical Staff Denied Raises

Informed that under the new court reform law they will not receive salary step increases July 1, some 50 clerical staff members at Quincy District Court early this week spoke ominously of walking off the job.

Court Clerk Dennis F. Ryan and Chief Probation Officer Andrew Klein counseled against such a step and promised to talk with Superior Court Judge Arthur M. Mason, head of the state-operated court system.

Estelle Stoddard, administrative assistant to Klein and spokeswoman for the disgruntled clerical staff, said many of the employees still favor a walkout if all other efforts to have the ruling reversed fail.

"We have been talking with legislators and anybody else we thought might be able to help," she said. "The legislators we have contacted all agree that canceling step increases for clerical staff was certainly not their intention when the court reform was approved."

Stoddard pointed out that all court employees have lost the master medical and dental plan because the state does not carry such coverage. The medical-hospitalization plan was operative while the courts were under county supervision.

"We have talked with clerical people in other courts and some of them haven't yet been informed of the ruling to deny the pay raises," she said.

Klein said he considered the edict "morally wrong." He noted that under the new law trial judges will get increases of $11,000, court clerks receive raises of from $5,000 to $7,000 and probation officers get $1,000 increases.

Clerical staff salaries range from $7,943 to a top of $8,960 and the raises would have been between $200 and $400, Klein said.

"These people have no union to fight for them," Klein said. "We're not talking about a lot of money, we're talking about a principle."

Richard E. Wall, fiscal manager for the reorganized court system, in his directive advised "no step increases in salary are to be included on payrolls for non-union employees."

He added that a job classification study will have to be completed and at that time those who qualify will be paid retroactively. Across the state there are approximately 3,000 non-union employees being transferred from county to the state payroll.

Squantum Gardens Demolition To Begin

Demolition of some 120 unoccupied units in the Squantum Gardens Navy housing project should begin on or about Aug. 1, according to Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy].

Morrissey said he has been informed by Cong. Brian J. Donnelly [D-Boston] that substantial progress has been made toward finding a contractor and one should be selected by Aug. 1.

"Squantum Gardens has been a major concern for both Cong. Donnelly and myself and our efforts are finally paying off," said Morrissey. "The neighbors will be happy to see demolition begin."

The Navy plans to replace some of the demolished units with a recreation area for base residents.

HERE'S HOW YOUR HOME CAN PAY FOR ITS OWN IMPROVEMENTS.

You've worked hard to buy your home. And now your dreamhouse can make some other dreams come true. Like converting your basement into a room your whole family can eat, play, and relax in.

That's where an Equity Loan from Old Colony Bank comes in. As you've been paying your mortgage, you've been building equity in your home. Equity is basically the difference between what your home is worth and how much you owe on it. And when you consider how fast home prices are rising these days, your equity could be much higher than you think.

But equity is lazy money unless you put it to work. That's why Old Colony Bank wants to lend from $3,500 to $10,000 against the equity in your home. And at one of the better interest rates around! Up til June 30, we'll give you a special rate of 12%, with up to 10 years to repay. Best of all, you can use the cash for anything you want.

Like making your dreamhouse more than just a day dream.

So visit one of the six Old Colony Banks in Norfolk County and ask about an Equity Loan today. You've worked hard for your home. Now put it to work for you.

Board Cuts Gas Station Hours From 24 To 16

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Reported disturbances resulting from long gas lines at a West Quincy gas station resulted in the City Licensing Board restricting the station's hours of operation from 24 hours a day to 16 despite the gas shortage.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn, acting board chairman, made the motion that the hours of operation at Scavo Auto Body, Inc., 550 Willard St., be restricted to 5 a.m. to 9 p.m. until the present gas crisis is alleviated.

Voting in favor of the restrictions along with Chief Finn were Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon and Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

City Clerk John Gillis and Fire Chief Edward Barry were not present at the meeting.

A group of some 18 area residents came before the board with a signed petition opposing the 24-hour service. They told of noise and other disturbances occurring as late as 2 a.m. and 3 a.m.

Residents also told of drinking and parties conducted by the mainly young drivers waiting in line for gas late at night, and of their using the surrounding areas as bathrooms.

Michael Chesson, of 580 Willard St., said that traffic waiting in line for gas completely blocks the entrance to Bunker Hill Lane.

He called the situation "deplorable" and said, "It seems to me there are violations of public exposure, intoxication, under-age drinking, littering and profanity."

Kevin Cook, an area resident for four years, said "Gas is being sold for the convenience of others at the expense of the neighborhood." He asked for curtailment of operating hours to give the residents some "peace and tranquility."

Chief Finn told the group of a meeting he had last Friday with Quincy gas station owners in an effort to comply with Governor Edward King's guidelines on having four gas stations in the city open between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m. daily during the gas shortage. Extra gasoline could be diverted to stations that stay open week-ends.

When asked if Scavo Auto Body was receiving a special allotment, Robert Cutler of Energy Retailers Inc., who leases the property to Scavo, replied that they were, but that it was just a small part of their supply.

Most of their supply is based on a percentage of the amount of gas the station sold during a five month period in 1978. Since the station is more of a gas station than a full service station, and has been open 24 hours a day since 1976, the amount is more than some other stations receive.

City Councillor James Sheets pointed out that Albert Scavo, who has run the station for 34 years, has always responded positively to phone calls from him, and that complaints against the station are not against Scavo personally.

Scavo said that he felt the situation was of a temporary nature and when the gasoline companies charge $1.50 a gallon there will be no more lines. He said that he has trouble, as do residents, maneuvering his vehicles out of the station through the traffic, and that he would do whatever the board decides.

Chief Finn proposed a 10 p.m. closing in view of the "animalistic" way that the public waiting in line for gas was acting.

Robert Curtis responded that while he sympathizes with the neighbors, he "doesn't like to see someone tell me what to do, to see my rights taken away. I would rather work out something on a voluntary basis with you."

Inspector MacDonald said that priorities have to go to people with homes in the area, and Chief Finn said that curtailment of hours would only be a temporary order.

The reduced hours of operation are effective immediately and a policeman will be assigned to end the line near the close of operating hours.

In other action, the Board:

- Granted a request from AF's Dine & Dance, 211 Sea St., for transfer of a common victualer-alcoholic license from retiring manager John Mosesso to Peter J. Finlay. The license is contingent on Finlay's buying the business and real estate, and plans call for the development of a family restaurant with liquor facilities rather than the present corner bar.

- Granted a request from Richard J. Flippin for a lodging house license at 10 Edgewood Circle on the understanding that stoves in the rooms be removed.

- Granted a request from Robert and Patricia R. Crosby to store 300 additional gallons of gasoline and diesel fuel in tanks of cars at a garage and repair shop at 489-501 Hancock St. There had been some concern among area residents that the establishment would be expanded, but the request was only in regard to storing cars inside the garage.

- Continued until the next special meeting of the License Board a request from Newport Subs, 299 Newport Ave., for a common victualer license.

This was the last scheduled meeting of the License Board until September.

Patricia Toland To Seek Re-election To School Committee

Patricia M. Toland, vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee, announces her candidacy for re-election.

"The School Committee, in its role as governing and policy making body, must set forth both short and long range goals for the school system, and must actively participate in setting priorities as we approach the 80's," she said in citing the committee's goal setting process as one of her major contributions during her first term in office.

She pointed out that through her efforts and the support of the majority of the committee a goal of a zero growth budget was approved and ultimately realized this year.

"Strengthening the reading program at the secondary level, a needs assessment at Quincy Vocational Technical School, and a program of staff evaluation are other goals presently being addressed by the committee," she said.

She noted that the issues facing the School Committee in Quincy, as elsewhere, are becoming increasingly complex and varied.

"The issues span a wide range from the traditional educational areas of curriculum development, staff development, program evaluation, and community education to employee negotiations and legal matters," she stated.

"We are in a period of declining enrollment, declining resources, and budget constraints," she said. "However, the school committee, as an advocate for children, must see that education is not made to bear a disproportionate share of inevitable budget cuts."

Mrs. Toland said she continues to encourage parent involvement with the schools, is pleased with the progress of the City-wide Parent Advisory Council, and is hopeful citizens on all levels of the community will offer their help to a citizens task force to study declining enrollment and school closings.

"I have spent a great many hours in the schools and at educational conference and meetings and have learned a great deal. I would like the opportunity to use the experience and knowledge gained during my first term in office over the next four years," she said.

Has 'Open Mind'

McGrath Seen Reconsidering 'No' Vote On NQHS Bond Issue

The City Council was scheduled to meet last night [Wednesday] for a final vote on the $1.5 million supplemental bond issue for North Quincy High School amid indications that one of the four opposition councillors is reconsidering his "no" vote.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath told The Quincy Sun Tuesday afternoon that he has had some "good conversations" with Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti during the past week and "we have cleared up a lot of points."

48 Units Empty

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

A shortage of painters has led to a large number of vacancies in Quincy Housing Authority (QHA) apartments, the board was told last week.

The number of vacancies - 48 right now - has drawn criticism from city officials, according to Carmine D'Olimpio, QHA chairman. But, while the authority has only three full-time painters, he said, its basic tenant agreement states that each new tenant's apartment shall have a fresh paint job. This means apartments sit vacant while waiting to be painted, he said.

"We are certainly restricted as to the availability of apartments," D'Olimpio said.

Superintendent of Maintenance James D'Olimpio, told board members that a simple shortage of manpower has led to the backlog. About 3.5 percent of the 1,355 units owned and managed by the authority are vacant.

Most of the vacancies are in the 580 family units in Germantown, according to Clement O'Brien, the authority's administrator.

Chairman D'Olimpio said the large number of vacancies often lead to a larger expense of repairing vandalism.

"What leads to vandalism is empty apartments," he said.

The Authority has sought to remedy the manpower shortage in the past by hiring CETA workers or by using federal bloc grants to pay for the extra help, he said.

"An avenue that we are exploring," Chairman D'Olimpio said, is allowing new tenants to paint their own apartments.

Board member Rev. William McCarthy, who first questioned D'Olimpio on the number of vacancies, said "the reason I brought it up is to put on public record that the authority is doing something."

The authority also presented a plaque to former member Rosemary Wahlberg, honoring her services during a five-year term.

Mrs. Wahlberg, who had been the state-appointed member on the five-person board, was not re-appointed by state director of the Department of Community Affairs Byron Mathews this year, and was replaced on the board by Mrs. Lolita Harris.

"We wish her well, it's been a pleasure and an experience I certainly won't forget," D'Olimpio said.

Mrs. Wahlberg called her term "the most important five years of our lives" and added that after five years of serving the city, "I can go back to serving Archie and the kids."

The board also voted to seek funding from the state Department of Community Affairs for special housing for large families. A bill passed by gotten to the point where it looks like a confrontation between the City Council and the Mayor. If the information had been given properly in the first place we would not find ourselves in this bad situation."

The City Council's Finance Committee, made up of the Council as a whole, voted 5-4 to recommend passage of the bond issue. Councillors McGrath, Joanne Condon, Daniel G. Raymond and Leo J. Kelly were opposed. A 6-3 vote is needed to pass the Council.

Councillors Condon,

Raymondi and Kelly told The Sun Tuesday that they are still opposed to the bond.

"I have said all along," said Mrs. Condon, "that if the money is documented, if it is shown to me that the money is due and realistic, then I would consider it. I have always said that."

"I suggest that at this point in time we have received no additional information therefore I am of the same opinion. It is still not fully documented."

The bond issue came before

the Council on June 18 but Mayor Tobin asked that the vote be postponed so that he and members of his administration could field any questions councillors may have on it.

Shortage Of Painters Brings Vacancies In QHA Apartments

the state legislature recently made funds available to communities.

Rev. McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church, registered his approval of the move and noted "the organization I represent encourages large families."

State Budget

The deadline for the fiscal 1980 Budget is growing near. The House recently appointed 3 members of the Conference Committee to meet with the Senate to try to resolve their differences.

The House Budget concentrates on property tax relief, while the Senate Budget emphasizes an income tax cut, and severe cuts in the Dept. of Mental Health Budget.

The Legislature will be meeting the entire week and weekend until the Budget is resolved. The House is also considering a bill that would legalize Capital Punishment in the Commonwealth. There are legislative as well as constitutional hurdles that must be overcome. If I can be of any assistance or if you wish to contact me concerning the Budget or Capital Punishment, I can be reached by calling 727-7035 or 328-0900.

Really Fooled The Teachers

65th anniversary reunion at the house on Verchid St. back in 1923 and has been living there ever since. During World War I he worked at Fore River Shipyard and a number of other shipyards up and down the East Coast.

Albin Anderson built a carpentry and stayed with it until World War II when the War Manpower Commission went looking for trained ship workers. He did his stint at the yard and then went back to carpentry until he retired.

The class had been holding reunions every five years, but since the 60th the get-togethers have been annual events.

To raise some enthusiasm for the reunion Marjorie [Snow] Rounds wrote the following poem:

The year rolls 'round; it ain't no myth;
It's time to have our sixty-fifth!

The committee's in action,
the plans are all laid

Just jog along over, if you're in that class.

The luncheon's at one - the choice is not odd
With entree of chicken or New England scrod.

With cocktails or sherry at twelve, don't refuse
Imbibe with old friends and catch up with the news.

So come to reunion - the best to be seen
And help us celebrate the Class of Fourteen!

The committee for this year's reunion was headed by Margaret [Magee] Browne, who has been class secretary since graduation, and James H. Jenkins, class treasurer. Other members of the committee were Kathleen [Gaven] Kearns, Marion Nilsen, and Effie [Weedon] Peterson.

Marion Nilsen recalled that there was an eight piece orchestra at the graduation. The class motto was "Summa Summarum" - "The Highest of the Highest" - and the class flower was the Jack Rose.

In those days, Marion recalls, women wore big hats and on the cover of the program was the note: "If the ladies will remove their hats at the opening of the program, they will contribute much to the pleasure of the audience."

Jenkins, the class treasurer, has been unable to find the exact cost of two granite markers donated by the class and still standing in front of Central Junior High School, which was the high school branch in 1914.

However, he does recall that each member of the class contributed 25 cents towards purchase of the markers.

The reunion broke up slowly with the members telling each other confidently they will meet again next June.

Quincy's Yesterdays

By Tom Henshaw

Bonfire Highlights Fourth Of July Eve

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin ignited the Quincy Legion Post's annual Independence Day Eve bonfire in Merrymount park as nearly 80,000 spectators applauded and autos lined up on Wollaston Boulevard honked their horns.

Twice in the two weeks preceding the Fourth of July celebration the 65-foot bonfire was touched off, once by a youngster tossing a firecracker and once by vandals, but it was rebuilt with railway ties torn up from School St.

Ruth Gumpwright and Harry Sullivan won prizes for the best costumes at the annual party given for 150 children on the beach at the foot of Parkhurst St. by Uncle Arthur Turner of 64 Charles St., Houghs Neck.

Don Frazer pitched a four-hitter and Dick Brodyrick drove in all the runs with two homers and a single as the Squantum Racketeers beat to Houghs Neck CC, 4-3, on Moses Field as part of the 27th consecutive Fourth of July festivities in Squantum.

The holiday dinner menu at Thompson's Restaurant in Quincy Square included clam chowder, broiled fresh King salmon with hollandaise sauce, delmonico potatoes, garden sweet peas, rolls and butter and choice of dessert and beverage for 65 cents.

And a dog, frightened by firecrackers, pushed his way through the swinging doors to safety in the Quincy Police Station where Lt. David Farrell gave him food, shelter and drink.

OUTSIDE PRESSURE CLAIMED

Mrs. Beatrice Walker Nichols, vice chairman of the School Committee, charged that "outside pressure" had been brought on the board to rehire Arthur Ballou of West Quincy who had been released as a teacher at Quincy Point Junior High School.

The board received a letter from Joint Headmaster Henry Prario asserting that Ballou, who was a graduate of Boston College and held a master's degree from Harvard, did not know "spelling, English or facts."

ROOSEVELT PLOT SUSPECTED

State Director Frank H. Foy of the National Emergency Council wrote to Mayor Burgin asking him to list the benefits Quincy received from the federal relief program and soliciting his opinion on whether it should be abandoned.

Heslip E. Sutherland, chairman of the Republican City Committee, charged that Foy's letter was an attempt to embarrass Burgin and "a scheme to convert the nation's relief administration into a prop for the Roosevelt reelection campaign."

'Get It, We'll Pump It'

Station Operators Score Uncertainty Of Allotments

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

When city officials met last week to discuss Governor King's new regulations, gasoline station operators present had their own message to give.

"We'll all stay open and pump it for you if you get us the gas," one station manager told the city officials.

The station operators claimed that day-to-day uncertainty over their gas allotments made any long-range schedule to keep stations open on weekends impossible.

The meeting Friday, between the station owners and managers and Mayor Arthur Tobin, members of the City License Board and Richard Koch, city energy conservation director, was held to help insure that King's nine-point program was carried out.

Besides the now-famous "half-tank" regulation, King's order also calls for red, yellow or green flags, to indicate a station's operating status, posted hours of operation for every station and asks that communities arrange so that at least one station is open at any time between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m., seven days a week.

"That is ridiculous," one man told Tobin.

"The oil companies won't even tell us when we'll get our gas," another added.

City officials were, however, able to get a list of which stations were to be open last weekend, which apparently will be a weekly ritual for the rest of the summer.

Koch told the station owners he would be in touch with the state office of Energy Resources this week to try to obtain emergency allocations for those stations which do remain open over the next few weekends.

Police Chief Francis Finn, who is responsible for seeing that King's order is carried out, offered the help of his department to the station operators.

"The police department will cooperate with you, but we're hoping for some rain," he said. Noting that policemen would be patrolling the city's filling stations over the weekend, he added "if we arrest anyone, it will probably be for breach of the peace - someone giving you a hard time

Noting that King's order specified that one station "in the area" be open, Finn said "Quincy's a large city, obviously it needs more than one gas station open." Finn proposed a rotation schedule so that each station would be open for perhaps one weekend each month.

But station operators, saying they couldn't even be sure when or how much gas they would receive from their suppliers, said such a long-range plan wouldn't work.

Tobin told the station operators his main concern was keeping a reasonable number of stations open. Referring to King's edict that drivers must have less than a half tank of gas to be served, he said "I'm not going to get involved in that; you're running your own business."

One man had his own prediction on the half-tank plan:

"Next week everyone's going to come in with broken gas gauges."

City Hall hand-delivered notices of the meeting Friday morning and representatives of 26 of the city's 70 stations attended.

Gasoline 'Critical'

LaHive of the Police Department, who said motorists were able to find open gas stations between 7 a.m. and 10 p.m.

But when asked if the coming weekend would be better or worse, LaHive answered "right now, I just don't know."

The department was deluged with phone calls over the weekend and in almost all cases police were able to direct the caller to a nearby open gas station, LaHive said.

Few police problems resulted from the gas shortage so far, with the most serious being complaints from neighbors of a Willard St. 24-hour station, he said.

Joseph Gildea, John Fortin Cited By Council

Joseph N. Gildea of Montclair has been cited by the City Council for "his contributions to our community ... and his commitment and devotion to our young people."

The occasion for the citation was the 25th anniversary of the Quincy Bowling Little Loop, a bowling league for young people of which Gildea is president and founder.

Also cited at a recent Council meeting was John W. Fortin, a member of Boy Scout Troop 32 at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, for earning an Eagle Scout badge.

Contract Awarded For Retarded Adults Home

The Quincy Housing Authority is moving ahead on plans to place a home for mentally retarded adults in Wollaston, confident that community objections have been dealt with.

The authority voted last week to accept the low bidder on renovations for a vacant nursing home at 215 Safford St. where the home will be located. The $93,948 contract was awarded to Ecology Systems of Boston. Four other bids were received, ranging from $113,000 to $170,000.

Camille D'Olimpio, QHA chairman, admitted the plan had "run into some flak" from residents. But, at a hearing last month in Wollaston, "their questions were answered," he said. The meeting was attended by between 180 and 200 persons, D'Olimpio said, including all the direct abutters.

The authority will now move forward D'Olimpio said, "based on the fact that the community is satisfied and the fact that the money is available."

The home will provide some benefits for the area, D'Olimpio said.

"It seemed that the old nursing home was quickly becoming vandalized," he said.

Board member Rev. William McCarthy noted that two similar homes were already being run on Elm St. and Greenleaf St. in Quincy Center and said the two facilities were considered, "a credit to the community."

Squantum School Students Build Diorama Of Colonial Boston

A diorama of Colonial Boston as it appeared in the early days of the American Revolution has been constructed as a special project by seventh grade students at the Squantum School, and is on display in the school's media center.

Eighteen students working under the direction of Russell Dionne, social studies teacher, spent 75 hours working on the project from November through April. The students worked on the map during class periods and made up regular classroom work in additional homework.

At stations around the rim of the diorama are texts pinpointing various points of interest. By pushing a button a viewer lights a bulb indicating the exact location of particular areas.

Gordon Nelson of Squantum, member of the Quincy Historical Society, assisted the students in their research and in the building of the 12 by 24 foot map which is constructed to scale.

Assistance was also given by John Warner, school electrician; Al Nesti, school carpenter, and Ernest Lordeau, custodian.

Shot In Arm For Area

$564,000 In Federal Block Grants For Atlantic

Redevelopment and neighborhood improvement programs in the Atlantic area got a shot in the arm this week when that area received over a half-million in federal block grants.

Atlantic received more than a quarter of Quincy's $2.064 million in grants announced by Congressman Brian Donnelly [D-Dorchester]. The city's planning department oversees and applies for the grants, which must be approved by the Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD].

Among the Atlantic programs which received Community Development Block Grant [CDBG] funding were:

- $130,000 for winterization of homes.
- $130,000 for a connector between Billings Rd. and the Vane St. parking area.
- Over $200,000 for home rehabilitation grants and loans.
- $75,000 to the Atlantic Neighborhood Center to purchase its offices and to pay office expenses.

The annual grants are aimed at benefiting low- and moderate-income persons, according to Jerry Marquis of the city's planning department.

Approval of the grants by HUD is the end of a several-month-long process, Marquis said. Last fall and winter, hearings were held in various sections of the city at which residents were asked their opinion on how Quincy's allotted funds should be spent. Private persons and organizations were also invited to submit funding proposals.

According to Marquis, the planning department sifted through the various proposals, choosing the ones which were most feasible and best fit the HUD guidelines. The city's final proposal, covering the $2.064 million total, was submitted to HUD in April, he said.

HUD approval is usually just a formality, Marquis said, although one $10,000 item in Quincy's proposal was eliminated this year because it was judged to be ineligible for federal funding.

This is the fifth year of Quincy's participation in the federal CDBG grant program. In the first three, Marquis said, more funds were awarded to programs in Hough's Neck than any other neighborhood. Last year, funding was balanced between Atlantic and the southwest section of the city, he said.

The shift in funding doesn't reflect a change in the planning department's priorities, but merely the number of productive proposals in each neighborhood, Marquis said.

Among the other projects chosen for HUD funding were: • $238,260 for Hough's Neck Projects, mainly public works improvements and home rehabilitation loans and grants. • $453,308 for the Southwest area, including $135,000 for public works improvements and large amounts for home loans, grants and weatherization.

• $69,753 in public works fund, and home loans and grants for South Quincy.

• $144,000 was approved for engineering of the Burgin Parkway extension along the MBTA extension from Quincy Center.

She Didn't Win But:

Kathy Mann Finds Miss Mass Pageant 'Wonderful Experience'

"It was an exciting week. The girls were all wonderful, they were beautiful in the way they helped one another," Kathy Mann said recently on returning from the Miss Massachusetts pageant, at New Bedford.

Kathy, Miss Quincy Bay of 1978 and Miss South Shore of 1979, was not among the 10 finalists in the statewide contest, but has retained a bubbling enthusiasm for the excitement and glamor she found in being part of the pageant.

The Houghs Neck resident had to break away from rehearsals on Tuesday to return to Quincy and receive her diploma as a member of the graduating class at Quincy High School.

School.

"We had rehearsals every night from 6 to 9:30 p.m.," she said. "All 17 contestants were very cooperative. They tried to help each other. Even the pageant sponsors remarked on the way we all got along together."

Kathy and the other contestants had a seven minute interview with the judges Saturday morning. In the evening they all went on stage to perform an opening dance number at New Bedford High School.

When the dance was over the judges marked their cards for the 10 finalists and Kathy's name was not among them.

"Disappointed? Yes, but it was a wonderful experience," she said. "I met a lot of beautiful people."

Kathy still looks forward to becoming a child psychologist and hopes to enter college, perhaps Bridgewater State College, in January.

In the meantime she is keeping up her interest in theater by joining Summer Scene at Lincoln Hancock School this summer. During the summer session she will rehearse a series of one act plays to be presented at the school.

The winner of the title Miss Massachusetts was Lisa Matta of Brockton, a former Miss Brockton, and the first runner-up was Joanne Alice Colbert, the current Miss Brockton.

Jean Edwards Selected Miss Boston YMCA

Eighteen year old model Jean Edwards (Schuerch) of Quincy was selected Miss Boston YMCA (Young Men's Christian Union) Camera Club by a panel of photographers at a pageant held recently.

The pageant included runway modeling and photography sessions.

Miss Edwards, a 1979 graduate of Quincy High School, will compete in July in the New England Council of Camera Clubs Pageant to be held in Amherst.

JEAN EDWARDS and has done promotional work.

The pageant will be part of a weekend conference where 100 camera clubs from New England will be represented. Over 2,000 photographers are expected to attend.

Jeanne began modeling last year and is represented by Ford Models of Boston. She has modeled in various fashion and disco shows

Dance Recital Presented At First Church Squantum

Little girls in a variety of costumes delighted several hundred parents and friends with dance routines recently in a dance recital at the First Parish Church in Squantum.

The recital, entitled "Somebody Loves Me", was performed by girls participating in dancing classes sponsored by the church's Friendship Group. Classes were taught by Bobbie Ferguson, who demonstrated her own dancing at the end of the show.

Taking part in the recital were:

Kim Anson, Megan Bryan,

Koch Club Planning Christmas Activities

Although preparing for its 32nd annual picnic in July, the Koch Club of Quincy is also planning its 24th year of Christmas charitable activities, announces Richard J. Koch, executive director.

The Koch Club will participate in its ninth year of collecting, repairing, cleaning and packaging used toys, games, books or dolls for distribution to needy children at Christmas.

The practice was started in 1971 when 300 gifts were provided to families burned out in a pre-holiday fire.

The program was continued with the aid and support of people from Quincy and neighboring towns who have donated good and useable items in the past eight years that were prepared and provided for presentation to boys and girls at Christmas time.

Those planning to do house-cleaning or are in the process of moving, with discarded but useful toys, games, books or dolls, may contact Mr. Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy. Items should be in working order with the need for minimum repair.

The Dress-A-Doll Program has proven most successful in the past five years and dolls in good condition with the need of cleaning, dressing and grooming are being sought for assignment to women and girls who refurbish the dolls for a special gift at Christmas.

Thirty dolls are being dressed and prepared by Mrs. Sadie Wesley and a number of women who donated the time and materials to refurbish the dolls like new.

Mrs. Simeone Koch is cochairwoman of the dress-a-dolls effort for Quincy while Mrs. Ginny Derringer of 4 Edward Cody Lane is coordinator of the area south and west of Quincy.

Flatley, City Mum On 'Huge Development'

[Cont'd from Page 1]

Tobin indicated that Flatley's reticence is caused by fear that the price of the land will go up sharply if it is learned what he has in mind.
